Projects to be remodeled

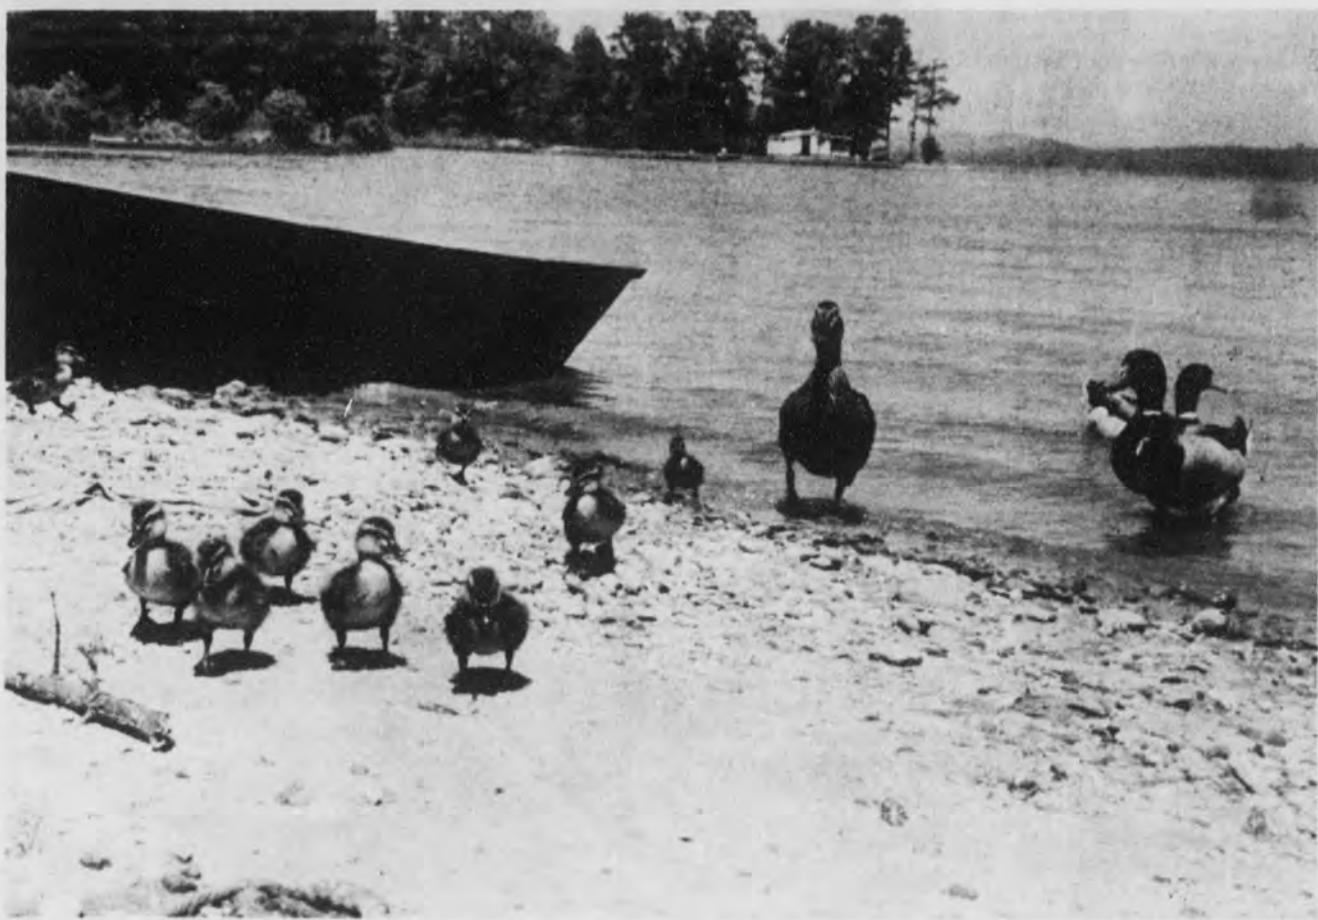

Low rent housing units in Shelby County are scheduled for face-lifting to the amount of $170,000. In contracts signed on April 25 with Key Enterprise of Moultrie, Ga, five housing units will be modernized.

According to Mrs. Kay Clark, Director of the Housing Projects, the modernization program is scheduled for 20 units at the Lee Apartments in Helena; six units at the Watts Apartments in Helena; six units at the Wilson Apartments in Wilsonville; 28 units at Alabaster Gardens Apartments and 18 units at Valley Apartments in Alabaster.

A starting date of May 22 was named at the contracts, allowing sufficient time for the contractor to get materials on the job sites.

The modernization of the Mountain View Apartments in Columbiana is nearing Wales Wallace, Jr. honored by UM students

Tradition was observed last Tuesday at the University of Montevallo when more than 160 students were honored for academic excellence.

And in addition, the students handed out an award of their own, a special presentation from the Student Government Association to Wales Wallace Jr., Columbiana attorney and chairman of the university's board of trustees.

The occasion was the annual Honors Day - Parents Day. D.R. MacMillan, Dean of Graduate Studies and Chairman of Mathematics and Physics at Montevallo, who is retiring at the end of the academic year, delivered the address.

Following the activities in Palmer Hall, the second half of Honors Day - Parents Day was devoted to open house throughout university facilities.

Students from Shelby County who received honors scholarships were James N. Godwin and Rebecca McCulley both of Montevallo.

Awarded academic citations with highest honors were William Michael Young, Calera; Stephen Eugene McDaniel, Barbara Ann Gamble, Montevallo; all in the College of Business.

From the College of Education, Cynthia G. Lucas of Montevallo, Donna Stricklin of Shelby and Debra A. Jackson of Vincent received highest honors.

The College of Fine Arts named Jewell A. McEntee, Denise P. Gibbs, Electra R. Baskin and Carol D. Medders, all of Montevallo, to the honor.

The College of Arts and Sciences named its honors students by classes.

Seniors from Shelby County who received the honor were Richard Dale Cummings, John Edward Godwin, Daniel C. McCurdy and Carol Ann Frith Smith, all of Montevallo.

Juniors were James N. Godwin, James Carl Gauntt, Montevallo; William D. Thornburg, Shelby; Donna Lynn Whitten, Wilsonville; Anthony Martin, Helena; Michele J. Campbell, Alabaster.

Sophomores named to the honors list from the College of Arts and Sciences were Rebecca Ann McCulley, James H. Hollon, James M. Nix and Will voting swing on Monday's deals?

Politics holds the spotlight for the next week in Shelby County. In a surge of last minute activity candidates are appearing everywhere trying to shake still another hand and influence still another vote.

When Shelby County goes to the polls next Tuesday, there will be many changes. For some there will be a change in voting place, brought about by federal redistricting.

Most confusing change to voters will be the division of the county into new districts, which will share legislators with sections of other counties.

Without the interest that is usually generated in a gubernatorial race, many voters have not even bothered to learn who the candidates are in their own districts.

County wide the biggest race is for the office of sheriff. With three candidates in the race and strongly partisan feeling running high, many voters are keeping quiet about their preference and are waiting to express themselves in the privacy of the voting booth.

Two positions for the powerful County Commission will be filled this time. Four candidates are running in district 2, the southwest part of the county. Six candidates are in the race for district 4, the northeast part of the county.

Two places on the county board of education are open and the candidates are running a county wide campaign.

The big question that older political observers are asking is, "What will happen Monday night?"

Traditionally, many votes are swayed on the Monday night before election, when open and clandestine meetings are arranged by some candidates in some sections of the county.

Old timers and persons who have been defeated in a race know the number of votes that can be switched on Monday night. Shelby County politics has not been above the wave of a dollar bill and a pint of whiskey in times past. The question is, "Have we reached the point where voters will vote for issues and not be swayed by material goods?"

Another trick used rather widely in the past is to say that one's opponent has withdrawn from the race. Anyone hearing that rumor on Monday night would be well advised to check with the candidate before believing it.

How many voters will turn out? Many courthouse observers believe the figure will be less than 50 percent over the entire county. In asking the first three people we saw in the courthouse Tuesday, we heard estimates of 8,000, 12,000 and 15,000. There are over 21,000 registered voters in the county.

Everyone expects the vote to be heavy in Beat 12 where zoning will again be the subject of a special election.

Four hopefuls vie for board office

Two places on the Shelby County Board of Education will be filled by the voters on May 7. There are two candidates running for each office.

Although there is no pay connected with the office, other than a minor allowance, the posts are considered to be extremely important because of the influence the board wields in controlling the education of public school children in the county and deciding how to spend millions of dollars in appropriations and bond issues.

Members of the board who do not have to run for re-election this year are Lavin Moore, Chelsea, Chairman; D. B. Smith, Vincent and Joe Dean, Helena.

Jim Seaman of Montevallo has decided not to seek another term in place 2 and the candidates who have qualified for that position are Elaine Hughes of Montevallo and W. E. Morris of Alabaster.

Mrs. Hughes is a graduate of the University of Montevallo and has almost completed work for her doctorate at the University of Alabama.

She is the mother of three school age children and is a certified teacher with classroom experience.

She has taken part in many volunteer projects in the schools and PTA, and also in the community, working as a fund raiser and program planner for many organizations.

Mrs. Hughes says that if elected she would devote her efforts to the improvement of the Shelby County educational system. She is interested in bolstering basic studies and also in adding enrichment programs to the curriculum.

Her challenger, W. E. "Bill" Morris, runs an insurance agency in Alabaster. Born and raised at Shelby he is married to the former Ann Harless and they have two children in the public schools.

He attended both Auburn and the University of Alabama.

Morris is a Mason, Shriner and current president of the Central Civitan Club in Alabaster.

He says that he wants our children to have the best education that the money we have to spend will buy.

H. A. "Doc" Rubin of Alabaster is challenging the incumbent, Doug Kent, also of Alabaster for Place One.

Rubin is a graduate of Columbia University with a bachelor's degree and a Pharmacist-Chemist degree. He is a retired business executive and a Navy veteran. He is a member of the Shelby County Development Board, a former director of the Water and Gas Board of the City of Alabaster and was a member of the Alabaster City Council for eight years.

Rubin is a past adjutant of the American Legion Post 138.

Eleventh successful horse show benefits Columbiana's athletes

Horses mean money to the Shelby County High School Athletic Association and they brought more than $15,000 of it to Columbiana Saturday for the eleventh annual Heart of the Heart of Dixie Horse Show.

George Bentley, president of the association, told the Reporter that once all the expenses are met, the group may make a profit of $5,000 to $6,000 on the horse show this year, one of the best in history.

There were 425 horses entered in the 46 different classes. Approximately 750 persons were served barbecue at the evening dinner.

And as a measure of the crowd and the 80 degree sunny day, Bentley said that 1,200 snow cones were sold.

He estimates that 4,000 people attended the horse

IT'S TIME FOR A CHANGE

If Bill Thompson is elected the Sheriff's Department will:

*Cooperate with state, federal, and municipal officers. Crimes committed in Shelby County will be investigated by Shelby County deputies assisted by State Investigators and by Federal officers where appropriate. This means better service to Shelby County citizens and better trained deputies who will learn as they work will skilled criminal investigators.

This will be a change.

*Cooperate with the District Attorney and the Coroner. These officials will be invited to the scene of crimes and a "team effort" will be made to solve crimes.

This will be a change.

*Fees collected in the Sheriff's Department

Pistol permits	$8,000.00 per year
Warrant clerk's fees	$4,500.00 per year
State paid allowance for cook	$4,500.00 per year
Total	$17,000.00 per year will be paid into the County general fund. This is enough money to buy two cars for the Sheriff's Department and operate them for a year. (This is presently going into the Sheriff's pocket). The Sheriff is the only county official still collecting fees as well as salary.

This will be a change.

*Cooperate with State Troopers and not have them moved from the County when they have made lawful arrest.

This will be a change.

*Burglaries: Prevention will be stressed. Marking equipment will be made available free of charge so that home owners may place their driver license number on personal property. The thief is slow to steal property marked for identification of owner. Emphasis will be placed on finding and prosecuting the "fence". There have been too many unsolved burglaries in Shelby County.

There is no need for four secretaries in the Sheriff's Department. Thompson will reduce this number and hire more manpower to more frequent patrols in high burglary areas.

These will be important changes

Available: Thompson - as Sheriff will be available to personally receive your phone calls and visits.

This will be a change.

Non Political: The Sheriff's Department will not be used in political activity to elect county and municipal officials to become a part of a political group.

This will be a change.

Alcoholic beverages sold to minors - these are important laws and will be enforced by the Sheriff's Department.

This will be a change.

Coroner of Shelby County for the past 10 years.

Bill Thompson received more votes from Shelby Co. voters than any other candidate has received for any other office.

*Korean war veteran: Served in military police, engineering units signaling corps in the United States Army and Green Berets in the Ala. National Guard. Combat veteran of Korean conflict

*Holder of the Silver Star and five battle stars;
*Member of First Baptist Church of Columbiana;
*Mason member of Shelby Masonic Lodge No. 140;
*Member of Alabama Coroners Association;
*Member of Veterans of Foreign Wars;
*Member of American Legion;
*Graduate of Jefferson State;

A Message From Bill Thompson

I am running against the Sheriff, not the Deputies. Under the local act effecting Shelby County, county employees have job security and a Personnel Appeals Board to protect them. The advertising of one of my opponents continues to tell you that if the Sheriff is replaced all deputies will be fired.

This is just not true - the changes I would make will have to do with the improving the way the Sheriff's Department is operated, not the personnel in the Department other than a reduction in the number of secretaries to permit the hiring of man deputies.

I am not connected with any special interest group or individual. If elected, I will run the Sheriff's Department and other elected officials can run their office.

Since mid-January, I have been visiting you door to door to ask for your vote and support. Without exception you have been friendly and courteous. Regardless of the outcome next Tuesday, I will always remember and appreciate the kind reception given me in all parts of the county. My family, relatives, and many friends have worked hard with me and for me. I thank all of them and give assurance to them and to all Shelby Countians that if I am elected next Tuesday, I will work hard and in cooperation with others to be a Sheriff of whom you will be most proud.

County property in campaign?

Letter to Editor:

I object to a candidate using county purchased stationery and, no doubt, clerical workers paid by the county and postage in campaigning for election, as is being done by Mr. Curt Payne, Judge of our Inferior Court!

Signed: Frances Duke Wilson,
Montevallo, Alabama

Editor's Note: Mrs. Wilson enclosed a copy of a letter sent to absentee voters by L.C. Curt Payne. The letter was on the letterhead stationery of the Shelby County Inferior Court. The message in the letter, in part, commended the absentee voter for "the activeness and the interest that you have shown in the government of Shelby County by applying to vote an absentee ballot." It also included a reference to the judge's having held a public office for 20 years.

The letter concluded with the paragraphs, "As you may know I am a candidate for Commissioner in District 2. If elected I pledge to you that I will do my utmost to represent our district to the best of my ability. Your vote on May 7 will be most appreciated." Signed, L.C. Payne, Judge.

When the Reporter contacted the judge for a comment he said he had purchased his own stamps for the mailing. He said he only sent 12 to 14 letters and it is his understanding that the chief clerk in each county office can engage in politics.

Urges unified attitude

Letter to Editor:

I am writing in the hope of creating a unified, positive attitude on the part of Shelby County voters.

Shelby County is unfortunate in that it is divided into three different legislative districts for the House of Representatives and into two districts for senatorial representation. This, in my opinion, is reason enough for Shelby countians to support and vote for persons from Shelby County in their respective races this election. I believe that it is in our own best interest to support, irrespective of personal differences or previous political alliances, those of us who are willing and able to serve.

How much representation do you really expect to receive for Shelby County from persons not actively involved in our county? What voice will our county have if no one from Shelby County is serving in our State Congress? How much attention will our problems (many of which will be unique to us) receive from legislators outside of our county?

There are only three candidates for statewide office who are Shelby countians: Tom Stubbs, in the race for Senate District 17, Calvin Smith and Sonny Moore, candidates for House of Representatives District 52. Shelby countians can do no better than to support these men - They Are A Part Of Us.

Yours very truly,

Controversy of zoning Beat 12 boils again

The voters of Beat 12 will once again cast their ballots on the zoning issue on Tuesday, May 7. Those in favor of the Planning Commission's land use plan hope to succeed in their fourth try at voting in the plan.

This week the Reporter contacted spokesmen for both sides for a statement of policy on the issues in the election. Bill Pittman, president of the Indian Springs Civic Club, gave his views in favor of accepting the planning commission's master plan for zoning the north Shelby County beat.

Since the first time zoning came to a vote, a great deal has changed in the Valleydale and Cahaba Valley area. Pittman told us, "When we had the first two elections on zoning, there was very little industrial and commercial development in north Shelby County. At that time I did not know that the area would become as popular for mobile home parks, commercial pre-fabricated buildings, convenience stores, etc., as it has become."

"I also felt that the large landholders had already over-priced their property," he added, "and with the lack of water, gas, and sewerage, growth would be somewhat restricted. Well, hindsight is 20-20, and I was wrong. What I thought wouldn't happen did happen."

Pittman says he has seen exploitation of the growth of Beat 12: "Each day one can ride through the area and see land being used to make a quick dollar. It seems that the strong protestors to a land use plan are those who own large pieces of property or those who stand to gain financially from industrial or commercial development. Some of these could be mobile home dealers, tourist trap operators (who will spring up around the state park), and others. Also tracking along," he added, "are sympathizers who don't own property, but have a vote on election day."

"There is little doubt in my mind," stated Pittman, "that if it were left up to the property-owners and those who could have their property values extremely lowered (because of a motel, burger or beer joint, etc., being located near them), the land use plan would have been adopted a long time ago."

Pittman and the pro-zoners are optimistic about their chances in the election. "It is just a matter of time before control of land use will be in effect," he said. Pointing out that there is a bill before Congress with federal land control condition, he suggested, "If it's going to be controlled anyway, why not let our local county people do the controlling?"

Since the zoning election is on the same day as the Democratic primary, a large turnout is expected. "I estimate that the turnout in Beat 12 by those interested in a land use plan will be well over a thousand voters this time...if they all get out and vote," Pittman added that while many residents are interested in the outcome, a silent majority apparently would rather stay home on election day.

He forecasts a favorable outlook for the area, saying that "north Shelby County has probably the most promising future of any residential development in the metropolitan area of Birmingham." He estimates that in the next ten year, the number of households should increase "nearly sixfold...from an existing 2,300 households to over 13,000 in 1983, based on the current trend." This increase of almost a thousand families per year is rather conservative when compared to figures of county agencies which predict a population increase of more than 800%.

While county figures take in Helena, part of Pelham, and area around the new Highway 280, Pittman and his neighbors are concerned with their area. Pittman pointed out that "most of the development will be centered along and between Valleydale (county road 17) and Cahaba Valley (highway 119) roads." He concludes, "With this outlook, how could I not afford to be for a land use plan?"

Although some of the opponents to zoning are concerned with the garbage pick-up plan and control of mining, those favoring zoning feel that such concern is not warranted. Pittman objected to his opponents cashing in on the garbage pick-up plan to defeat the totally unrelated zoning plan. "This garbage plan is one of the best things that has happened to Beat 12. Now we have someone to turn to, since we were at the mercy of the garbage collectors." He feels that his opponents concern about mining has little bearing on the election and their argument about minerals, quarrying, and mining is "a laugh."

Several letters to the editor present other views on the Beat 12 election.

'Waste of money'

Letter to Editor:

Saturday, January 19, 1974 was quite a day in the lives of 1,075 concerned citizens of Beat 12. A day all of us will long remember to say the least. It was truly a crisis!

I want to state my name from the beginning. I am Kathryn Street. I, too, am a concerned citizen and I have opposed zoning from the very beginning. This was the third time in three years we have had to face this proposal - truly a waste of the taxpayers money! However, this time was quite different than before.

The Beat 12 boundary lines had been changed to comply with the order of the U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Alabama, Northern Division in civil cases 1744-N, 3017-N and 3459-N. This change was made by the U.S. District Court of Alabama. Some people put the blame for these changes on our Probate Judge, however, Judge Fowler was not at fault in this case - these changes were made by the State. Where Judge Fowler made his mistake was in the way he handled his and the Board of Commissioners' responsibility to the people of Beats No. 8 and 13 - concerning the fact that their place of voting had been moved to Beat 12 and that their property was now in a beat about to be faced with zoning. I asked Judge Fowler when he dropped by my home on Thursday afternoon, January 17th, before the election, "What happened?" Why had the people of these beats not been notified about this change? He said and I quote, "We could not decide what would be the best way to notify these people and the time was about to run out so we appointed a three man committee with the brother of Paul Yeager, Jr. as the chairman to make a house canvass to tell the people about the boundaries being changed and to give each registered voter a notice that they were now a voter of Beat 12." However, Mr. Fowler stated that the job was very poorly handled and the people had not been notified like they should have been. Judge Fowler also stated that they had been trying to notify the people that day about the change which was a little late, to say the least.

January 19 from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. came a continuous stream of angry bewildered people from these two beats, and they had every right to be! This was too grave a matter to be passed off so lightly by our officials. These people regardless of the way they voted for or against zoning were entitled to be notified by mail that this change had come about. This would have been the proper way to notify them and no one could have had cause to complain. If their addresses were not on record in the court house, I am sure they could have been obtained if just a little effort had been put forth. If it had not been for the people opposing zoning, this election would have been held with only a handful of the people from these two beats knowing about their property being zoned. It is such a tragedy that this can happen in our county. However, I feel that in his anxiety to zone Beat 12, Judge Fowler neglected his responsibility to these people.

Most of the people from Beats eight and 13 had to vote a challenge vote even though they had been on the qualified list for years. This was very unfair to these voters. They had every right to vote on the machines. Negligence can sometimes prove to be very painful. As one of the officials of the January 19th election, I can state for a fact that out of 73 challenge votes, 19 votes were for zoning, and 54 votes were against zoning. And that was very bad for the pro-zoners. In the May 7th Primary once again the people of Beat 12 will have to face zoning for the fourth time. This time will also be different. Beats 8 and 13 proved to be a threat to zoning. Something had to be done about that. So they were withdrawn from Beat 12 and a new beat was formed for them - BEAT 23.

Several zoning meetings have been held since the Jan. 19th election. For some reason or another the Pre-zoners side was covered by the reporters but never the Anti-zoners' views.

Here is an example of why I am against zoning. November 17, 1971 I received a phone call from the law firm of Bishop, Carlton and Sweeney, 237 Frank Nelson Bldg., Birmingham. Donald Sweeney in formed me that they were preparing the necessary papers to file suit against my husband and me for non-compliance with the regulations of the Shelby County Planning Commission. Immediately I called my attorney, Mr. Karl Harrison. He, in turn, contacted Mr. Sweeney. A meeting was held in Mr. Harrison's office with the Planning Commission. What the meeting boiled down to was the fact that the Commission was about to sue my husband and me for selling our property in "Cherokee Hills" that had been recorded as a sub-division in the Probate Judge's office in Map Book 5, Page 3, November 23, 1964, almost a year before Shelby County even had a planning commission! Act 816 was passed September 2, 1965. In the discussion with the attorneys who were threatening suit and with Paul Yeager, Director of the Planning Commission, the above facts were discovered; where upon this matter was immediately dropped.

If zoning is adopted, you could very easily find yourself unknowingly in violation of the zoning laws and thereby be subject to Article 27 of this law providing for a fine of up to $100 for each offense and each day the violation occurs constitutes a separate offense.

Below is another excellent example of zoning and planning:

Judge Fowler and Paul Yeager says the Planning and Zoning Board will protect you and your property. If that's true, then who was being protected when Cahaba Valley Road was turned over to the State? This road change came about in the latter part of 1969 or early 1970. Part of County Road 17, new 231, was turned over to the State just beyond the Lime Plant on Helena Road and ending at Highway 31 South. Cahaba Valley Road from 31 Highway South to 280 Highway was also turned over to the State. Since the same Lime Company at Helena owns the new lime plant on 280, I would say that really was some good planning, indeed, BUT NOT for the people of Cahaba Valley. Act 816 (Planning and Zoning Act) was passed September 2, 1965 to protect the people. Then where was that protection in 1969 and 1970 when these roads were turned over to the State? If the County was so desperate, why weren't these roads made State roads all the way to the next County lines? Something to really "think" about, isn't it? Cahaba Valley is a residential area. We didn't need all this cross country truck traffic and neither did we need the lime trucks. The way I see it, anyone who looks at the whole picture of what zoning can and cannot do for you and what it might do to you, I am certain will conclude they should vote "NO" on the zoning issue, May 7, 1974.

Yours very truly,

Worried about mines

Letter to Editor:

The article written by Mr. Willard Harrison in the April 25, 1974 issue. Willard why did you not report all of the questions and answers that were asked at the April 18 zoning meeting. It seems that your report went through a World War II censor and parts were clipped out. Here are some of the questions and answers you did not include:

Question: Mr. Fowler who wrote Act 816 that was passed in the Legislature in 1965?

Answer: I wrote this act and ask Mr. John Louis Cates to introduce it.

Question: Why Mr. Fowler was the section put into the act that the Commission shall have no power by the adoption of Zoning regulations or otherwise, to limit or impair in any manner the use of land for mining, quarrying or otherwise extracting coal, limestone or other minerals located therein, or for processing or distribution of such minerals?

Answer: This is the only way that we could get the act passed through the Legislature.

Question: Mr. Yeager did the planning board approve the Indian Valley subdivision plans where several old mines are located?

Answer: Yes all but the first sector.

To my own knowledge there are a number of old mines in all of the sectors of this subdivision. These mines were not reinforced with any treated timbers or steel, only green pine poles straight from the trees one day to the mines the next. In this subdivision today are open air shafts one of the mouths of these mines was filled with small amount of rocks, a load or two or dirt. Then a thirty thousand to sixty thousand ($30,000 to $60,000) home was built on the lot. Yes, people of Indian Valley, that is what your planning board approved.

Why can I say what went into these mines. My father and a neighbor cut these timbers. I was born here and have lived in this area most of my life, this is why I know this is true. I personally have gone to both Mr. Fowler and also Mr. Jim Ray of Highway Department about this but the open holes still remain. Does some little child have to fall in one of these holes to get the planning board's mistakes corrected. Yes, new neighbors of Indian Valley I am worried about you and your children safety. Why should a little child or a grown-up have to suffer for some of the mistakes of Mr. Paul Yeager. Paul you have lived in Pelham area all of your life and could not help but to know about these mines, since Pelham is only a short distance from Indian Valley.

Question: Mr. Yeager is this map you are showing us and the January 1st 1974 zoning regulation book the way Beat 12 will be zoned should zoning pass.

Answer: No, this is just a proposed map and zoning regulations should zoning pass this will be redone over a period of a year and that will be your zoning regulation.

Question: After it is rewriting and redrawn will the people of Beat 12 be allowed to vote on this again?

Answer: No, you will have to pay the zoning board a fee of $25.00 per person plus it must be advertised for 15 days before you can come before the zoning board for any changes.

Yes, kind people that is what he said.

Maybe you people haven't been to Columbiana to protest anything. Well, I have several times. Both to the County Commission and Board of Education if you have never heard one of their answers, well here is what you will hear. "I am very sorry but that is just the way it is" and that is all of the answer you will get from the powers that be. Take it from a person who has been there.

Question: Mr. Yeager does the zoning law prohibit animals?

Answer: No, you can have all of the animals you want.

Question: Mr. Yeager does that include chickens, pigs, cows, and horses?

Answer: Yes, you can have any kind of animal you want.

Listen people don't let him fool you, he knows good and well the Health Department will not approve any kind of these things for that matter and what is to say he won't change that in the year when he is rewriting your zoning regulations. Oh yes there is Mr. Fowler's Nuisance Law and here goes your animals.

So people of Beat 12 if I were you I would STOP, LOOK, LISTEN, and vote NO on zoning May 7th.

Dislikes new beat

Letter to Editor:

This is the first time I have written the Reporter on any matter, although I have been amused, as well as informed by the many others that have written.

I am prompted to write you because of my concern about the methods being used by some of the elected and non-elected residents of this county to bring about zoning in this area. Any impartial observer can see that those methods are devious, to say the least.

My first concern is the hasty establishment of a new beat, and the answer given by one of our elected officials as to why this was done. Brevity will not permit me to quote the reason or reasons for this action as given by the official, but the reasons are given on page nine, column 2, of the Thursday, April 25, 1974 edition of the Reporter.

It is a well known fact that the majority of those that comprise the new beat were anti-zoning. One of the reasons given for the establishment of the new beat, was that they were separated from the rest of Beat 12 by a mountain, and had nothing in common with the other residents. If that and the other stated reasons is the only justification for establishing a new beat, I say it is asinine and smacks of subterfuge.

If being separated by a mountain renders us aliens, our elected official is out of his territory, and is endeavoring to serve the wrong people.

In conclusion - There have been a few references made that only Aborigines oppose zoning. Permit me to say that both sides of the zoning issue is comprised of fine and capable men and women.

Whether you are for or against zoning, matters not, but as residents of this county, all of us have many things in common, and I feel that the basic need is for us to be honest and forthright with each other.

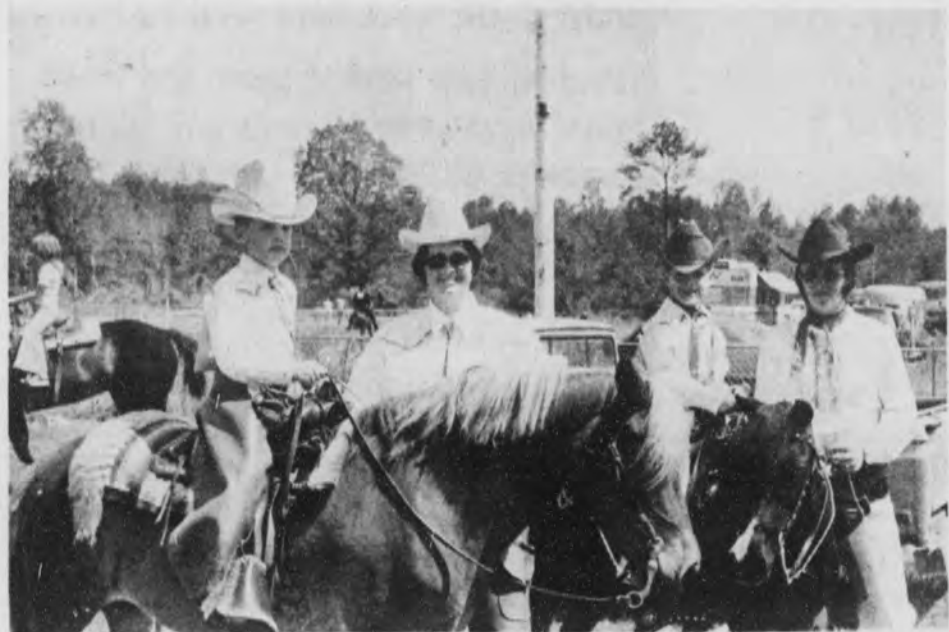

Will someone please tell me how to go about getting a new beat for this area?

Sincerely,
Ellis J. Rich

ELECT JAKE R. VAUGHN

To House District 51

JAKE R. VAUGHN

Dear citizens of Shelby County,
For many years I have had a deep interest in and have closely observed political happenings. After the recent reapportionment of our state legislature, I felt that if elected to the Alabama House of Representatives I could be effective in helping to improve the quality of government for the people of my district and state.

In years past, I could not have run county-wide as it was then set up, because it was quite expensive and also required a great deal of time. With the new single-member districts that have been formed, however, I feel that I can afford both. This is the first time that I have ever sought public office of any nature, and no part of my campaign is being backed by or financed by any special interest group.

I am a native of Dothan, Ala. and am 34 years old. In 1960 I received my B.S. degree in Pharmacy at Samford University (Howard College). Since then, I have been a Registered Pharmacist, and for 12 years have been co-owner and co-operator of Bluff Park Pharmacy with my wife, Peggy, also a Registered Pharmacist. We are members of Dawson Memorial Baptist Church, and live at 2120 Vestavia Drive, Vestavia Hills, with our four children, Steve 14½, Meg 12, Valerie 10½ and Vickie 10½, who all go to the Pizitz Middle School.

I own no stock and I own no property other than our home, which we are buying. Our drug store is due to be paid for before this year is out, and our sole income is from same, Bluff Park Pharmacy, a community retail drug store. I'm very accustomed to being on 24-hour call in my business, and am prepared to do the same for my constituents, if elected to serve and represent you in House District 51.

Many new faces will make up our next state legislature, and I'm hoping you will help elect me to be among them. Experienced politicians do not always tend to be our most effective representatives in government, because after a time, they quite often become controlled by special interest groups.

I am asking for your vote because I want to give the PEOPLE better representation. Together, let's clean up our state legislature. LET'S STOP THESE SPECIAL INTEREST GROUPS FROM DOMINATING OUR STATE GOVERNMENT.

I am not anti-big business, but I do feel that ALL should be HEARD and REPRESENTED. I want to do this.
Many close friends of mine live in Shelby County, and I feel that I could effectively represent both Shelby and Jefferson Counties. I would sincerely appreciate your vote on May 7th, 1974.

Yours truly,
JAKE R. VAUGHN

Arnetts celebrate 50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. T.E. Arnett, former residents of Alabaster, celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary Sunday afternoon with a reception in their home at Sylacauga given in their honor by their children. Many friends and relatives called to extend congratulations to the couple. Out of town guests included their daughters, Ola Mae Miranda of San Diego, California, and Donna Harkin and her husband and four children of Huntington Beach, California, a son, Wayne Arnett and his wife of Houston, Texas, and a granddaughter, Sarah Anderson and her husband of Lakeside, California. Mr. and Mrs. Arnett's seven children were all in attendance, along with fifteen of their eighteen grandchildren and three of their five great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Arnett, in a floor-length pink Empire style dress with white lace bodice and long sleeves adorned with a corsage of pink silk rosebuds, and Mr. Arnett dressed handsomely in a brown suit, pink shirt and coordinating tie with pink rosebud boutonniere, greeted their guests. They were asked to sign the guest book by the Arnetts' granddaughter, Melanie Smith, and were served from a table carrying out the pink and white theme with a centerpiece of spring flowers and silver candlesticks displaying pink candles. Pink punch was served from a crystal punchbowl. A beautifully decorated tiered cake with pink sugar roses and green leaves proudly displayed the Golden 50 topping the cake. Serving the refreshments were their grandchildren, Sarah Anderson, Pam Inmon, Kellie Smith and Sherry Arnett.

The occasion was enjoyed by all those present, but particularly by Mr. and Mrs. Arnett as they greeted relatives and long-time friends.

Older Americans honored in May

Governor George C. Wallace has proclaimed May as Older Americans Month in Alabama and is asking that all Alabamians join in this observance of the special contributions that older people are making and have made to our society.

"As a state and nation we must not overlook the qualities of persons over 60 years of age," Governor Wallace stated. "Real achievements are being made daily by relatively older people."

Emmett Eaton, executive director of the Alabama Commission on Aging, said that the month is being set aside to honor the state's nearly one-half million older Alabamians. "Older Americans Month is an opportunity to draw attention to the qualities of imagination, persistence, courage and willingness to take on new ideas in men and women of all ages in Alabama," he said.

The theme of Older Americans Month this year, as proclaimed by President Nixon, is Older Americans Are a National Resource. In the state the theme is Older Alabamians: A Valuable Resource.

Eaton expressed thanks for the efforts of groups over Alabama that have contributed to make the nearly 170 programs funded by the Alabama Commission on Aging a success.

Activities are being planned across the state in observance of the month.

And no shortage of natural gas for home heating, either.

He's worked to make sure Alabama's intra-state freight rates are as low as any in the nation, too.

UM PR director resigns after twenty-six years

The University of Montevallo's director of public relations, Ralph W. Sears, will resign his administrative position June 1.

In his letter of resignation to the University's president, Dr. Kermit A. Johnson, Sears indicated he wished to devote more time to duties with the City of Montevallo and to his business interests.

At a recent meeting the university's Board of Trustees accepted the resignation with "deep regret" and unanimously granted Sears emeritus status effective June 1.

Sears joined the teaching faculty of the university in the fall of 1948. A year later he established the state's second campus radio station, WRSD. He served as an assistant professor of speech and director of radio until he was appointed Director of Public Relations when Dr. F.E. Lund became the school's seventh president in 1952.

Sears was instrumental in founding the school's faculty club and golf club. He served as the first president of both organizations.

He produced and directed several radio programs that received regional recognition. "Music from Montevallo" and "Montevallo Nocturne" were carried by more than 40 radio stations in Alabama, Florida and Georgia. The program "Organ Music of the Centuries" was broadcast throughout the world on the Voice of America and the network of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters.

As a member of the university's faculty and administrative staff he served as chairman of a variety of committees including the publications committee, concerts and lectures committee, College Night committee, and two presidential inaugural committees.

The veteran public relations official is a charter member and past president of the Public Relations Council of Alabama and a charter member of the Birmingham Press Club. He is a former president of the Alabama College Public Relations Association and is currently serving as chairman of the public relations committee of the Alabama League of Municipalities.

On the national level he served as director of the eleven-state Southeastern District of the American College Public Relations Association.

In addition to his public relations activities, Sears has served as chairman of a variety of state educational study groups and commissions including chairman of the state's Educational Television program study committee.

He is the former secretary and past president of the Association of Alabama College Administrators.

Sears is listed in Who's Who in Education, Who's Who in Public Relations, Who's Who in the South and Southeast and other biographical publications.

He is concerned with our environment and the roads on which we travel. He has a plan to solve the problems which confront us, but he needs your support. Elect Charles Beavers—House of Representatives, District 51.

Paid Pol. Adv. By Committee for Charles A. J. Beavers.

To the voters of District 4 and Shelby County:

I am running for re-election for County Commission for District 4. I'm not running against anyone, I'm running for the job, as they are all friends of mine. I was born and raised in Shelby County. I am married, have one daughter and have lived in Westover 23 years. It has been a pleasure serving District 4 and Shelby County.

Shelby County has grown to where it has got to be big business and I think it needs someone that has had different kinds of business experience. I have had 35 years experience in construction work. I have been everything from truck driver up to General Superintendent for some of the largest contractors in Alabama. I was with one contractor 7 years without missing a pay day. Was in the construction business 6 years myself and at one time had approximately 100 men on the pay roll at one time. I was in business in Vincent 2 years.

I started the Harpersville Ambulance Service and operated it 22 months before selling to Mr. Jimmy Gill. During this years completion of my work in District 4, I have had approximately 35 miles of new paving, sixteen miles of new graded road and as of April 19, 1974 I have repaired with pipe stone and chert 1181 drives in District 4.

I am a member of Mt. Tabor Methodist Church, Veteran of World War II, member of Harpersville Unit, member of Vincent Masonic Lodge, Honorary Life Time Member of Loop Lodge in Mobile (since Sept. 8, 1954) and a charter member of Coosa Academy. I support the schools and churches of the surrounding communities and the Little League Baseball clubs.

If I am elected, I promise to be a full time Commissioner. Any time you call, someone will know where I am. I will not be off somewhere else working. In case of emergency, I will come to see about your needs Day or Night. Your Vote and Influence will be appreciated May 7, 1974.

Thanks,

I. D. Stone and family

DOUG BALLARD

CANDIDATE FOR

THE SHELBY COUNTY COMMISSION
DISTRICT TWO

FLYING "X" RANCH, MONTEVALLO, ALA. 35115

RES. 665-7080
BUS. 324-7676

Dear Friends of Shelby County:

Realizing that the Office of County Commissioner, District Two, was coming up for election this year, I tried to think of someone I could ask to run for this office who would be independent, and whom we could send to Columbiana to properly represent us.

Then, I thought, why should I ask someone else to do something I wouldn't do myself? This was when I decided to qualify and seek election.

I asked a friend who is now in a State office how I should go about it. Should I wait and see who else got in, then decide if I wanted to compete? He said, "Oh, no, you just go jump flat-footed into it, then no matter who comes in - stay in."

So this is what I did. I was the first to announce, and my first entrance into politics has been an extremely interesting experience.

My wife said, "The only thing I hate about it is that I'm a sore loser." I told her, "I am not getting in it to lose, - I'm getting in it to WIN, and I'm going to WIN."

Well, the first thing I did was go see the Chairman of the Democratic Party and asked him if he knew of anyone planning to run for the County Commission, and he said, "Yeah, me!"

Well, I thought, ain't that repulsive! As I started to leave, he said, "Hey, Doug, you aren't thinking about running, are you?"

I said, "Yes, sir, I'm going to run, but don't let that stop you," and it didn't.

Since that time, a couple of other fine fellows came in. Sometimes I feel real honored to be associated with such highly respected people like I'm running against. They are such nice guys. It's a shame they have to lose!

I went to see some fellows who had run for this office before and were defeated, - in general they said, "Why come ask me? I got beat, but I might be able to tell you what not to do." And to be nice, I said, "Well, if I know that it will help."

Some of my expert advisers said I started too soon and I would "peak-out". Well, I am going to "peak-out" at 12:00 P. M. on May 6th.

Listen, people, I've got so many friends out working for me I've just got to win, - otherwise I have let them down. Besides, don't forget, my wife is a sore loser!

Love to all,

Doug

Transall to double sales

An Alabaster company, Dick will expand their line of products by adding to it the conveyor belt idlers made in the Alabaster plant. The idlers will be marketed on a nationwide basis along with the rest of the R.J. Dick hardware. Fred Herlitz, president of R.J. Dick Company, told the Alabaster Industrial Board in a meeting April 23 that he was buying the Transall plant, R.J. grateful for the new company's reception into the community and expressed R.J. Dick's intention to be a good neighbor.

Financing for R.J. Dick's purchase of the Transall plant was underwritten by the Alabaster Industrial Development Board.

Herlitz disclosed at the meeting that his company is planning to double the sales volume of the Alabaster plant by the end of the year.

Herlitz also said that the company plans to double the hourly rate of employment at the Transall facility in the next 12 months. The plant now employs 50 workers. Herlitz said that the company hopes to have 70 employees on the payroll by the end of the year.

Charles Davis will serve as vice-president and general manager of the Transall plant.

Conveyor equipment sold by R.J. Dick is used for industrial purposes. Such conveyors are commonly found in coal mines, power plants, iron ore mines and sand and gravel pits.

OFFICIAL BALLOT CHOOSE ONE

THE RIGHT TO CHOOSE

The whole point of competition in the American system is the right to shop around, to make a choice . . . and to switch if he wants to. That "right of choice" applies to choosing a bank as well as choosing a product . . . or choosing an elected official.

In Russia, there is one bank. No shopping around for a better interest rate, or a better loan deal . . . or a more friendly, concerned banker.

In Canada, there are 15 banks. They have 6,500 branches, but there are really only 15 choices.

In the United States, on the other hand, there are about 14,000 banks, most of them locally owned and operated independent community banks. They give you a wide choice, a chance to shop around.

We're part of a system which gives you a choice, which brings you the personal dimension in banking. And we're proud of it. Come on in and see why.

weekend for Montevallo's firefighters.

The group will leave Montevallo at 9:30 Friday morning and will put to sea at 7 p.m. Friday night from Panama City, Fla.

Fire Chief Mike Mahan told the Reporter that the fishing group will board one of the boats making up the fleet of Captain Joe Davis. The smoke eaters are then scheduled to travel some 200 miles from shore and spend all day Saturday sport fishing.

The group will return to Panama City Sunday afternoon and arrive back in Montevallo late Sunday night. The roundtrip from Montevallo to Panama City will be made by a chartered bus from the Alabama Coach Company.

Eight members of the department will remain in Montevallo, according to Mahan. The Calera Fire Department and Shelco Unit Number one will be on standby call to assist the remaining Montevallo firemen in the event alarms are turned in.

Voters' ballot has sacred legacy

Only five more days remain until next Tuesday, May 7, when the fate of many candidates will be determined by your vote! Each qualified elector should weigh carefully the issues involved, the obligations each office entails, and decide for himself or herself, as an individual, which political aspirant is best qualified to assume the responsibilities of the various positions -- then -- cast his or her cross mark accordingly. Much thought should be given before exercising this priceless heritage of free expression at the polls. It is not possible in many countries!

Over the coffee cups this morning everyone at our table remarked on how very "hush-hush" this upcoming election has been. We suggested that perhaps folks have put on their "thinking caps" and are more seriously considering this trek to the polls before pulling the lever that will play such a vital role in the tabulation of the vote determining just who will be what in the final figures. One member of the group said: "You know I believe people are doing more thinking and less talking in this election than any I have ever been in." He said he thought this a good sign. Another fellow remarked that -- this might be true -- or it might be viewed as an ominous sign. "He said "Fear" -- had entered into the picture. I hope this is not true!

At any rate, May 7 is the day to remember and we sincerely urge everyone eligible to vote to do so. Only in this way can a democracy continue to function. Its preservation is up to YOU. The Battle for the Ballot was not won overnight. Ralph Bushnell Potts once paid his penpoint tribute to the ballot and it is truly worth taking time to read and think over before pulling the lever that will register your vote. This distinguished writer had this to say in his thought-provoking article entitled MY BALLOT. We reprint it for your consideration.

"The blood of Free men stains my ballot sheet
Whatever others do, I shall not carelessly make my mark,
Those who died for this, my voice in my government,
Had a right to expect that I would prepare with every faculty
To use it wisely, honestly and courageously.
They did not die that blind partisans, or the reckless might make a game of free elections.
I will not be confused or deceived by propaganda, slogans or histrionics.
I shield my eyes to the glittering personalities,
Purge my mind of passion and prejudice,
And search diligently for the hidden truth.
I must be free of all influence save that of conscience and justice.
I vote as if my ballot decided the contest.
I may lose my preference but I will not throw away my Sacred Ballot.
For within the booth, I hold in my humble hand the living proxy of all my country's honored dead."

NEW ADDITION -- Workmen begin digging the footing for an addition to the Elliottville Cumberland Presbyterian Church. The new wing to the church will house 14 Sunday school rooms, two nurseries and a young people's meeting room. The historic Shelby County Church is located on Highway 119 south of Alabaster.

Vocational education needed

Authority to spend federal funds on vocational education programs tailored to meet the needs of Shelby County and each county in Alabama has been asked in a report to Congress.

The current federal aid legislation for vocational education will expire next year and Congress is currently conducting hearings on proposed new legislation.

The Alabama Advisory Council on Vocational Education has studied the needs in this state and is asking Congress to continue its education funds in 1975 but to give the state more flexibility in spending the money on specific training designed to meet the needs of each part of the state.

Despite large sums of money spent on programs, Alabama's Congressional delegation has been told that "vocational education has yet to give the necessary attention to persons who want to extend their years of training and the adults who need updating of their present skills or retraining for new skills."

Vocational education in Alabama experienced an 81 per cent increase in enrollment in the past decade, the report shows but notes: "Even yet with this significant growth in enrollment vocational education is currently available to only a small portion of Alabamians who are in need of such education."

A relatively low increase in adult enrollment was cited and attributed to a lack of funding.

Enrollment in high schools "is far behind the needs of young people who could benefit from vocational education", the council noted. It was also cited that in 1973 less than 22 per cent of the high school students enrolled in vocational education were being trained "in the fast developing service, trade and technical fields". According to the report 12 out of 24 youths who do not graduate from colleges are not being prepared for suitable jobs.

The rapid change which has taken place in industry would suggest, the report states, that one-third of the labor force could profit from training or retraining.

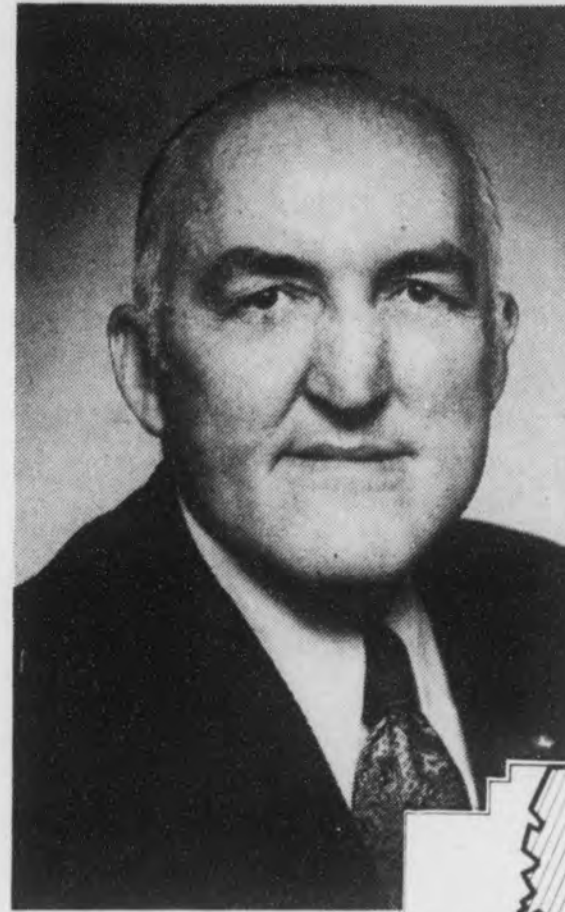

The universities and colleges are not meeting even the current needs for vocational education and guidance counselors, the council reported.

The report said that "to make matters worse, there are few exposures to vocational experiences during the preparation of either teachers or counselors and that teacher education programs are perpetrators of the academic bias which permeates the education system."

The state council was appointed by the State Board of Education and includes laymen and educators familiar with management of labor, industrial and economic development and vocational education. G. Ray Jeffcoat, President of Opp and Micolas Cotton Mills, Opp, Alabama is chairman.

Greenpark marks 1st birthday

Happy birthday to the Greenpark South Child Development Center. This week marks the first anniversary of the nursery-kindergarten center. Director Bettie Cook invited the press to the nursery school where the 42 children were anticipating the party.

The school, open from 7 to 6 five days a week, has children from ages 2½ to school age, with kindergarten and pre-kindergarten groups. The six teachers each have groups of seven children, as required under their state license. The children are prepared to meet school routines by their own regular daily schedule, centering around a hot lunch and two daily snacks. The children are also required to have two hours of rest period each day.

Bettie Cook, the director of the center, says that the children will have an advantage over other children when they begin school. "They are taught to adjust to other children in preparation for inter-relations of elementary school. They learn to be compatible with others without losing their own individuality." She stressed too that the teachers had all had child care experience in college and on the job.

The child development center is part of the Humphries Development company, and is located north of Valley School in the Greenpark Mobile Home village.

Reporter news round-up

by Mildred White Wallace

Some of our prominent laymen tell me they are offering serious loss due to wild dogs attacking and killing their cattle. It is reported that he dogs are vicious and so far to remedy has been found to stop the damage they continue to inflict on dairy herds. Anyone have a suggestion?

We hear many unfavorable comments these days regarding the U.S.A. and some of its leaders, but a country can't be all bad when in only one evening's appeal over TV for tornado stricken areas $88,000 is donated by people located in more fortunate parts of the country. And where else on the face of the globe can you point to a country where over a million drivers eased up on the accelerator when the president -- not exactly at the peak of popularity, asked that drivers slow down to conserve gasoline?

Enjoyed a visit last week with Ron Cason, a talented reporter from Birmingham News. Ron plans to spend some time in the county writing facts about Shelby County, people and things of statewide appeal. More and more people are manifesting interest in this fast expanding section of Alabama and that's good news.

A feature story in the Birmingham News recently stated that there were only two people now living in the once thriving town of Shelby. Dr. Dougald McMillan of Birmingham wrote a letter

Calera native Barrett named plant manager

Julious W. Barrett was named plant manager of Garan Incorporated of Philadelphia, Miss. on April 1.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Barrett of Calera.

In his new position Barrett is responsible for all production and administrative activities in the Garan plant.

He received his BSIE degree from the University of Alabama in 1966 and a masters degree from Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla. in 1970.

Barrett, his wife Sandra, and his two children, David and Deanna will reside in Philadelphia.

Louis Ponders dies April 17

Charlie Britnell conducted the last rites honoring Louie Alvie Ponders, former resident of Columbiana, on April 18 at 2 p.m. from the Baptist Church in Spruce Pine. Mr. Ponders died in a Tuscaloosa hospital April 17.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Rachel Ponders; three daughters, Mrs. Ruth Ann Smitherman, Mountain View, Mo.; Mrs. Frances Pearson, Cahoon, Mo.; Barbara Goff, Wilsonville; two sons, Johnny Ponders of Spruce Pine; and Raymond Ponders, Columbiana; and nine grandchildren.

Interment in Spruce Pine Cemetery.

back to his native heath wanting to know when Milton Bird had moved out?

If anyone doubts the fact that the Shelby area -- especially near the river, is not a growing, thriving town, they should ride down that way and take a look around at the beautiful new homes now surrounding the Coosa River. Some, more luxurious than others -- but all definitely geared to gracious living down south.

If you are a lover of natural scenic spectaculars, take a look at the sunset from a home we recently visited. Truly an ideal place to go where "the cares of the day fold their tents like the Arabs and silently steal away".

Choice lots are still being sold as more people move into Shelby County. The potential for still further expansion is unlimited. We still maintain that a rustic motel with modern conveniences built down Shelby way on old man river would truly be a wise investment for someone with a "Lot of greenbacks". This section of the county has everything to make it the best recreational spot we know anything about. Sooner or later, it will be recognized and someone with keen vision will come along and do something about it. It is then - we shall have the pleasure of saying -- "I told you so on May 2, 1974".

Columbiana clubs meet in April

by Mildred White Wallace
On the evening of April 23 in the Club Room of the Library Building a "Remember When" travelogue, by Virginia Fowler, took members of the Vignette Club on a journey back to the year 1949 when the club was organized.

Special guests for this interesting flash-back were charter members who were honor guests. They included: Lorene Falkner, Myra Falkner, Dot Bearden, Margaret McGhee, Lucy Turner and Sis Wallace. A few spectaculars from the "Land of Used-to-Be" were recalled and all agreed that those were the "good old days".

Scrapbooks were on display from 1949, the year the club was organized and sponsored as a Federated Women's Club by the Columbiana Culture Club through the year 1973.

New officers for 1974-75 were installed. They were: Helen Reinhardsen, president; Jan Smith, vice-president; Gail Farr, secretary; and Mildred Holcombe, treasurer.

Three new members were welcomed and added to the club's roster: Sue Hand, Jo Ellen Smith and Mrs. Sam Dobbins.

The Novella Club of Columbiana met on Thursday evening, April 25, at Shelby County Area Vocational Center. Delectable refreshments were served by hostesses Elsie Harison, Kaye Corder, and Anita Sloan.

Charles Knowles, guest speaker, and director of the Center, spoke on the theories and practices of vocational education and provided a slide tour of the facilities at the Vocational Center. A question and answer period was followed by a short business meeting. Results of the Club's annual Cancer Drive were announced, and plans for the renovation of the community park were discussed.

Mr. and Mrs. N.A. Jones will host a picnic for the young people and their friends from First Baptist Church at their Lake near Clanton on May 4. Swimming and a picnic lunch will be enjoyed, during the afternoon.

by Mildred White Wallace
The annual Spring Festival, featuring students in Physical Education Department, at the Columbiana Elementary school, directed by Shirley Wallace, will be presented May 3 on the school grounds beginning at 1:15 p.m.

The program will feature ball sticks, parachute, tumbling, western and modern square dancing.

The presence of all parents and friends of the school is requested.

Randy Glenn and his rhythm makers known as the "Back Way Home" boys have been engaged to play for four evenings at the J and M this week. They will begin the series Wednesday evenings. Randy is a home town boy and he will be glad to see his friends while on this engagement.

Dr. Harold Hall is among the M.D.'s in Orlando Fla. this week attending a medical seminar.

Jackie Joiner is joining Dr. Bob Mullins and his family this week for a trip mixing business with pleasure. Dr. Mullins will attend the medical seminar in Orlando, and Mrs. Mullins and the children will enjoy Disney World.

Friends of Pat Brown Duke (Mrs. Warren) are anxiously awaiting the outcome of surgery this week performed at Carraway Hospital in Birmingham. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Brown are with her. Dr. and Mrs. Duke now reside in Talladega but their many friends in Columbiana, their former home town are deeply concerned.

Regret to learn that Mr.

C.O. Foster is a patient in Shelby Memorial.

Just a reminder to parents of children who will begin school next September. Children entering Kindergarten or the first grade anywhere in Alabama must show proof that they have received immunization shots against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, polio, measles and rubella (German measles). They will not be admitted should this immunization program be neglected.

Sarah Vick, Baptist Church

Clerk is attending a secretarial meeting at Judson College this week. Mrs. Largin is in charge of the office during her absence.

Friends of Mrs. Jerriel Trice (Pat) of the Kingdom Community will regret to learn that she is a patient at St. Vincent's hospital following surgery.

At the recent observance of Law Day at University of Alabama, Randolph Mott Fowler, son of Judge and Mrs. C.M. Fowler, was presented the Dean's Award for outstanding service to the Law School. (A coveted honor richly deserved. Personal congratulations!)

Members of the Youth Council of First Baptist Church in Columbiana were elected Sunday evening following the worship hour. They are: Keith Franks, president; Frank Owen, vice-president; Lisa Sims, secretary; Susie Smith, John Stroud, and Connie Walton, council members.

These six will serve with the Youth Committee in planning further youth activities for this year.

The country is being swept by a new haircutting revolution.

Women are rediscovering the pleasures of unteased, carefree, swinging hair. Teasing is known to hide the best haircuts and the worst. Brush it away and a hairstyle must rely on the cut alone.

Logan Martin filling to summer level

Alabama Power Company is nearing completion of authorized filling of its reservoirs to normal summer levels at Logan Martin Dam near Vincent and Pell City, according to R.E. Huffman, manager of system operation for Alabama Power.

Under rules approved by the Federal Power Commission and the Corps of Engineers, U.S. Army, at this reservoir is 505 feet above msl at the dam during winter and early spring.

Elevation 460 at Logan Martin Dam is the maximum normally permitted from January 1 to April 1. Under usual conditions, the elevation increases as the reservoir is filled during April and early May. From around May 7 to about October 1, elevation 465 is the maximum normally permitted under the regulations.

Downstream from Logan Martin on the Coosa River are Alabama Power's Lay, Mitchell, and Jordan Dams, which are not operated as seasonal storage reservoirs. While the levels of these reservoirs change somewhat due to variations in flow, they generally stay within a few feet of the same elevation throughout the year.

In view of the fact that Alabama Power Company is filling its reservoirs to permitted summer levels, owners of homes, boats, piers, and other facilities near the water should be alert to the conditions and, where necessary, take protective measures.

The comprehensive development of the Coosa River by Alabama Power, authorized by a special act of Congress, was begun in 1958 and completed in 1968 in full compliance with licenses issued by the Federal Power Commission for the projects. The $194-million program, one of the largest ever undertaken by an investor-owned electric utility, has resulted in many public benefits, including flood control, water supply, and recreation.

The three uppermost hydroelectric projects on the Coosa River alone have provided about 57,000 acres of water playground for Alabamians and have become favorite vacation spots for thousands of tourists. In partnership with federal, state, and local governments and private interests, Alabama Power is continuing to develop future plans for the most effective use of these recreational facilities.

State residents respond to energy crisis

The people of Alabama have responded to the "energy crisis" by taking fewer trips and driving lower speeds which resulted in less gasoline being used.

According to measures monitored by the Energy Economics Division of the Alabama Energy Management Board, Alabama motorists have cut back their trips by two to three percent, and have lowered gasoline consumption six to seven percent during the first quarter of 1974, as compared with the same period in 1973. The added benefit of less driving and driving lower speeds in the reduction in traffic fatalities.

Conservation measures such as vacations closer to home, reduced business travel, car pooling, and closer observation of the lower speed limit will help the national effort to decrease our need for foreign energy supplies, according to the Alabama Energy Management Board.

Westover news--

Springtime brings activity

by Elsie Archer Jones
Spring is "busting out all over", and we expect the air to be filled with the singing of the birds, the young leaves turning from the tender shade of their early brown to the shades of green which catch your eyes as you sit in a shaded spot and gaze thoughtlessly through the woodlands, but still as you gaze you become aware of the fact that other things than the wonders of nature are becoming transformed, also. After the holy services of Easter have been held, you can feel that the pulses of some of the people with whom you are surrounded have awakened also and they are busy with their tasks which the warmer days have brought about. The gardeners are looking for some new tools, or sharpening up and repairing their old ones. Now, it is the big garden tractor which you watch pass along the road instead of "Old Dobbin" and the plowstock. The luscious strawberries are keeping some of us busy picking, cleaning, and preparing them for further uses. I wonder who can't smile when they see the baskets filled with these earliest fruits of Spring.

Another sign of spring, of which I am conscious, is the desire of the people to come together more and participate more in their church and social affairs. I wish to particularly mention the singing at Mt. Zion on Saturday night. All the parking areas available were filled as the crowds gathered to listen and to participate in the singing led by the Peacemakers and the Campbell family from Birmingham. From all reports which I have heard, it was a most enjoyable affair.

Another group composed of Mrs. John Hill (Susie) and her sister, of Bessemer, Mrs. John Lemon (Rachael), went down to State Line Baptist Church, near the line of Georgia to visit and attended to "Fa-So-La" singing there. I have been told that this type of singing has been revived in many places, and have read of one college which is offering this as one of their regular courses in music. I have just passed on my own copy of "Sacred Harp" singing book to some of the younger generation, hoping that they will be interested in helping preserve this part of our Folk-singing which was once very popular among some of our people.

One of our very loveliest group of young matrons who are active in the Prospect Baptist Church held a "Quilting Bee" last week at the home of Mrs. Maxine Cooper. This was a "first" for several of the young matrons present, but they reported that it was "a ball". Attending this were: Mrs. Linda Green, Mrs. Fran Brooks, Mrs. Jewel Sims, Mrs. Vera Grantham, Mrs. Fay Goode, Mrs. Judie Whitten, Mrs. Vera Grantham, Mrs. Charlotte Landers, Mrs. Ludie Grantham, and "Mom" Cooper.

On April 25, a surprise birthday party for Jimmie Brooks, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Cooper. Just about all the gang were there with all their children. The games of Charade and Beat the Clock were enjoyed by the adults while the children were romping outdoors, not to mention the abundance of good-eating which was enjoyed by everyone.

On Saturday afternoon, April 27, a tea was given at the home of Mrs. Charlotte Landers, honoring Miss Jennifer Cooper, daughter of Rev. Ray Cooper, pastor of Prospect Baptist Church. She is the bride-elect of Jimmie Butler, of Sterrett. Mrs. Landers was hostess, and the ladies of the church were co-hostesses. A bountiful supply of nice gifts were presented to the honoree.

The color scheme was yellow and blue. The refreshments were pineapple slush with white cake decorated with green and yellow flowers, and mints and nuts.

There were 53 guests registered for this occasion.

Guests of the Byron Boggans on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. James Moore and two children, Teresa and Eddie Moore; Mrs. Delores Riccio, with her three sons - Steve, John, and Anthony; also their children from Birmingham who are regular guests over the weekend in this lovely home. Sam and Linda Boggan have moved a trailer on their place on Pumpkin Swamp Road. Linda says, "It's just like going back and playing in a doll house".

George Egger underwent heart surgery at Birmingham Medical Center on Monday. His condition at the time of this writing was not known, but his prognosis is critical.

Silas Dobbs has been moved from the hospital to Briarcliff Nursing Home. He says that he is well satisfied there, but not quite used to the place.

Mrs. Hoyt LYbrand has returned to her home after spending several days at the Shelby Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Allan Simmons was honored with a birthday dinner, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Linda and husband, Jimmie Fraser, in Pelham, and their three grandchildren Rose, Teresa, and Amy, who are students at Shelby Academy. In the morning the Simmons visited her sister, Mrs. Lonnie Mason, in Lipscomb. The afternoon was spent riding ponies and their horses.

On the light side

An Australian engineer finally convinced his wife that it wasn't necessary for him to come along when she went shopping for her clothes. One day, in a crowded lingerie department, she held up the briefest mini-panties and asked if he liked them. "Oh, I think they're marvelous," he said. "But I don't think your husband would approve of them." She has never asked that he accompany her again.

All most men want from their wives are affection, admiration, encouragement and the ability to live grandly on an inadequate income. (Oneonta Star, N.Y.)

When M. Parker of Somerset, England, called a dentist on a Monday morning to have a raging toothache attended to, the receptionist said, "I'm sorry but emergencies are on Thursday at nine o'clock."

Dear Friends,

This county has a very important election coming up next week. In my memory, I can not recall an election where there have been more people registered or more interest generated than in the present Sheriff's race. This is as it should be because people must be interested in their government before it can work for them. This interest has raised some questions that I would like to try to answer.

Why are you supporting Bill Thompson for Sheriff?

When I returned home a little over a year ago I felt then, and still feel now, a sense of gratitude to the people of our county. I have tried to find some way to repay the debt that I feel. I have for sometime felt that the Sheriff's Department could be better run if some basic changes were made. A few changes that I feel should be made are as follows:

- (1) Law enforcement should be a cooperative effort between the Sheriff's Department, Municipal Police Departments, State Troopers, and other state agencies. Such a cooperative effort would make available to this county the special services of these other agencies without additional cost to our taxpayers.
- (2) At present, the Sheriff's Department is the only agency that can serve alias warrants. This power should be extended to State Troopers and Conservation Department Officers who obtained the first warrant of arrest in the case. This is a needless expense to the taxpayers as fines in such cases go to the State.
- (3) As Shelby County Officers are on a salary system, lawful fees collected by the Sheriff's Department should be paid into the County General Fund. Pistol permit fees, I believe, fall into this category and should be paid into the General Fund. At present they are not.
- (4) City Police Departments should remain under local control. Juvenile service workers should be employed and work under the Juvenile Court Judge. Prisoner work release programs should be under control of the Trial Judge. I do not believe that the Sheriff's Department should sponsor any program to do other wise.

I made my decision to support Bill Thompson solely on the issues. I believe if these changes are made the Sheriff's Department can better serve the needs of our county and be better prepared for the growth that is coming to our county. I believe that now is the "Time for a Change". The choice is yours in the voting booth and, after all, that is what Democracy is all about.

Thank you for all that you have done for me, and it is my hope that my involvement in this campaign, regardless of the outcome will, in some small way contribute to making this county a better place to live.

Sincerely,

Rick McDow

HAPPY BIRTHDAY - It's big smiles and Happy Birthdays from Kim and Amy Snow across the miles to Dallas, Texas, where their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Barnes, formerly of Calera, are celebrating their birthdays this week. Kim and Amy are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Snow of Calera.

State garden club to tour forest

The Garden Club of Alabama will tour the Talladega National Forest in their annual spring conservation "show me trip" on Wednesday, May 8.

Featured on the tour this year will be the Talladega Scenic Drive, Coleman Lake Recreation Area, the Pinhoti Trail, the newly expanded Cheaha State Park, and other projects.

The U.S. Forest Service is host of the "show me trip" which will start at 9:30 AM at the Forest Service office on Highway 46, on the East edge of Heflin, Alabama.

Tourguides, Joy Patty of the Forest Service and Mrs. Robert Humphrey of the Garden Club have planned the tour to start with a trip up the Talladega Scenic Drive to Cheaha State Park where a picnic lunch can be eaten or dine at the new restaurant in the Park. The tour will include other stops after lunch.

The Talladega Scenic Drive is a two-lane scenic highway which when fully completed will run down the top of the mountain range from Piedmont to Bull Gap near Sylacauga - some 75 miles. The Drive is being planned and constructed through the coordinated efforts of the U.S. Forest Service and the State Highway Department. The visitor is able to see the Anniston-Oxford area approximately 10 miles away and many other scenic attractions from vista points along the Drive.

Cheaha State Park, on the highest mountain in Alabama, has been improved and expanded at a cost of over $1.9 million to include additional facilities. The visitor will get a look at the new Cheaha Lodge Motel and the other beautiful facilities as a part of the tour. Forest Supervisor Arthur D.

Woody and State Garden Club President Mrs. Thomas Miller invite the general public to come to Heflin on May 8 and enjoy this annual event of the Garden Club of Alabama.

That defendant, Cheney Lime and Cement Company is a corporation, its address being Allgood, Alabama 35013.

That plaintiffs after most reasonable and diligent search and inquiry were unable to locate the following named persons to determine whether or not they are living or dead, and if living, what their ages and addresses are at the present time, and if deceased, the names, ages and addresses of their heirs or devisees, and that the same are unknown to the plaintiffs, said persons being as follows: Lee Byers, Charles E. Esman, I.K. Brinkerhoff, W.E. Brinkerhoff, C.B. Brown, W.M. Richards, W.P. Bowdon, T.J. GETTING READY FOR SCHOOL - "Shots" are no fun, but they save lives. As a result of a new Alabama law, youngsters entering kindergarten or the first grade next fall must show proof that they have been immunized against six diseases. (Alabama Department of Public Health photo by Leon Johnson.)

Four months required for immunizations

A minimum of four months is required to complete the basic series of immunizations now required for children entering school in the fall. "To meet requirements of a new Alabama law, parents must begin immediately to bring their children's immunizations up-to-date," reminds Dr. Frederick S. Wolf of the Alabama Department of Public Health.

Children entering kindergarten or the first grade anywhere in Alabama next fall

Eleven foresters registered

The State Board of Registration for Foresters met in regular session this week and approved eleven foresters for registration. Those granted licenses, listed with their school, present position, and location were: Louis Wallin Sloat, Stephen F. Austin State University, Nacogdoches, Texas; Southern Forest Products Association, Montgomery; Thomas Royal Eubanks, University of Idaho, International Paper Company, Mobile; Edward Hugh Sosbe, Purdue University, Georgia Pacific Corporation, Winfield; Leonard Foster Smith, Jr., University of Florida, International Paper Company, Lockhart; James Walker Hilderbrand, Louisiana Tech University, International Paper Company, Mobile; must show proof that they have been fully immunized against six diseases; diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, polio, measles and rubella.

Hugh Logan Hill, University of Florida, International Paper Company, Mobile; William Earl Wilkins, Auburn University, Alabama Forestry Commission, Florence; Carl Frederick Muller, Auburn University, T. R. Miller Mill Company, Brewton; William Paley Boyd, University of Florida, International Paper Company, Troy; William James Reynolds, Mississippi State University, U. S. Forest Service, Haleyville; and Roger Charles Larson, Auburn University, Charles R. Page, Jr. & Associates, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Most Alabama children begin the basic series of recommended immunizations, but an alarming number do not complete it, notes Dr. Wolf, who is director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases. Even if the basic series was completed during infancy, a child will periodically need boosters to be adequately protected against some diseases.

By the age of six months, a child should have completed his basic series of immunizations. DPT and polio boosters are recommended at 18 months and before entering school.

Diseases introduced into a school population can spread rapidly if the children are not immunized.

Use of vaccines has reduced the incidence of certain communicable diseases to such an extent that many parents have become apathetic, observes Dr. Wolf.

School officials will not be allowed to admit a child who does not present a certificate of immunization or a certificate of exemption. The necessary certificates and immunizations may be obtained from private physicians or the county health department.

Final game slated at UM home field

The University of Montevallo baseball team is scheduled to play its last home game this Thursday starting at 1 p.m. The contest will pit the Falcons with conference rivals St. Bernard College of Cullman.

The Montevallo team now has a 14-21 overall record this season and a 5-6 conference showing.

"We're looking forward to an exciting game against St. Bernard this Thursday," commented UM baseball coach Bob Riesner. "It would help to have some strong support from the fans for this last home game."

Five games were played last week with the Falcons winning three. Steve Wald pitched the first on as UM defeated William Carey at Hattiesburg, Miss., 4 to 3. In another road game, Springhill handed Montevallo a loss with a final score of 2-5.

The Falcons lost again to Birmingham Southern in what could have been a close game. UM was leading Southern until the fifth inning and in the seventh the Montevallo team ran into pitching trouble and gave up seven runs. Final score in the contest was 12-3.

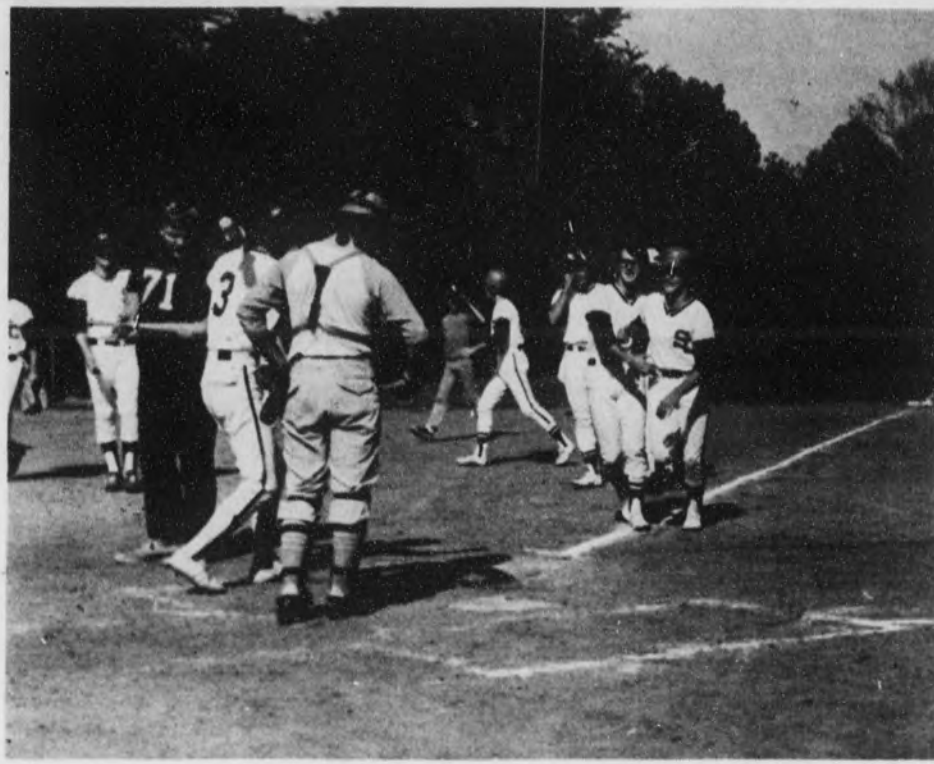

UM added two more wins to their record as they won their first doubleheader of the year. Pitching the first game against the University of Alabama Birmingham Billy Thom: as allowed five hits and added a shut-out to his record. UM won 6-0. In the second match the Falcons fell behind 7-0 in the first two innings but came back and collected 14 runs to defeat UAB 14 to 10.

"Our hitting for the last two weeks is what we've been searching for," said Coach Riesner. "We have five boys who are now batting in the 300's."

Lee Bragan, Powderly; Sammy Dunn, Fairfield; Terry Jones, Birmingham; Charles Parker, Mobile; and David Williams, Birmingham, are all batting over the 300 mark as of the first of this week. Williams is the steadiest hitter for the Falcons. He has collected three homeruns and five doubles so far this season.

Bobby Thomas is leading the pitching staff with five wins and three losses to his credit. Steve Wald, who is pitching with a strained back, has a very good 1.96 Earned Run Average.

HOME RUN - Members of the Shelby County High School line up to congratulate Dee Dill for hitting a home run in a game against Calera High School last Wednesday. The Wildcats defeated Calera by the score of 10-0.

Fish yarn of the week--

Million-dollar minnow loose on Waxahatchee

As told by an unnamed Shelby fisherman.

One day about three years ago I was fishing down on the bank of Waxahatchee Creek here below Shelby. It was one of those nice, hot days in late May -- the kind that turns the iron in your blood into lead in your britches.

Anyway, there I was on the bank of the creek feeling finer than a frog's hair with my cane pole and minnow bucket.

I was sort of lying on my back with my shoes off testing the water temperature with my little toe when I looked up and saw a feller I know coming down the bank.

From the way he was grinning like a 'possum and walking like a crab, I could see that he wasn't feeling to unbad.

He came up to me and with a whoop, he pulled a Listerine bottle out of his pocket that didn't look like it had anything like Listerine in it.

"Herego," he said in a jolly voice. "How's about taking some of this here mouth wash. It'll help you along a little."

I'd just brushed my teeth at home a little while earlier so I told him I'd admire to pass it up.

"My minnow here might could use a little though," I added. "Might be he has bad breath seeing as how I haven't had a bite in over an hour."

I hauled up my line with the minnow still on the hook looking like he had just heard the angelic choir singing.

"This ought to make him jump around a little," my friend said as he pried open that minnow's mouth and poured about a teaspoonful of the white liquid down his gullet.

I guess just then the angelic choir must have been drowned out by Gabriel's horn.

That minnow let out a whoop and jumped back into the water with so much force that my cane pole almost bent double.

After a few minutes there came the biggest 'asplashing and thrashing around that I've ever seen. I couldn't tell what was happening until I saw something jump up out of the water about fifteen foot in the air.

It was the biggest catfish I've ever seen--and my little minnow had him by the whiskers and was just whipping that big cat all over the creek.

All of a sudden the line on my pole broke and I thought it was all over. The fish splashed around some more and disappeared down under the water.

I looked over at my friend to see if I'd have a witness to the event when I told the doubters back at the store, but the skunk had eased down to the water's edge and commenced to take a nap with that mouth wash bottle still in his hand.

All of a sudden I heard the awfulest noise behind me. That little minnow popped up out of the water, slung the catfish around his head two or three times and threw it up on the bank. Then, I'll be darned if that minnow didn't just walk up on the bank on his tail fins, like.

Well sir, he just pranced down that creek bank like he wasn't afraid of any man nor beast, grabbed that bottle out of my friend's hand and jumped back into the creek.

I knew I couldn't tell the story and have anybody believe unless I could get that minnow first. Why, I guess he'd bring a million dollars if the truth were known. That's why I've been back to that same place on the bank for near about three years now, but I haven't seen one trace of him yet!

Remember! The Shelby County Reporter is running a fish yarn contest. If you have one that can top the one printed in this week's paper, we want to hear from you. The Reporter will print the best story submitted to us by a local fisherman each week. Mail all entries to Fish Story, P.O. Box 947, Columbiana, AL 35051

Alabama Wildlife Federation finds--

Legislature, inflation causing program's ruin

A serious financial crisis is facing Alabama's game and fish program, according to Alabama Wildlife Federation President N. Cosby Hodges of Birmingham.

Hodges made his observation following submission of a special committee report on game and fish finances. Chairing the committee was Hoyt Kirk of Scottsboro, immediate past president of the AWF.

The Alabama Wildlife Federation is the state's oldest and best known conservation organization, having some 16,000 dues paying members from all over Alabama.

Kirk stated that his committee members had gone into all areas of game and fish finances and were alarmed that the situation had become so critical in such a short period of time.

"We expected to find problems resulting from inflation and additional problems created by acts passed by the last session of the Legislature," Kirk declared. "But no member of the committee foresaw the impact of the combination of the two on the ability of the Game and Fish Division of the Conservation Department to perform necessary functions," he added.

"Members of our study committee were impressed," Kirk said, "by the sound business procedures employed by the Game and Fish Division in attempting to meet its obligations and to insure hunters and fishermen of Alabama receive maximum benefits from their hunting and fishing license dollars."

But, no matter how effective these management practices have been, they aren't enough to offset the rapidly dwindling revenues of the Game and Fish Department," Kirk declared.

He said that the financial crisis was brought about by a combination of three things -- inflation, legislation requiring unforeseen expenditures and insufficient income. It is the first two that have created the most problems, Kirk said.

He noted that, as an example, fertilizer purchased by the Division has risen from $63 to $140 per ton; 50 horsepower outboard motors used by conservation enforcement officers have increased from $665 per motor to $1165; automobiles purchased for $1883 five years ago have increased in cost to $3,688; 50-foot seines used by fisheries biologists have risen from $78 to $147.

Kirk also pointed out that a major revenue problem was caused by the last Legislature. "Legislative acts authorized certain expenditures but failed to appropriate revenue," Kirk declared. "This has caused major drains on the financial resources of the Game and Fish Division. The situation is critical, as regards Alabama's Game and Fish program, long regarded as one of the very best in the nation. And we think the public should be apprised of the fact," Kirk added.

CAUGHT AT SPRING CREEK -- Kenneth Brasher of Shelby holds two large bass he caught on Spring Creek Tuesday April 23.

Sixty-eight cars and drivers enter Sunday's Winston 500

A field of 68 cars and drivers has entered this year's Winston 500 stock car race. The event will be run on Sunday, May 5, at the Alabama International Motor Speedway.

Top contenders in the race will be three-time Grand National Champion David Pearson, Richard Petty, Bobby Allison, Gale Yarborough, Donnie Allison, Buddy Baker, George Follmer, Charles Glotzbach, Gary Bettenhausen, and Benny Parsons.

The Winston 500 will be the first race for the small engines on a track 2 1/2 miles or longer. Most of the top drivers have indicated they will be running with either 351, 364 or 366 cubic inch engines. Of course, Moore and his 351-cubic inch Ford have run at AIMS in the past.

Pole position qualifying, with the first 20 positions in the 50-car starting field up for grabs, is Thursday, May 2. Baker captured the No. 1 spot last year with a record-breaking speed of 193.435 miles per hour. It is the fastest speed turned at the sprawling 2.66-mile trioval since NASCAR made the 3,800-pound stockers more competitive with carburetor restrictor devices. Bobby Isaac holds the absolute record at 199.658 miles per hour, set in 1970.

The green flag for the May event is set to fall at 1 p.m. CDT. The winner of the race could possibly earn as much as $30,000.

Mrs. Susan Goldwater, Jr., wife of Arizona Congressman Barry Goldwater, Jr., will drive the pace car. Mrs. Goldwater will be following other women dignitaries who have driven the pace car, Mrs. Cornelia Wallace, wife of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, and Mrs. Dollie Cole, wife of General Motors Chairman of the Board Edward Cole.

BIG STRING -- Jerry Keef of Birmingham holds a string of bass he caught April 17 while fishing out of Bozo's Camp. He caught the fish on worms and spinner bait.

BLIND GOLFER - Chelsea High School students recently met and talked with blind golf champion Charley Boswell in a career education unit about the world of the blind. Mrs. Ruby Pruett (right) and eighth-graders Jimmy Musso, Misti Thornburg, and Genie Davis join Boswell, winner of 28 golf championships and owner of an insurance agency, has been blind since World War II.

Chelsea High students study world of blind

The world of the blind is the focus of a number of Chelsea High students' study this term. One of the career education units this year centers around the blind person, how he overcomes his handicap, and goes on to a successful career.

The unit, developed by Mrs. Ruby Y. Pruett, is built around the novel Gift of Gold by Beverly Butler, a blind novelist. The story is about a young blind girl's college days and her preparation for a career. Along with the novel, the students are studying the problems of blind people and how they adapt to them.

The students recently were visited by Charley Boswell, the Alabamian who won seventeen national golf championships and eleven international championships since being blinded in World War II. Boswell has also been a successful businessman, having his own insurance company since 1953.

Boswell suggested that the best way sighted persons could be of assistance to the blind is to always treat them like any other people.

Other activities planned in the unit include a blindfold session, a visit from some blind college students, a film on the famous Perkins School for the Blind, and a trip to the School for the blind in Talladega.

County Girl Scouts meet for spring festival

by Mrs. Hugh Youngblood Girl Scout Neighborhood
Chairman

On Friday afternoon one hundred twenty Girl Scouts and their leaders convened at Rolling Hills Camp for the 1974 Verla Price Spring Festival.

The theme for this year's camping event was "Hands Around The World." Each troop chose a country to represent and to learn about its dress, foods, and customs.

Countries represented were Japan, Switzerland, Ireland, Mexico, Great Britain, Germany, Ceylon, Israel, Scotland, Italy, and the United States.

At the Friday night assembly program each troop did a folk dance from their chosen country or presented a skit which told something about life in that particular country.

The girls wore colorful costumes and made name tags designed to indicate the country they represented. The assembly program opened with the flags of all the countries being posted as the girls sang "It's A Small World."

Friendship Circle and sang Taps.

Troops and their leaders participating in the event were:

Alabaster: Junior Troop 37 - Mrs. Robert Brown, Cadette Troop 503 - Mrs. Charles Garrett.

Montevallo: Brownie Troop 121 - Mrs. Norman McMillan, Junior Troop 168 - Mrs. Robert Readal and Mrs. Robert Moss, Junior Troop 449 - Mrs. James Wilkinson and Mrs. Kneeland Wright, Cadette Troop 323 - Mrs. Karl Perkins and Mrs. Sanford Colley, Senior Troop 142 - Mrs. Morris Bird.

Calera: Brownie Troop 194 - Mrs. Robert Todd and Mrs. Carl Vance, Junior Troop 153 - Mrs. Lewis Knowles and Mrs. Howard Frederick, Cadette Troop 181 - Mrs. S. A. Jernigan and Mrs. W. G. Holcomb.

LUNCH TIME - The annual Girl Scout spring jamboree was a two-day camping experience for girls from all over the county. Troop 503 from Alabaster settles down for a lunch break. Julie Booth and Charlene Garrett take shelter from the heat as they sit in the shade waiting for sloppy joes. The chefs are Julia Taylor, Renee Holsombeck, and Melody Acker. The girls find that cooking on a wash tub is not too different from cooking at home.

Building not ready

Food stamp sales delayed

"We will not be able to start issuing food stamps on May 1 as planned, because the building is not ready," Mrs. Nell Fulton told the Reporter Monday.

"We expect to have this completed at an early date and hope to begin selling stamps during May. The Public will be notified as soon as we can begin selling stamps."

The problem with the building, Mrs. Fulton said, is that the cashier's office is not completed, and insurance regulations will not allow the stamps to be sold until it is ready.

When issuance begins, stamps will be sold every day

Monday through Friday, 8 to 5, at the former commodities food distribution office in Columbiana.

Applications are being taken at any time during office hours and will continue to be taken Mrs. Fulton said, for those who want to apply for food stamps but have not yet done so.

Because he's always available for personal consultation. He makes sure you understand your doctor's instructions, for instance.

Shelby County news--twenty-five years ago

by Mildred White Wallace
The spacious grounds of Shelby Springs were never better utilized to provide pleasure for others than on last Saturday when Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hall opened their hospitable doors to students from the Blind and Deaf School of Talladega. Coach Waites from SCHS furnished the recreation during the day and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hall hosted the occasion and served a barbeque dinner to the students before they returned to Talladega.

Another surprise awaited them when they returned to their dormitory. Mr. Hall had purchased and installed a TV set for those who could see to enjoy.

He is also chairman of the board of trustees of Shelby Training School and representatives from all black schools in the county were present to share in the gala occasion.

Sen. Bruce Henderson, one of three gubernatorial states rights candidates for Governor of Alabama visited our office this morning. He was accompanied by Albert Scott of Alabaster, one of his most enthusiastic supporters.

Two men arrested on fishing charge

Commercial fishermen were at it again on Lay Lake. But again, they were apprehended and arrested.

Last Friday morning officers of the Department of Conservation arrested Carl Wayne Thomas and Timothy Jerome Nailer both of Guntersville.

They are charged with fishing with commercial gear in a closed area. Their trial date has been set for June 7.

Captain Ed Lightsey, and Conservation officers Doyle Wood, Donald Turberville and Chester Gardner arrested the men at 5:45 a.m. Friday morning.

The location of arrest was in the river just below the Wilsonville steam plant.

The men had about 300 pounds of fish in their possession.

Among the fish were some Mississippi Blue Humpback or "government blue" catfish. The fish are so-named because the government stocked Lay Lake with these fish just after Lay Dam was completed in the late 1920's. Sports fishermen seldom catch a "government blue" the arresting officers said.

Other fish in the haul were buffalo, bullheads, and mud cats.

Arresting officers brought the fish, the boat, motor and nets back to Columbiana, where they will be held pending the trial. The fish were given to the county jail.

Following lengthy litigation last year, commercial fishing was ruled illegal in the Coosa River - Lay Lake area.

CONFISCATED CARGO - State conservation officers confiscated this boat, motor, sacks of nets and catch of catfish about 5 a.m. Friday morning. The confiscated goods were taken from a group of commercial fishermen operating illegally on Lay Lake in the vicinity of the Wilsonville steam plant.

Cancer detection clinic to be held May 19, 26

Shelby County Health Department will hold a special cancer detection clinic on May 19 and 26 between 1 and 5 p.m. Services will be free. Public health nurses Jean Duffey, Rhonda Johnson, Judy Bentley, Frances Davidson, and Gwenn Fisher will give the examinations with Dr. Hall and Dr. Phillips on call. Secretarial help will be provided to take care of the paper work.

The Cancer Society is working with the Health Department on a volunteer basis in this effort. They will hold clinics in different areas of the county, to be announced later, on the same Sundays as the Health Dept. clinics. Transportation will be provided to these clinics and babysitters will be available at the clinics. Trained medical personnel will administer these examinations which are painless and only take five minutes.

This cancer detection program has been heartily endorsed by the Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

"Deaths from cervical cancer are preventable if detected early," states Dr. Frederick S. Wolf of the Alabama Department of Public Health. "However, Alabama's death rate from uterine and cervical cancer is high."

County burglaries on the rise

"Yes, there are a lot of burglaries in the county, and, no, they're not going to stop," is the way District Attorney Harold E. Walden summed up the burglary situation in answer to a question from the Shelby County Reporter this week.

He indicated that it would take ten or more men on constant patrol to clear it up. Walden went on to imply that new homes, built far apart from one another, are natural targets for burglars.

The owners are often away during the day, and burglars watch for signs that no one is at home. Most of the burglaries occur during the daytime, Walden said.

He said that burglaries used to be committed mostly by local people, but now there is an influx of outsiders.

The items they are most likely to steal are color television sets, guns and other items that are easy to transport and difficult to identify.

The burglars do not seem to be operating as a ring, Walden said. They appear to be individuals, or groups of two or three who burglarize the homes and fence the stolen goods in Georgia or in Birmingham.

There have been recent burglary outbreaks in Beat 12, around Montevallo and a few cases recently in Westover.

The district attorney said that most of the burglaries have been solved.

New bank proposed in Pelham location

A new national bank has been proposed for Pelham, to be located next to Cardwell Furniture. Birmingham attorney Bob Vance told the Reporter that he and other organizers have joined together to plan the bank with an initial capital of $1.5 million.

Vance stated that the papers "have formally been accepted for filing" by the regional office of the national banks, and that it is now under consideration. He added that the organizers have bought the four acres next to the Pelham furniture store, and have studied preliminary sketches for the proposed bank.

The five organizers are Vance, state senator Obie

HAROLD E. WALDEN

Littleton, Mike Mahan, Dr. Harry Phillips, and Leonard Hulquist. If the bank is approved, they will join with Vondall Gravelle, Dr. Kermit Johnson, and Dale Parker to comprise the initial board of directors and hire a bank president.

Because of restrictions involved with starting a national bank, Vance told the Reporter that there is very little that they can release to the news media at this time. "Contrary to what the Birmingham News said, we don't know how long it will take," stated Vance. He indicated that it could be some time before the proposed bank is approved.

In Beat 12--

Suit filed questioning law

A class action suit was filed in Shelby County Circuit Court last Friday which asks that the Shelby County law on zoning be declared unconstitutional. It also seeks to have the district lines by which members are elected to the county commission re-drawn.

The suit was filed by a group of citizens of Beat 12, where the fourth election on the subject of zoning was held last Tuesday. The suit claims that the election is being improperly held and asks that the results of the election not be certified.

The lawsuit also asks that the Shelby county planning commission be enjoined from spending county funds. It asks that the individual members of the Shelby County commission repay money that has been spent on the planning commission and on holding the zoning elections in Beat 12.

In attacking the make up of the county commission, the suit alleges that the county district lines should have been re-drawn when the name of the Board of Revenue and Control was changed to County Commission several years ago. It alleges that the population of some of the districts is bigger than other districts, and therefore the people do not have equal representation on the county commission.

The law that this lawsuit seeks to declare unconstitutional was passed nine years ago and was hailed at the time as progressive legislation.

It authorized the county to establish a planning commission and it also authorized each voting beat of Shelby County to hold elections to decide if that beat wanted to accept zoning. There have been three previous elections in Beat 12 on the question and each time the citizens have turned down zoning. There have been two elections in Beat 21, where the proposal also lost. No other beat in the county has held an

Runoffs certain in county elections

Runoff is the word from the Tuesday elections. The three hotly contested county races will race again for the runoff election in June.

Sheriff C. P. "Red" Walker and Billy C. Thompson will meet again at the polls to decide the race for sheriff that drew wide interest everywhere in the county. Thompson gave the veteran sheriff the stiffest competition that Walker has faced in running for sheriff.

Unofficial votes which were admittedly inaccurate, showed that both Walker and Thompson had polled about 4,500 votes each. Some figures said that there was a 12 vote difference. Others said there was a 70 vote difference. Allen Wilson polled about 400 votes, enough to throw the close race into a runoff.

In the District 2 race for the Shelby County Commission, Doug Ballard and L. C. "Curt" Payne are headed for a runoff. The unofficial vote in that district showed Ballard with 1078 votes, Payne with 1,063. Billy Rockcoo with 836 and Victor Scott with 752.

District 4 apparently will have a runoff between J. Alpha Lowe and the incumbent, I. D. Stone. Lowe led the seven man race with a vote of 550. Stone had 366 votes. Alton Parker polled 295 votes and Wayne Archer came in fourth with 245. Bill Shaw polled 108 votes, Curtis Lynne took 78, and E. B. Brasher had 30 votes.

Ed Burdett handily won the office of Coroner, defeating his opponent Claude Fore of Columbiana by a vote of 4,175 to 2,547.

In Beat 12, where zoning was another hot issue, zoning was defeated again by 90 votes. Approximately 545 persons voted against zoning and 454 voted for it.

Voting was so heavy in Beat 12 that 200 persons were still lined up at the polls at closing time. The polls stayed open to accommodate them.

It appeared that in the race for Senate district 18 Obie Littleton was the winner. He carried Shelby County throughout the evening as returns came in. He was ahead in the county by 3,621 to 2,296 at presstime. In Chilton County Littleton was leading 3,492 to 1,233. However, Proctor was carrying Talladega County by 3,046 to 1,074. Several boxes were still unreported in these figures.

In Senate district 17 Shelby County resident Tom Stubbs led his opponents in the county tally. However, the vote from the Jefferson County precincts was so slow in coming in that a definite trend could not be reported at presstime.

In House district 52 Calvin

Smith of Vincent appeared to have lost to Sonny Moore of Vandiver. Moore carried the Leeds boxes which put him over the lead that Smith had throughout the rest of the district.

House district 53 saw a close race between Lewis "Pig" Headley and Curtis Smith. Early reports from Chilton County were Headley, 2,887 to Smith's 2,782. The incomplete tally in the Shelby County part of the district was 553 votes for Headley and 671 votes for Smith.

The Shelby County vote for House district 51 in the northwest part of the county went for Jabo Waggoner with 354 votes. Jake Vaughn polled 281 votes and Charles Beavers had 184 in very incomplete returns. None of the candidates in this race resides in the county.

The Shelby County Board of Education will see an incumbent return and will see a woman's face on its membership for the first time in history.

Doug Kent of Alabaster won his bid for reelection by a vote of 3,976 to 1,989 for H. A. "Doc" Rubin.

Elaine Hughes of Montevallo won her first bid for political office by polling 3,902 votes over her opponent W. E. "Bill" Morris of Alabaster who polled 2,278 votes.

As expected, the new district lines and other new regulations in reporting the votes made the vote counting process slow.

The first returns did not arrive at the courthouse until more than 50 minutes after the polls had closed. Those returns were from one of the Columbiana boxes. The next report was brought in by Jack Brantley who had driven all the way from Maylene.

Poll workers did not telephone in results as they had done in the past, and agonizing minutes dragged on for candidates and vote counters alike.

But after the Maylene returns, others started arriving too fast for the tabulators to keep up with.

The courtroom was packed from 7:30 until 9:30 with barely enough room to mill around.

Bill Davenport called out the returns for most of the evening, spelled occasionally by Jim Roper.

In returns in the sheriff's race, it appeared that Bill Thompson carried the Columbiana boxes with a wide margin. He also led in nearly all the boxes in the eastern half of the county by wide margins.

In Calera, and Montevallo, the two candidates polled nearly the same number of votes.

In Alabaster C. P. "Red" Walker led the polling. Walker's biggest margin came in Beat 12 where voting was very heavy. His margin was reported at about 400 votes in that beat, but this was an unofficial return.

Only one person in the courtroom kept a tally on the returns in the governor's race, since everyone conceded that George Wallace would win by an enormous margin. He was well ahead throughout the evening as votes came in from Shelby County's precincts.

Billie Splawn named Wilton postmistress

Wilton gained a new postmistress Friday, May 3, when Mrs. Billie A. Splawn was sworn in at a ceremony at the town postoffice, before a small group of friends and neighbors.

Promising "to uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States," repeated the oath recited by Birmingham sectional manager James H. Smith.

That evening apart was held in the honor of Mrs. Splawn at the home of Mrs. Carolyn Terrell, and was hosted by Mrs. Terrell and Mrs. Beverly Leach. About thirty people attended the party given by Mrs. Splawn's fellow postal clerks.

ELECTION DAY - Shelby County voters went to the polls Tuesday in a turnout bigger than previously expected. These Alabaster residents were on the scene at the city hall, where the poll workers checked their names from the list. They, like other voters, showed strong interest in the hotly contested county offices.

MHS BEAUTIES - Finalists line up after the judging in the 1974 Queen of Roses pageant at Montevallo High School last Saturday. Patricia Tolbert and Patricia Thompson were both chosen Miss Congeniality.

Campaign expenses filed

Many local candidates filed their list of expenses and donations with Shelby County Democratic Party chairman, L.C. Payne last week, as required by the new rules of the Democratic Party.

However, because of a mix-up in instructions on the forms, many local candidates apparently mailed their reports to the State Democratic Headquarters. The state address appeared on all the forms and Payne said he expected that the state committee would return them to him this week.

Contributions of more than $100 were to be reported at this early filing, but the list of expenses was not required.

However, many candidates listed both. Expenses and donations for the last week of campaigning did not have to be included in this preliminary report.

In the sheriff's race, C.P. "Red", Walker listed expenses of $2,126.21 and donations of $1,125.

Billy Thompson showed expenses of $3,567.83 and donations of $3,622.19.

Allen Wilson listed expenses of $1,352 and no contributions.

Elvin Hill, only candidate for superintendent of education, listed no expenses and no donations.

W.E. "Bill" Morris, running for the board of education listed no expenses and no donations.

In the race for county commission, district 2, Doug Ballard showed expenses of $1,643.36 and no donations.

L.C. Curt Payne showed donations of $50 and expenses of $937.17.

In the race for county commission, district 4, E.B. Brasher listed expenses of $300.60 and no donations. C.B. Lynn showed expenses of $244, and no donations.

I.D. Stone's report listed expense of $257.20 and J. Alpha Lowe listed expenses of $513.43. Neither of the last named listed any donations.

Fifteen days after the election, all candidates are required to file complete records which show contributions of more than $10, listing the name of the contributor. They must also file records which list all their expenses.

New Alabaster ordinance--

Right turn on red allowed

Motorists driving through Alabaster may now turn right on red at city traffic lights. At its bi-monthly meeting last Monday night the Alabaster council passed an ordinance allowing drivers to turn right on red at all city traffic lights unless otherwise posted. The ordinance was voted into law after first being introduced before the council at its last meeting.

In other action the Alabaster council voted to accept a low bid of $5,500.50 by Central Alabama Paving Company to pave the parking lot behind the new water and gas building.

The council also accepted a bid of $580, made by Birmingham Ford and Tractor company, to purchase a new cutter for mowing purposes.

The Alabaster city council voted to hire one paid fireman to serve as fire chief. The new employee would have the same starting salary as a beginning patrolman.

Norman C. Elliott was appointed to the auxiliary police force by the council.

Recreation and sanitation councilman Jack Zuderhoek reported on bids received for proposed construction of the Alabaster city park. The amounts of the two bids received were $282,000 and $152,000.

Zeiderhoek reported that the city of Alabaster had roughly $70,000 to spend on the project. He planned to cut various facilities from the project and report back to the council at the next meeting.

Zuiderhoek was also named by the council to serve on the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission.

Two residents addressed the council about a neighbor who received a citation to cease operating a business in his basement. They were told by the council that the business involved was located in an area of the city zones for residential housing.

Grand Jury to be recalled

The Shelby County grand jury will be recalled next Monday.

District Attorney Harold E. Walden told the Reporter that there is a docket of 65 to 70 cases for the grand jury to consider. He said about ten of the cases were continued from the last term but the rest are new cases.

Beat 12 suit

The county has 30 days to reply to the charges before a hearing date can be set.

In addition to holding up the results of the zoning election in Beat 12, the lawsuit could also affect the outcome of the county commission races in districts 2 and 4 which were held Tuesday.

According to courthouse speculation, if the suit is successful in having the county re-districted, then new commission elections might have to be held and the candidates elected Tuesday may not be able to serve without the new election.

The suit was filed by eight men, led by Cecil F. Adam who is known to be an opponent of zoning in Beat 12. The others are R. Howard Bailey, William L. Caldwell, K. P. Fulmer, Lindon Benson, R. L. Johnson, James Rutherford and Carl W. Street.

Hope to have borne good fruit

by Milton Bird

There was a little wind blowing. It ruffled the feathers on a robin. A quiet, listless wind you wouldn't have noticed unless the robin had looked up, watching for danger. A little carefree wind that came out of nowhere and seemed headed for nowhere, but just content to play with the robin and a half dozen post oak leaves that fluttered as the wind passed by.

Far off, in the west, the sun had set a cloud on fire, a little ragged cloud no bigger than a frazzled cloth. One cloud, blazing, and a little glow on the horizon and the blue sky stretched out as far as the eye could see.

I was out here hunting a wild plum tree. And I was having trouble. Maybe because the last time I saw it I was about twelve. And now I'm so close to 70 it scares me.

But I went on anyhow. Up a little hill and down the other side and through a hollow with a stream running. Red horse minnows played in the water and a chub or two who looked lost and hunting a place to hide.

It was a beautiful afternoon. More beautiful now with the sun a big red ball just above the hill and the little ragged cloud blazing. Even without finding the plum tree this would have been a marvelous way to spend an afternoon.

But I wanted to find the plum tree. I wanted to see it again. The same as I'd like to see that little patch of freckles that left my nose over fifty years ago and never came back.

I was on top of another hill watching a ground squirrel scamper up a log when I saw it. It wasn't forty steps beyond the log, on the bank of the same stream I had seen the red horse minnows in half a dozen hills back.

It wasn't too much to look at, gnarled as it was, with half the limbs dead now, still stretched up toward the sky. The years had tarried here, and left their mark, but the old tree was only half dead, and the few good limbs, their leaves turning crimson, held little patches of purple plums. The same as they had over fifty years ago.

The sun was gone now, except for a flame or two that streaked the cloud and a glow of orange that tinted the sky. It was a good mile to the highway and I would have to hurry.

Somewhere between the old plum tree and my car the thought struck me. A thought at first that turned into a wish and then a prayer. I prayed that when I got old and gnarled and half dead that those who passed my way would not notice that I had changed with the years, but that I had borne good fruit.

The same as the old plum tree that I found again after more than fifty years.

Cooper literary revival continuing

by Fred Cooper

I'll have to say one thing for whoever put together the 1974 Montage, the University of Montevallo yearbook. They have excellent taste.

They chose to follow the format of the 1966 Montage pretty closely, so closely, in fact, that they used almost the same cover, the same layout idea, and in one instance, the same wording.

Eddie Kridakorn, Larry Bishop, and I are pleased. Edit was the editor of that year's Montage and took most of the pictures. Larry did the cover design and I wrote the copy. It was one of the three that I wrote while I was at Montevallo and I always felt that overall, it was the best. Apparently somebody over there now agrees with me.

I must admit that it was a shock when I first picked up the book from a chair in Steve Huffstutler's new Birmingham digs. From the back it looked like the 1965 issue but I found out when I opened it that it wasn't that at all.

It was the 1966 issue, updated.

Whenever I run across a new yearbook, I like to read the copy to see how the present writer handled the same stuff that I wrote about several years ago. I was reading the College Night section copy and I remarked to Huffstutler that some of the wording was familiar. In reading further, I found to my surprise and pleasure that it was not only familiar, most of it was mine. That's when I looked at the cover and layout. It was like finding an old friend, almost.

I don't know why nobody's ever bothered to copy the 1964 yearbook. That was the one where the editor resigned toward the end of school and Jack Fleming, the S.G.A. Director of Communications, was called upon to put it together.

Steve was on the Publications Committee at the time and was concerned about the school having no yearbook so when Jack went before them and asked for help, he responded quickly.

He volunteered me to write it.

Having never written an annual but having been volunteered, I did the only thing I knew to do. I commandeered Ed Blake, a man with a peculiar sense of humor. We decided that since all the good themes had been taken, this one wouldn't have a theme. Instead, we built it around a cartoon figure of a falcon arriving at the school and going to its accustomed place in the Tower, not realizing that carrillons had been installed. As the falcon sat from his high perch and surveyed the campus, the bells started, knocking him from his spot. The entire page was filled with "Bong, Bong, Bong, Bong, etc." It became known as the "Boing-Boing" annual. I would write a line, then Ed would write a line. We'd laugh awhile and then I'd write another line. Steve got disgusted and left.

I found out when the book came out that summer that Ed had given me full credit for authorship, an honor I really had not sought.

This did, however, establish me as the yearbook copy writer and the next two were slick Kridakorn productions.

I maintained last year about this time that we were in the middle of the Octo-annual Fred Cooper Memorial Literary Revival because the Reporter ran a column I wrote as a senior eight years before and Huffstutler lifted some of the intro to the 1965 yearbook -- with my blessing -- for a speech at a student banquet. Now I see that the revival is continuing. Eddie, Larry and I are flattered.

Thanks, hey.

RECEPTION HONORS McMILLAN -- University of Montevallo president Dr. Kermit Johnson, left, congratulates Dr. D.R. Wallace will leave impact on politics

by Don Wasson

All of us have lived through one or more experiences of which we could say when it was ended, that it wasn't so bad now that it is all over.

Such was the first Democratic primary of 1974 and while there are a few loose ends left to wrap up, we can hope that it left no lasting animosities, no never-healing scars.

To nobody's great surprise, even Sen. Gene McLain, Gov. George C. Wallace waltzed to a third term victory, the only man to ever win an election as governor for three terms. It seems fitting, in an odd sort of way, that that honor was reserved for Wallace, because no single Alabamian has had as profound an impact on the warp and woof of Alabama life.

So long has been the Wallace tenure that it has been possible for him to change his outward image almost 180 degrees and while the size of the black vote he got has not yet been fully computed, it is apparent he got more black votes than ever before.

He got white votes, too, that he never really thought he would get and the size of his victory is bound to have an impact on those who shape the policies of the national Democratic Party.

There are those who say that that was his only reason for running but they don't know the man very well. Wallace has the simple conviction that he can run state government with one hand and campaign for the presidency without sacrificing the quality of state service.

Wallace also points out that practically every presidential candidate has another job -- senators, governors, representatives and what have you.

He has had the happy circumstance of having been governor during an economic boom period, which has seen state resources on a dizzying climb upward -- much more rapid than the inflationary spiral. Except for this first term, and a few aberrations in 1971, he was not called upon to raise taxes.

And yet during his tenure, appropriations for education have been increased over 300 percent and teachers salaries are, at long last, nearing the national average.

His quest for the presidency brought him to within perhaps a single breath of death and no doubt a good number of his votes on Tuesday came from those who were, if nothing else, expressing their silent thanks for the sacrifice.

Two years from now he may be seeking the will of the wisp, the Democratic nomination for the presidency and may accept, if the grand prize is again denied him, the nomination as vice president. Whatever the future holds in that respect, there is little doubt that George C. Wallace will leave his imprint upon the policy and the stance of the national Democratic Party and, for that matter, on the national Republican Party.

There are those who say that the Wallace administrations were corrupt and there are unquestionably some in the hierarchy who are guilty of wrong doing of one kind or another. But it is doubtful that anywhere East of Eden will we find a state administration of a national administration entirely free of wrongdoers.

Wallace has in hand the blueprint for a reshaping of state government which would put state administration far and above what we have now. In the next two years, it is expected that there will be changes in his cabinet.

Alabamians can hope that the governor, with a fresh mandate, will devote all of his attention in the weeks and months to come, to implementing the basic plan for reorganization of state government.

It would be his most memorable achievement.

Shortages related to government

Letter to Editor:

During the past few years we have been experiencing a sharp increase in product prices including food. Why is such an increase more numerous recently. Think back to the following incidents.

Approximately one year ago, house wives and food industries were complaining about high meat prices. Many people, especially the ones not involved in the raising of livestock, did not understand the true situation. High meat prices were mainly caused by high feed prices. High feed prices were caused by the people representing the Federal Government selling our grain reserve storage supply to foreign countries even before a new crop could be made. Who lost by this transaction? This kind of robbery, (and robbery here is described as grain sold for kick back money to politicians who are for self-gain rather than working for our country), caused many livestock and grain farmers to quit farming. The cost of feed to the farmer was exceeding the profits on livestock sales. Also the government was buying cheap grain at times there were quantities and selling to other countries at times of shortage rather than selling back to our farmers.

In other cases, our farm land is being divided up and sold as home and industry sites. Land is more valuable now as market real estate than as being used to provide food. Farming is no longer profitable. The Federal Government has bypassed the farmer to show increased interest in business where more money is involved.

As farmers begin to quit and farms destroyed by the progression of time, how will this country feed itself? Not from other countries because they are starving now from the same procedure we are taking. How did we get ourselves in this shape? We are not being represented by the Federal Government in such a way as to replenish ourselves. Our farmers are being used as a bargaining source to deal with foreign countries in food and grain sales which we need here, our people in Washington who suppose to be there to run our country, are there only to make gains for themselves because once they have been there, they are financially secure.

The U.S.A. is starving itself out by paying taxes to support Foreign countries, pay money hungry politicians to investigate other Gov. officials because some are stealing more than they are, and not encouraging American farmers by price supports.

What's going to happen when you have to trade your car or your home for enough food to get your family through a year? You say that will encourage farmers to start raising crops again? Sure, it will, but where are they going to raise them?

You might ask your neighbor down the street for a loan. The one who represented you in Washington for several years and whom you voted for each time, but he probably doesn't know you now. You could tell him you were that farmer that made three cents profit on a 30 cent can of tomatoes last year. But he probably will only remember that as the time he helped that middleman packer sell your tomatoes to Russia for 60 cents a can.

What can we do? Well, we can sit around for another few years until we reach an extreme shortage and then decide. We went through a so called gas shortage and survived. But we don't have to have gas to live. Could we live through a food shortage? You be the judge. How long would it take to replenish the U.S. with excessive food. You can help by being someone who cares. Endeavor to put honest people in charge of our country.

State law provides for garbage fee

An inquiry was made in a letter to the editor two weeks ago raising the question of whether or not it is legal for Shelby County to collect a 45 cent fee for picking up garbage under the new county-wide plan.

The Reporter checked the official records of the County Commission on the date when the new service was adopted and found that the law provides specifically for the 45 cent fee.

Counties were given authority to establish a fee under the State of Alabama Act No. 771 which provided for the control and disposal of solid wastes throughout the state. That law mentions that a fee may be charged and/or that services may be contracted for by others.

The Shelby County Commission, in setting up its law to conform with the requirements of the state law, on February 24, 1974, contracted with four garbage pickup services giving each a franchise in one of four geographical areas. In the law adopted by the County Commission, the 45 cent fee was provided for in each of the four franchises.

The county law sets up the rate of $3.90 per month for once a week pickup and $5.40 per month for twice a week pickup. In the agreements with each of the franchisers, the law spells out, "The above rate includes 45 cents per customer per month (residence) to be remitted to the Shelby County Commission to help defray costs of the solid waste program. Payment and accounting will be made by the tenth of the month." The agreements also say that "ten percent of any negotiated fees for multiple residences...institutions, etc. will be due to the county and paid in the same procedure as above."

Records showing these agreements are found on pages approximately 520 through 532 of the official records of the minutes of the Shelby County Commission.

On the lighter side

A chap we know is back from a visit to his hometown are related that his bank has installed a hidden camera. "They may be in trouble," he says. "They haven't been robbed yet and the film expires in a week."

Morale is always at its lowest point in a factory or office in which the employees get more fun out of the work they duck than the work they do. (Hal Boyle)

In Washington, D.C., a staff member of the Democratic National Committee told a labor editor, "One of the most obnoxious parts of the whole Watergate affair for you might be the fact that not a single piece of the wire-tapping and bugging equipment was union made."

CIA, gasoline top weekly report

by Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- We have now learned what the Central Intelligence Agency wants to censor from an explosive new book.

The CIA spooks are more worried about the publication of this book -- "The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence" -- than they are about Chinese missiles or Russian spies. They have managed to censor key portions of the book prior to publication. However, through our own CIA sources, we have learned what the secret agents want to hide.

For the most part, the censored material is more likely to cause embarrassment than the toppling of governments. The book, written by former CIA man Victor Marchetti, tears away the fearsome curtain of secrecy surrounding the CIA to reveal a covert circus.

For example, we have learned that the CIA censored a story about an agency desk man who flew to Japan in hopes of getting involved in some cloak-and-dagger adventures. A Russian spy, it seems, was supposed to defect to U.S. agents. But Russian operatives followed their turncoat comrade. A tug of war ensued, with each side pulling at the defector's arm. The Japanese police arrived, and threw the whole crew in jail for disturbing the peace.

The CIA also blue-penciled its attempts to bug a house cat. And they have censored information about their abortive efforts to place a listening device in range of Chinese missile sites.

Unfortunately, the CIA may win its fight to censor Marchetti's book. If it does, the First Amendment will once again be subverted in the name of national security.

Gas Shortage May Recur:

All around the United States, motorists are breathing a sigh of relief. Gas lines have disappeared and, amazingly, gasoline stations are open on weekends in many areas. Even the average price of 60 cents a gallon and the huge oil company profits don't seem to bother the consumers enough.

The abundance of spring, though, is merely an interlude between crises. Our sources at the Federal Energy Office warn that long gas lines are probable this summer unless conservation measures work. In July, the nation's refineries will again switch their attention to heating oil. If gasoline consumption continues to increase, another shortfall of supply will result.

Gasoline shortages are only one problem. Another is the familiar thermostat. Last winter, the nation was told that temperatures in the mid-60's were healthy. By dialing down, there would be substantial savings of heating oil. This summer, though, we will be told to "dial up" to an uncomfortable 78 degrees. Power companies in several areas, including the nation's capital, may be unable to meet peak air-conditioning demands. Unless thermostats are set higher, there may well be widespread power failures, brownouts and blackouts.

In sum, Americans will have to learn to restrict their energy use year-round. The days of conspicuous consumption of energy are over.

Nixon Priority: Congressional relations, now more than ever, have been given the highest priority in the embattled Nixon White House.

Throughout most of the Nixon Administration, senators and congressmen have complained bitterly about the cavalier way the White House congressional liaison operation treated them. A top aide to a conservative Republican House member told us "We got better service when Johnson was President."

The specter of impeachment, however, has changed things. More invitations for White House galas are now being sent to Capitol Hill. Even congressional staff members of both parties are being invited to the White House.

There are also ominous whispers of White House politicking in the cloakrooms of Congress. So far, the talk is limited to suspicion and rumor, but it is widespread.

Two years ago, when Nixon was at the height of his power, he was criticized for not campaigning for Republican candidates. Now, he campaigns, and the candidate loses. But the change in strategy is clear.

Previously, Presidents invited Members of Congress to the White House mainly for bill-signing ceremonies. Recently, however, Nixon invited Southern members to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue just to transmit a legislative proposal to the Hill. On his recent political swing through Mississippi, Nixon took pains to provide free air travel to the state's conservative pro-Nixon congressional delegation.

The campaign for anti-impeachment votes in Congress, it appears, is well underway.

Watergate Dissension: The acquittal of former Attorney General John Mitchell and Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans has sparked a tempest of controversy behind the well-guarded doors of the Watergate prosecutors.

As we reported two months ago, the case against Mitchell and Stans was jeopardized by over-eager government lawyers. Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski's attorneys felt the New York prosecutors were pushing ahead without their chief witness, Robert Vesco. He, of course, is still in the Caribbean, ducking subpoenas.

The Jaworski lawyers, much to their dismay, have now been proven right. And the Mitchell-Stans verdict has resulted in a good deal of soul-searching about the cases against other Watergate defendants.

Some members of Jaworski's team, for example, are upset because a few of the Watergate figures have been charged with lying to the FBI. There is such a law, of course, but it has never been taken too seriously because the FBI is only an information-gathering agency. It does not administer the laws.

Other Watergate prosecutors are up in arms because defendants in the Ellsberg burglary have been charged with violating the civil rights of Ellsberg's psychiatrist. The Civil Rights Act ought to be used only in racial cases, some prosecutors feel, and not to nab the cloak-and-dagger crew who investigated Ellsberg.

In short, some of Jaworski's lawyers secretly fear that a number of their indictments may be found faulty and thrown out. This could not help but influence future juries to sympathize with the defendants.

Methodists hold open house

The First United Methodist Church of Montevallo held open house in its newly renovated building Sunday afternoon.

All of the church except the sanctuary was remodeled over the past year, and visitors were escorted on tours by members of the church.

Purpose of the renovating program was to make better use of the available space, according to Dr. D.R. McMillan, member of the building committee.

The plan of the ground floor kitchen, auditorium and church school rooms was completely changed, allowing greater flexibility with the use of folding walls between many of the rooms. A church parlor was also added on the ground floor.

The nursery was expanded, with an additional outside door for the use of the children.

The pastor's study was built on the second floor, next to the library. The choir room was redesigned so that the choir may practice using the same seating arrangement that they use in the sanctuary.

New furnishings, draperies, carpets and lighting enhance the architectural changes.

Serving as chairman of the building committee during the year-long renovation was Dr. M.L. Orr, Jr. Serving on the committee were M.S. McGehee, J.W. Scott, S.M. Mahan, Sr., J.A. Brown, Jr., Dr. D.R. McMillan, Mrs. L.C. Parnell, Agee Kelly, James D. Seaman, S.M. Mahan, Jr., Terry Arnold and Robert Hughes.

Architect for the renovation was William Arnold, Jr. of Birmingham. Contractors were Hallmark and Bachus, Inc. of Birmingham.

The approximate cost of the extensive remodeling was $125,000, with a nucleus of $35,000 left to the church as a bequest from the R.E. Whaley estate.

METHODIST OPEN HOUSE - - Montevallo Methodist minister Rev. Paul Gauntt welcomes visitors Dr. and Mrs. Bill Fancher to the church open house. The church has completed renovation of the entire ground floor and several rooms upstairs.

Remember Mother

on her day May 12th

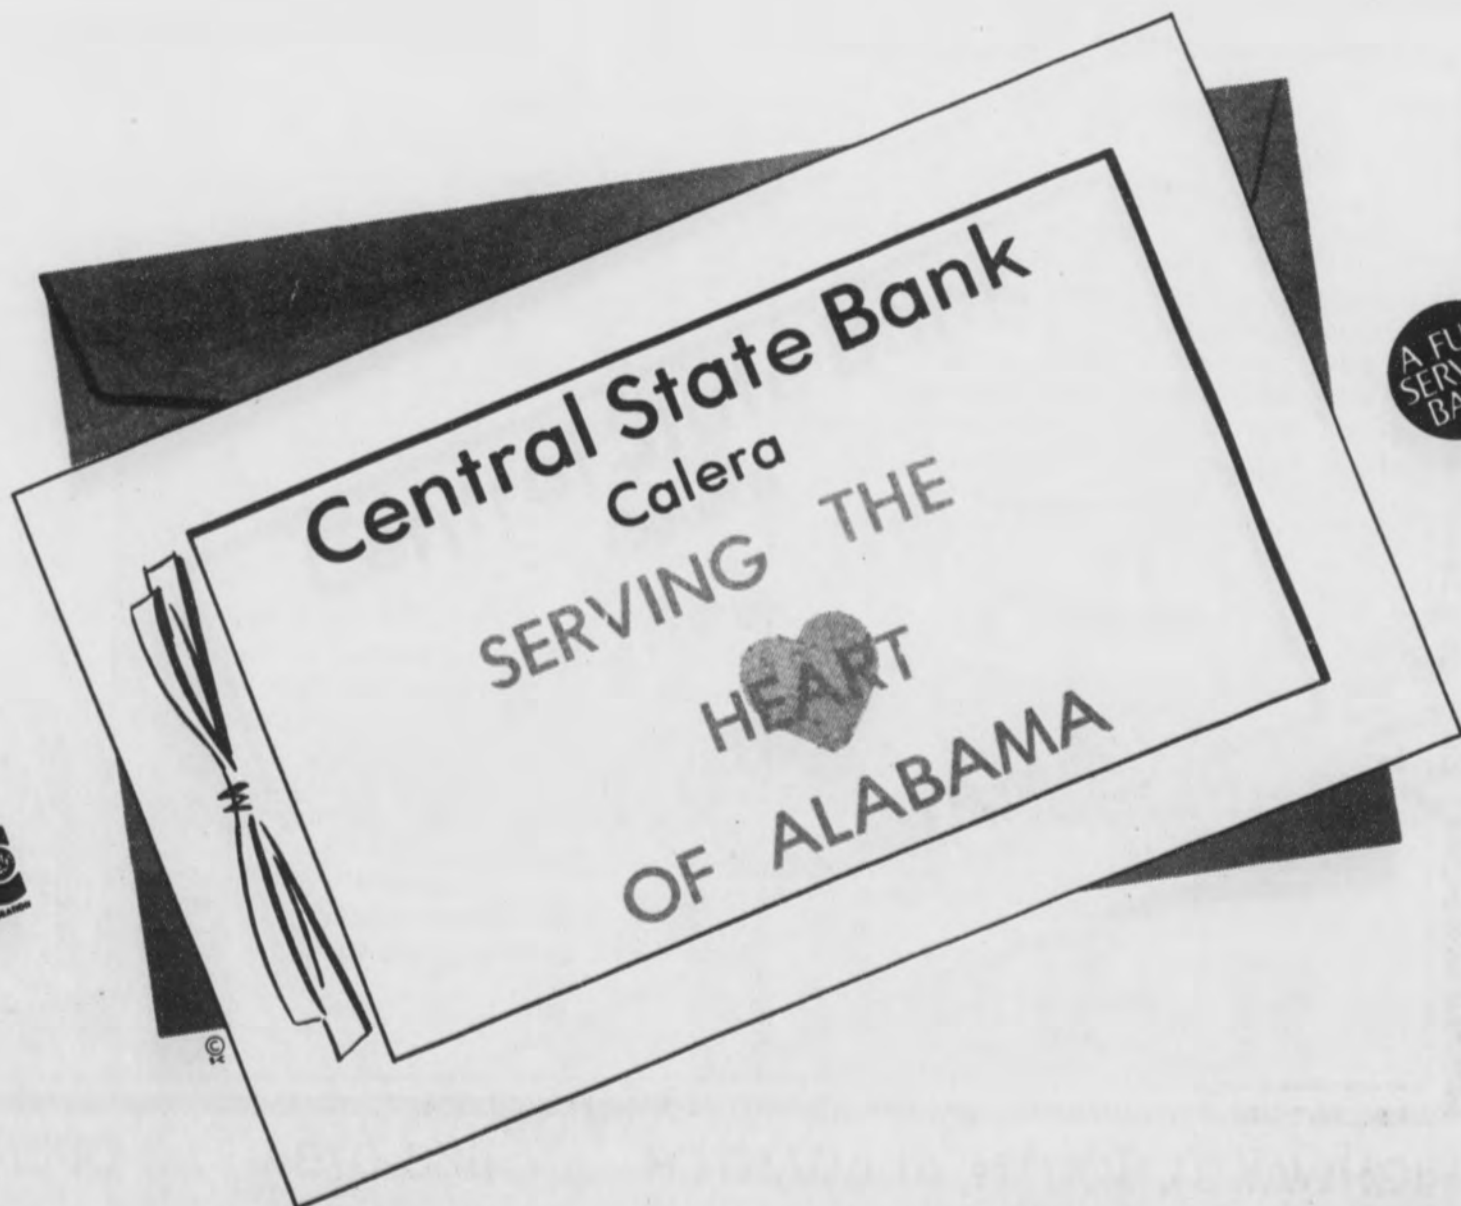

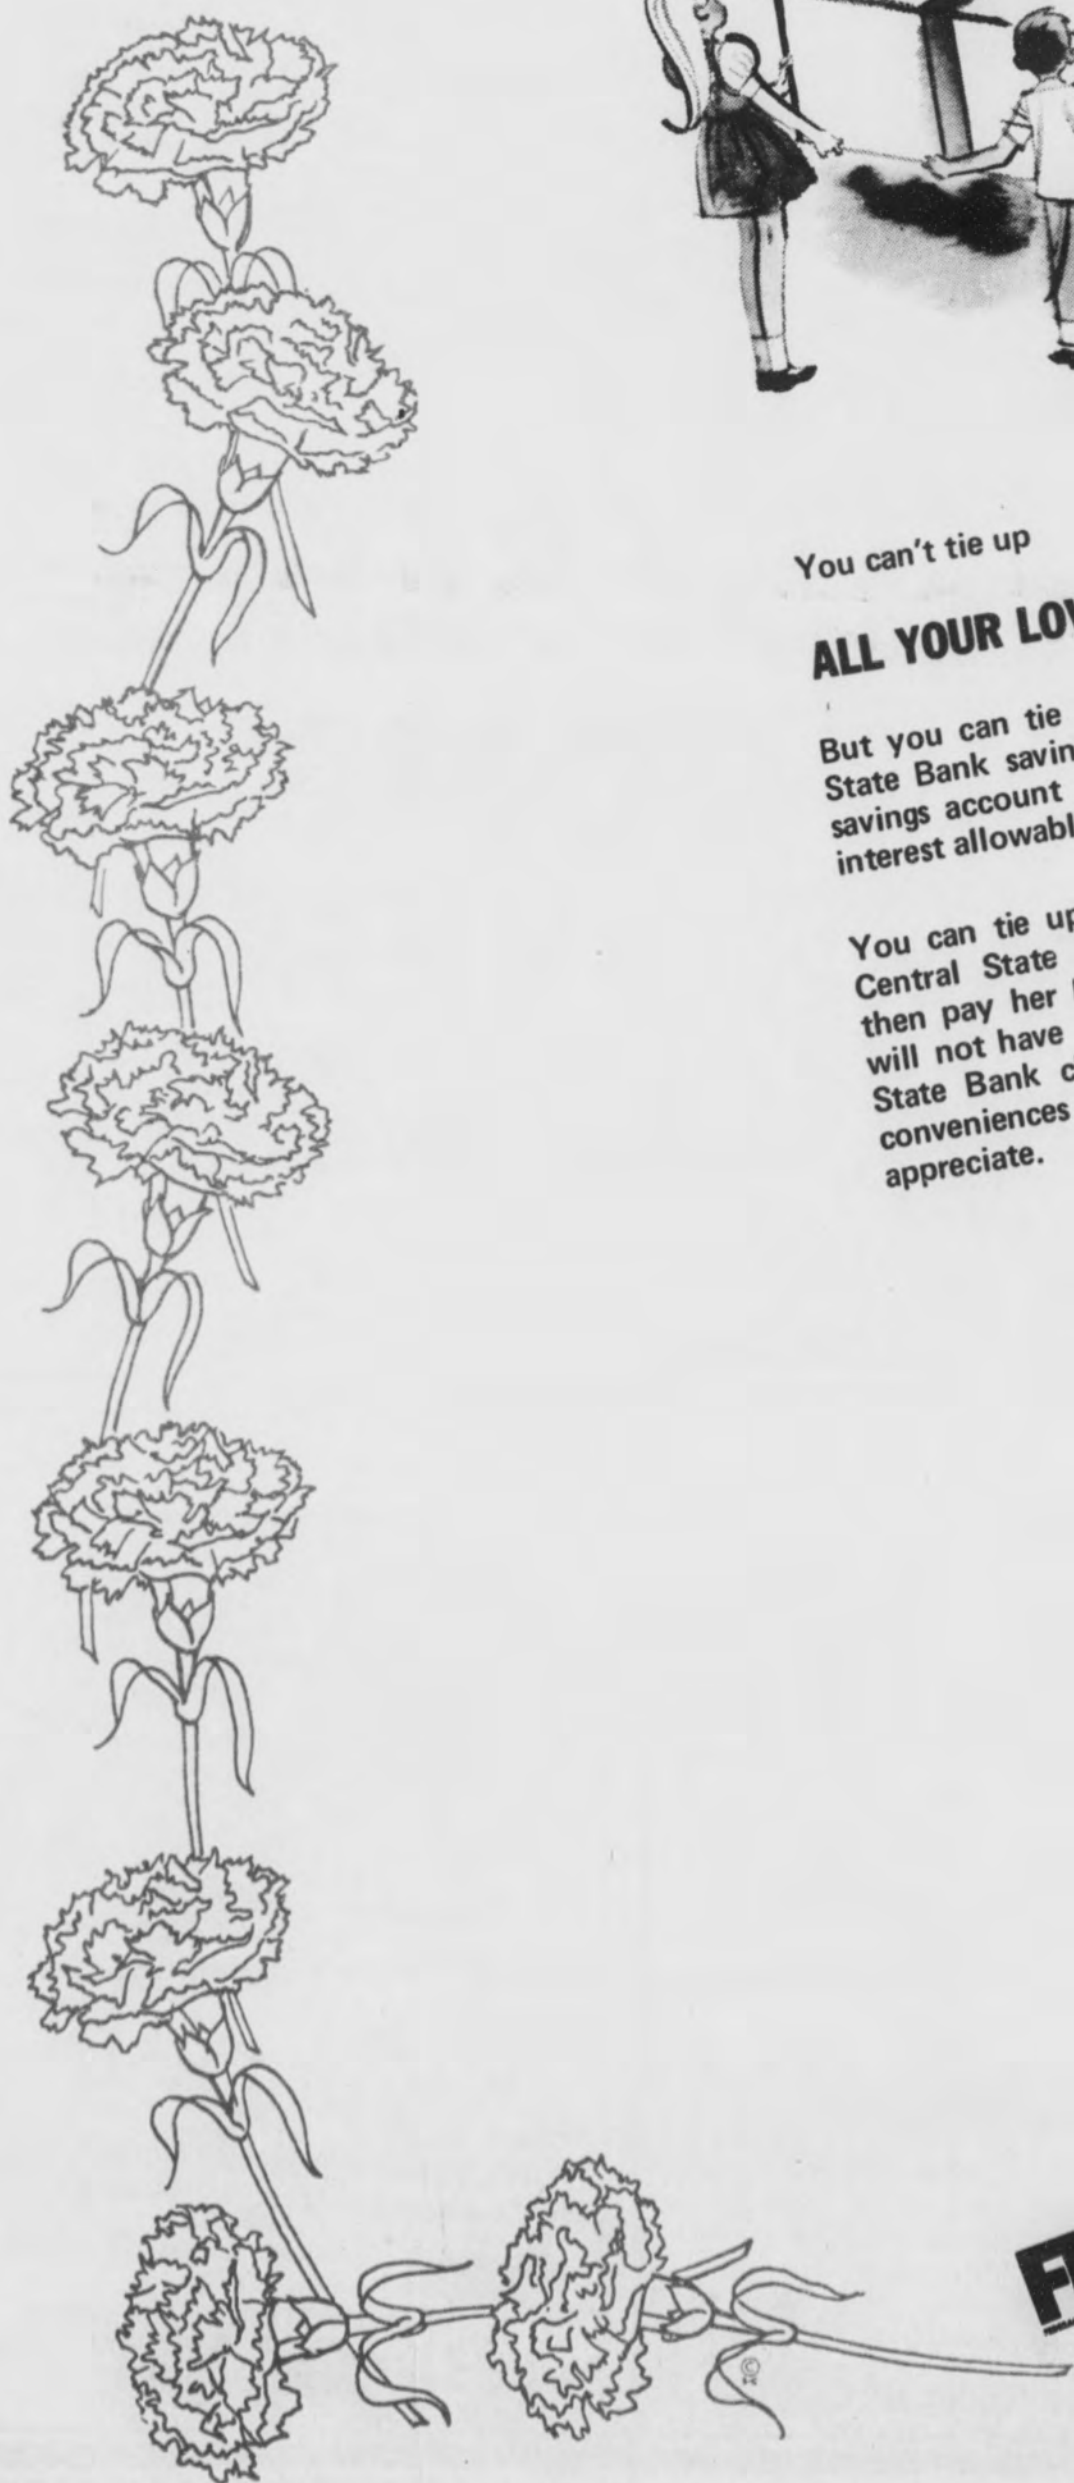

You can't tie up

ALL YOUR LOVE FOR MOM...in a box...

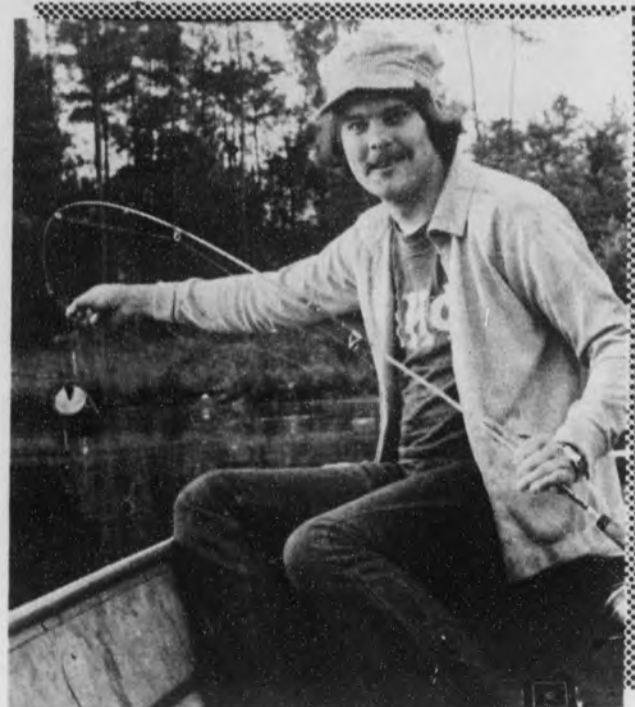

But you can tie up a lot of security in a Central State Bank savings account. A Central State Bank savings account is insured and it pays the highest interest allowable under federal laws.

You can tie up a lot of convenience, too, with a Central State Bank checking account. Mom can then pay her bills from her own living room and will not have to go from store to store. A Central State Bank checking account is one of the great conveniences and time savers all mothers will appreciate.

Vincent High School-

Athletes honored at sports banquet

Vincent High School athletes were honored for their participation in the school's sports programs at their 1973-74 All Sports Banquet last Saturday night.

Speaking to the assembled group of teachers, students, parents and Quarterback Club members was George O. "Shorty" White, head football coach of Barks High School in Birmingham. White has coached two successive state 4-A championship teams.

One of the topics of White's speech was the football program in Alabama. White told his audience that 127 of the players on Southeastern Conference football teams were from Alabama. The Alabama High School football program was equal to that of any state in the country, he continued.

Prior to presenting the football team awards, Vincent coach Gary Garrett reflected back over the past season. Garrett praised the twenty players who stayed with the team the entire season without a single one quitting, even though the outlook was pretty bleak at times.

Garrett continued that he told his players if they would stick with the program, they would build it into one that the players could be proud of. This year Vincent dressed out 76 boys for the Shelby County spring football jamboree.

Receiving football team awards were Paul Hamilton, permanent captain; Danny Brasher, most improved player; and Billy Ferguson, Hustle Award.

Ronnie Webster of First National Bank of Childersburg presented James Riggins with the most valuable football player award.

Basketball coach Owen Butts presented the most improved basketball player award to Paul Hamilton and the most valuable player to Ken Fair.

Tim Barnes, Vincent baseball coach, presented Danny Brasher with the most improved baseball player and Johnny Sanders as the most valuable player.

The Vincent coaches, Gray Garrett, Harold Garrett, Stan Elliott, Owen Butts and Tim Barnes were honored with awards given by the school and the V-Club.

Senior cheerleaders honored were Carol Card, Jennifer Cooper, Wanda Middleton, Eve Davis, Sharon Middleton, Therisa Wood, Shiela Guy, Jackie Fair and Vickie Dunlap.

The senior drill team members received their letters. Riva Barnes was named "most cooperative" and Brenda Hardy was named "most dedicated."

The B-team cheerleaders also received their letters.

VINCENT BANQUET - Honored at the Vincent High School All Sports Banquet last Saturday night were the top athletes in football, basketball and baseball. Standing left to right are Johnny Sanders, most valuable baseball player; Danny Brasher, most improved baseball player and most improved football player; Bill Ferguson, hustle award; James Riggins, MVP football; Kenneth Fair, MVP basketball; and Paul Hamilton, permanent football captain, most improved basketball player.

The Shelby Academy golf and tennis teams finished their season last week with a 3-3 season.

Oden named all-American

Mike Oden, a student at Thompson High School, has been named to Coach and Athlete Magazine's all-America basketball yearbook for 1973-74.

A junior at Thompson, Oden averaged 25.8 points per game during the past basketball season and 14 rebounds per game during the past basketball season and 14 rebounds per game.

Other basketball honors compiled by Oden during the season were: All Mid-State, Most Valuable Player- All County, All Area, and All State.

Nominations for the 1973-74 Prep All America basketball program were made last fall by high school coaches and athletic directors, college recruiters and sports writers from across the country.

Criteria for nomination include: outstanding athletic ability, sportsmanship, leadership and service to the community.

Selection in the Prep All-America makes Oden eligible for Prep All-America Awards, including: the Prep 100 Squad, the Super Ten Team and Cum Laude.

Sponsored by Coach and Athlete Magazine, the Prep All-America Basketball Program is an annual honor roll of outstanding basketball players from high school teams throughout the country. The purpose of the program is to promote and encourage, by means of national recognition, local sports accomplishments and individual athletic ability.

Each local winner's athletic achievements will be presented in the 1973-74 Prep All-America Basketball Award Yearbook to be published in August. This publication is highly regarded by college coaches and scouts as a finger tip source for recruiting prospective athletes.

Martha Jordan, secretary for the Helena Dixie Youth program, reminds residents that the little league field in Joe Tucker Park is for the players and their parents; keep it clean.

Boys' baseball underway

Both the Montevallo Dixie Youth program and the Vincent Little League are already off to a good start this season.

Johnny Holsomback of Montevallo explained that Montevallo was fielding three major and three shirt and cap teams in a Dixie Youth League involving Montevallo, Jemison and Thorsby. About 14 boys belong to each team.

Games will be played on Friday and Saturday until the end of school. The season started April 27.

Hal Stewart of Vincent explained that Vincent was supporting a five team Little League. The inter-area Little League involves about 75 boys from Vincent, Harpersville, Vandiver, Westover and Sterrett.

The Vincent Little League season started April 26 and will run through July 2. Each team is scheduled to play 15 games.

The Vincent Little League field has been re-done this year. Grass has been planted in the infield and the concession stand remodeled. Another addition to the Vincent Little League program this year will be the use of four uniformed umpires to officiate the games.

A ladies auxiliary for the Vincent Little League operates to raise funds to support the teams. One fund raising project this year will be sponsoring a Little League queen for each team.

The Vincent league is in a district with Little Leagues from Sylacauga, Talladega and Childersburg. It is hoped that Vincent will be named as the site for the district play-offs in July.

Oops!

Last week the Reporter stated that the Shelby County Track meet would be held at Indian Springs School. This was a mistake. The county track meet will be held in Montevallo stadium this Thursday starting at 6 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Montevallo Lions Club.

LELA JANE SCOTT
... engaged to John Lee Headley.

Scotts announce engagement plans

Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Scott of Shelby announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter Lela Jane, to John Lee Headley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bunyon Headley of Jemison.

The bride elect is the grand daughter of Mrs. Lela Bell Porter and the late Richard Lonzie Porter; Elisha Scott and the late Mrs. Katie Scott. She is a graduate of Shelby County High School and currently employed at Brown Lumber and Building Company in Columbiana.

The prospective groom is a senior at Jemison High School and is employed at the Elastic Corporation of America.

The wedding is planned for June 21, and will be held in First Baptist Church in Shelby.

CES May festival features agility

The May Festival featuring over 200 students in the Columbiana Elementary Dance recital to feature 'The seasons'

Students of the dance, directed by Frances Keeton and Judy Nordan, in Montevallo, featuring students from Columbiana, Montevallo and Shelby Academy will be presented in recital Wednesday May 15 at 5 p.m. in Palmer Hall on the University Campus.

The theme of the recital will be "The Seasons". Ballet, tap and acrobatic numbers will be presented and will portray ideas suggesting spring, summer, fall and winter.

Miss Nordan will present students from her classes from Bibb County High on the evening of May 18 in the Bibb County High School.

School, directed by Shirley Wallace, brought together several hundred parents and friends of the school Friday afternoon when the students presented various phases of the Physical Education program.

Exhibitions by the students featuring tumbling, stick dance routine, a rhythmic dance with basket balls by the boys, the parachute number and the square dancing groups all were favorably acclaimed.

The gymnastic number performed by Kay Horton and the acrobatic endurance exhibited by Brent Hughes as he walked on his hands the entire length of the tumbling group drew spontaneous recognition from the spectators.

The out of doors presentation is an annual event and the '74 original has been rated by spectators as "the best yet".

Miss Wallace was assisted in the presentation by Deanne Vansant, a sophomore majoring in P.E. in University of Montevallo.

Your friends and mine

by Mildred White Wallace
Friends are having the opportunity this week of congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Fowler Jr., and welcoming home Mrs. Fowler and their newly arrived daughter who was born April 29 in St. Vincent's Hospital tipping the scales at five pounds and five ounces. They have named the "sweetest li'l thing" Catherine Leigh.

Grandparents sharing in the happiness a baby brings into the family circle include Judge and Mrs. Conrad M. Fowler of Columbiana; Dr. and Mrs. Clyde Brown of Birmingham. Great grandparents are: E.C. Mott of Jensen Beach Fla; and Mrs. Etta Oliver of Birmingham.

This is the only baby we have recently had the pleasure of presenting with two grandmothers, one great grandmother; two grandfathers, and one great grandfather.

Dr. John Duncan is spending this week in Ridgecrest, N.C. where he is filling an assignment to teach in one of the seminars now in progress for over 1,500 Associational Missionary executives in attendance.

Mrs. Duncan, during his absence, is visiting her mother in Chattanooga.

Mrs. Leon Baker (Nellie Jack) is improving satisfactorily following surgery in Shelby Memorial last week.

Mr. and Mrs. N.A. Jones hosted a picnic Sat. for the young people of the Baptist Church, the pastor, Rev. Charles Stroud, and his guests, Dr. Lewis Drummond and Harry Newberry of Cincinnati and Birmingham. Following recreational activities, a swim was enjoyed and dinner on the grounds. The Jones Lake in Clanton is one of the most beautiful spots for out of doors entertaining and Mr. and Mrs. Jones frequently share it with their friends.

Parrish Argo, one month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Argo (Retta Oakes) made his initial appearance in the First Baptist Church last Sunday and friends leaving the sanctuary on their way out stopped by the nursery to take a peek at the young fellow. Evidently he was bored with the chorus of "oh's and ah's he received. He yawned several times, stretched his little arms and went back to sleep in his own little baby blue blanket.

The writer could but wonder what the future held for this little fellow. Suffice it to say, at the present time -- he is happy in Pabulum Land and couldn't care less about all the accolades that were being showered upon him.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ray (Kay Murdock) of Wilsonville, announce the arrival of a daughter born in Brookwood Hospital in Birmingham April 29. They have named the little "Queen o Hearts" Mary Elizabeth. She weighed in at eight pounds and eight ounces. Grandparents include Mr. and Mrs. A.E. Ray and Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Murdock, all of Wilsonville.

Barbara Joiner has returned from Louisiana where she spent last week as a guest speaker at a meeting of the Aetna organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Houlditch of Selma were weekend guests of their daughter Mrs. Ross Mullins and Mr. Mullins.

Mrs. Gertrude Taylor has returned to her home in Birmingham after enjoying a weekend in Columbiana as the guest of her daughter Mrs. Wales Wallace and Mr. Wallace.

The residence next to Clay's Fabrics is being torn down and naturally folk are wondering what -- if anything will replace it. Ditto for the Kitty Norris residence. Rumor has it that soon apartment houses will be built on the Johnny Woods property. Columbiana could certainly use more housing facilities.

Weekend guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Franks included: Rev. and Mrs. Harlice Keowin of Carbon Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Lavoy T. Jones have recently purchased a farm in Poolesville, Maryland. They formerly resided in Columbiana. Mrs. Jones is the daughter of Mrs. Essie Cagle of Mountain View Apartments.

Mrs. Jim McDow has presented a two octave set of hand bells to First Baptist Church Music Department in memory of her husband Sen. Jim McDow. They were acknowledged by Tom Stoker, Minister of Music and accepted gratefully by Rev. Charles Stroud on behalf of the church during the evening worship service Sunday, April 28.

We had a "lucky break" in the daily routine last Wednesday when LaLouise McGraw from up Vincent way, came by for a bit of social chatter. Mrs. McGraw had with her a "Mother Goose Rhyme" quilt. Each square presented a picture from Mother Goose Land. This piece of hand work -- she told me -- she had begun some 28 or more years ago designed to be used when her son Johnny McGraw arrived. Evidently Lalouise got busy doing other things and forgot about wheeling that needle for Baby Johnny -- a quarter of a century later -- for today -- she brought the same piece of handwork which she had finally finished and says she will present it to her soon-to-arrive grandchild -- in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny McGraw (Grace Carter Ozley).

Time does gallup on -- bringing with it many changes -- but the Stork keeps flying just the same, and I guess that quilt will be just as useful in 1974 as it would have been some 28 years ago.

Guests and members of Circles of Service, Love and Friendship were entertained on the evening of May 6 in the Fellowship Hall of the United Methodist Church in Columbiana by Circles of Hope and Faith.

Dinner music was presented by Bill Parrish and his 16 member stage band.

The invocation was given by Rev. Lamar Davis after which Mrs. Eloise Williams and Mrs. Inez Bird were honored for their service as past presidents and were presented with honorary membership pins by Mrs. F.P. Richey, president of the United Methodist Women in the Sylacauga District.

Dr. Nolen Hudson, a surgeon at Lloyd Noland Hospital in Birmingham, chose Liberia as his topic for the program. He had previously served two years there as a medical missionary.

The Fellowship Hall was appropriately decorated in keeping with the country of Liberia as was the table featuring hand painted place cards. Dinner was served to 90 persons.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Nolen Hudson of Birmingham; Mrs. Jean Bird of Calera; Rev. Burl Oliver of Huntsville; Mrs. Dean Milam and Rev. Merrell, Crim and Richey of Columbiana.

We were standing on the curb next to a farmer in Shelby County recently, he had come into town to hear a politician recommend himself to the ever whimsical public and this is the conversation that ensued:

Political speaker: "Ladies and gentlemen. I am a self made man. I started life as a barefoot boy"

Framer friend: "That is nothing new ain't none of us here been born with shoes on". And he wandered on down the street. Evidently this man was not his favored candidate.

CHERYL CUPP
... engaged to Roger Burnette

Cheryl Cupp to wed in home ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. W.W. Cupp of Montevallo announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Cheryl, to Roger Burnette of Hueytown.

The bride's grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Frost, Montevallo, and Mrs. A.G. Cupp, Sr. and the late A.O. Cupp, Sr., Calera.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John T. Burnette of Hueytown. His grandparents are the late Mr.

and Mrs. J.P. Littleton, and Mr. Will L. Burnette and the late Mrs. Burnett from Clanton.

The garden wedding and reception will be held May 24 at two in the afternoon at the bride's home.

After a wedding trip to Atlanta, the couple will reside in Montevallo.

Wedding invitations will not be sent. Friends and relatives of the bride and groom are invited.

Bean records winner

Former Shelby County resident Dan Bean has hit the big-time as a country music singer. Bean, who now lives in Birmingham, has a song in the top ten records in the country field. His song "I Believe Love Will Find a Way" was rated ninth on disc jockey's popular picks of the week recently as cited in the Music City Entertainer.

Tyrant disregards all

by Mildred White Wallace

"Some fellows can get away with anything. There is one in our neighborhood that does.

Morals don't mean a thing to him. He is unmarried yet he lives openly with a woman he is crazy about; and does not care what the neighbors say or think. He has no regard for truth or law.

The duties of a so called good citizen are just as much bunk as far as he is concerned. He does not vote in the primary elections or the general election and never thinks of paying a bill.

We have seen him take a $5 taxi ride without giving the driver so much as a pleasant look. The driver only stared at him and muttered something silly.

He won't work a lick; he won't go to church; he can't play cards; he can't dance or fool around with musical instruments or the radio. So far, as is known, he has no intellectual or cultural interests.

He neglects his appearance terrible. He is so indolent he'd let the house burn down before he'd turn on an alarm.

The telephone can ring itself to pieces and he wouldn't even bother to answer it. Even on such a controversial subject as the liquor question -- nobody knows how he stands, he is dry one minute and the next he is wet.

But we will say this for him -- in spite of all his faults, he comes from a darn good family.

He is our NEW BABY."

The above news item(?) was sent to us. We thought you might enjoy reading it. I know not the author. However, we have had the privilege recently or recording many announcements of newly arrived citizens on this planet -- but this announcement is the most novel one we have received.

First Baptist services well attended

The weekend series of services at First Baptist Church came to an end Sunday evening. Dr. Lewis Drummond of Cincinnati, Ohio, currently holding the chair of Evangelism at Louisville Southern Seminary was guest minister. Dr. Drummond was no stranger to many friends in Columbiana as he began his ministry here, many years ago in Joiner Town.

Harry Newberry, minister of music from First Baptist Church in Birmingham directed the music and won for himself unanimous acclaim for his musical selections; and for his vocal interpretations of his solo numbers. Mr. Newberry is not only well and widely known for his excellent musicianship and rich baritone voice -- he is also a distinguished composer.

It was a privilege for the writer to take a trip back in Melody Land where we met some years ago. Mr. Newberry's most recently published solo bears the title "He is Risen" -- a very beautiful Easter solo which has been widely used -- particularly at Eastertide.

Large congregations at each service attested the appreciation Columbiana people felt for each impressive service they jointly presented.

Surveying the county scene

25 Years Ago
by Mildred White Wallace
Three young men, W.A. Mesiderth, A. Acton, and N. Lee were converted in a revival at Ellitsville in 1828. As a result cottage prayer meetings were held and people were saved. In 1829, a circuit rider from Tenn. came through this section of Shelby County and brought them their first sermon. Hundreds were converted -- many of whom became ministers. One of the most outstanding was Rev. C.E. Bishop.

The New Hope Church was organized March 2, by Rev. John Williams. The first home was a log cabin some three and a half miles from the present location which soon became too small to seat the congregation. A larger building of the same rough and rustic character rose near the same spot.

After this, for a long period, worship services were held in a school building. The present building was used 45 years. Sunday school rooms were added in 1941 and a new entrance was added which with modern new plans now in formation may soon make of this building a modern rural edifice sufficient to meet the present needs of the congregation.

25 Years Ago
Mother's Day will be observed in First Baptist Church next Sunday. The choir will present music appropriate for the occasion and Ed Rush, will be featured soloist. He will sing the immortal "That Wonderful Mother of Mine" and will be accompanied by Mildred White Wallace.

Eighty-eight members of the Home Demonstration Clubs in Shelby County and five husbands visited Auburn last Wednesday to take a look at the Land Grant College. The trip was made in observance of Home Demonstration Week. They all were guests of the Extension Service Leaders and the Agricultural Experiment Station.

If anyone can assist Milton Bird find his "specs" -- please do. This "Bird" can't see a wink without his plastic optics. He says he "thinks" he left them in the picture show -- but he continues -- "It could have been in many other places".

The American Legion Dance staged in the High School Friday night with Lewis Simpkins of Sylacauga and his band furnishing the tempo -- was a delightful affair. "April Showers" was the theme melody. Softly shaded, tables were placed in the auditorium with miniature umbrellas carrying out the theme decor. Refreshments were available. Chairs were also placed for those who preferred watching instead of dancing. A neat sum was realized for one of the worthy causes the Auxiliary sponsors.

Wildfire problem calls for volunteers

D.L. Duckett, the new county forester for Shelby County, says that each year as more people move to suburban and rural areas of Shelby County, the wildfire problem is compounded.

In a statement issued this week Duckett said, "Brush, grass, and trash fires often spread to homes and other valuable buildings. It is a fact that people cause wildfires -- and people must either fight them when they occur, or prevent them from starting.

"In most instances, municipal fire departments are either not permitted to go beyond their corporate limits to fight these outlying fires, or do not have the training and equipment to do so. The local representatives of the Alabama Forestry Commission, on the other hand, are often so busy fighting woods fires that they can't respond to calls for help in these residential areas. Also, they are equipped and trained primarily to fight fires in heavier woods fuels. This leaves little or no fire protection for the rural developed area.

"A sound and effective solution to this dilemma is the organization of Rural Volunteer Fire Departments. These units typically consist of a minimum of ten to 15 volunteers with a Chief and an Assistant Chief. Excess military trucks have been made available through cooperation with the Alabama Forestry Commission and other agencies to volunteer firefighting groups that qualify.

"These basic units are made available by special contract. Volunteer groups then develop these units into operable, mobile pumpers by adding water tanks, and other fire-fighting tools.

"Training for volunteer groups in brush and grass fire-fighting techniques can be obtained through the local State Forestry representative. This training can usually be scheduled in conjunction with other meetings of the volunteer group. Training in structural fire-fighting is normally available through the State Fire Marshal's office.

"Volunteer fire department groups often raise funds for maintenance and upkeep of equipment or other purposes through neighborhood socials and other fund-raising means. Numerous benefits become available from such rural fire protection programs -- peace of mind just knowing protection is available, lower property insurance rates, and increases property values to name only a few.

"Several communities and volunteer groups in Shelby County have received or applied for these basic units from the Alabama Forestry Commission's Fire Suppression Section. The Forestry Commission would like for you to join with them in supporting these volunteer organizations. Remember -- Rural fire protection is your business. For additional information contact the County Forester at 669-7605, or visit him in his office on McDow Road in Columbiana."

Rainbow Div. looking for former members

The 42nd. Infantry (Rainbow) Division Veterans Association of Alabama is now conducting an intensive state-wide campaign to locate former members of the division who served in world wars one and two.

Although many of these veterans have been located since the start of this campaign, there are still several thousand who have not been found, according to Rex Luna of Huntsville, the association's president.

Persons having information about the name, company, and regiment of any man who served in the Rainbow Division are asked to forward it to state secretary Raymond J. Thome, P.O. Box 491, Huntsville, Al. 35804.

A reunion of the Alabama Association is scheduled for June 7 and 8 in Huntsville.

Savings Bonds hit 26 per cent of county goal

Volunteer chairman for Shelby County in the drive to sell U.S. Savings Bonds, Bill Schroeder, announced that sales of Series E and H Savings Bonds in his county amounted to $38,000 in February and $23,957 in March, totaling 26.6 percent of Shelby County's goal for 1974.

State sales for Feb. amounted to $6,061,204 with $5,413,544 in March. Total nationwide sales for Feb. were $567- million with $587- million in March.

DECISIONS ON DECORATING - Mrs. Willie Mae Dennis, left, City Clerk of Pelham, goes over samples of fabric with interior decorator Dorcas Sheppard, as they make plans for draperies and carpeting for the new city hall. Mrs. Dennis says it's one of the hardest jobs she has ever had and hopes it will be possible to please most of the people. Having had long experience as a city clerk, she knows it will be impossible to please everybody.

In Acton--

Steel company relocates

by Willard Harrison

What happens when your business is evicted from Birmingham because the value of the land has doubled? Simple, according to Robert E. Owens, of Owens Fabricating Company. You relocate in north Shelby County where property values are climbing even faster.

When his company's lease expired after five years of business in Jefferson County, Owens began to erect his own buildings on family property in Acton, Rt 1, Helena. The land was bought years ago by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Owens, and his brother Johnny has been running his own company, Owens Ironworks, at the Acton location for fifteen years.

"It's not easy to move a business," said Robert Owens, "but it will give us a chance to expand. Now that I'm forced to build my own buildings and relocate the business, it will mean more work, many more employees, and increased production."

At present Owens is rushing to finish the first industrial building for his company. "We'll be moved into it in a couple of weeks, and I'll bring my work crew down here and begin production. The company does all types of heavy steel fabrication, plate fells, fan housings, tanks, pollution works, caissons, and other large-scale steel products.

The building under construction will soon be followed by a new structure on the other side of the road, between the old and new Highway 31. The second building will cover 50,000 square feet, twice the size of the one now underway. Owen told the Reporter that afterward he plans to build an office building on another part of the family's forty acres of land.

When the fabricating business gets into full operation in Acton, Owen hopes to hire an additional 50 to 75 employees. Most of his present workers will stay on with Owens Fabricating despite the change of location, but the new expansion will create a number of new jobs at the Acton plant.

BUILDING SITE - Robert Owens stands on the graded lot that will soon be covered with his new building. His company, Owens Fabricating, is relocating in Acton off of old Highway 31. He points out that his company will soon have several new neighbors, including the large Western Electric installation to be built nearby.

ALMOST FINISHED - The initial building of the Owens property will be ready for business in a short time. Owens said that he plans to get into production here on the large metal components his company makes. He remarks that, with all of the expansion, he will need to hire 50 to 75 more people. Chelsea School class takes field trip to the Alabama School for the Deaf

by Shelba S. Nivens

"I'd like to come to this school," remarked an eighth-grade boy from Chelsea High School last week as he and a group of his classmates toured the Alabama School for the Deaf in Talladega. The course of study at ASD is pretty much the same as it is at any high school in Shelby County, with the exception, of course, of the classes in Braille and Sight Saving.

But the Chelsea eighth-grader could have been referring to the beautiful campus with its historic buildings and giant shade trees, or the giant-size indoor swimming pool, or he could have had in mind the champion wrestling team or even the pretty, blind, teenage girl in blue jeans who had just played the piano for the Chelsea group. All of these attractions and many more added up to a very enjoyable and educational day for the 39 students, three class mothers and teacher, Mrs. Ruby Pruitt.

ASB's spring concert is only two weeks away, and the blind students tried out some musical numbers for it on the Chelsea students. There were piano solos and duets, numbers on the trumpet, a vocal, "Rambling Rose," and the reading of the 23rd Psalm from a Braille Bible.

Mrs. Pruitt says that her students have been "playing around with Braille, trying to learn it." They were given cards at ASB with writing in Braille, and several of the students were able to read it. The Braille typewriter and copying machine interested the students from Chelsea. "The typewriter types everything backwards," observed one girl. "That way, the words stick out on the back side of the paper where the typewriter keys made dents, and the blind people can read it by feeling the dents with their fingertips."

The students watched as pictures of animals were copied on the copying machine. Blind students can feel the picture of a dog or cow and color within the raised outline on the sheet of paper.

The school of the blind has an enrollment of 165 students, and most of them live in dormitories at the school. There is also an infirmary on campus. The requirements for graduation from ASB are the same as from other high schools. These students must also take the ACT test to enter college, and most of the school graduates do go on to college.

At the Alabama School for the Deaf, the Chelsea students were given cards showing letters of the alphabet in the language of the deaf. The class had already been studying this sign language, and some of the students were able to communicate slightly with some of the deaf students. In the gym at ASD, elementary school children were swimming and playing in the pool. They were very friendly with the Chelsea students and some came to the edge of the pool to talk with them.

There are 450 students enrolled at ASD. In addition to regular classes attended by most Alabama high school students, deaf students on the Talladega campus may attend trade school classes, which are open to both girls and boys.

Ms. Ashworth explained that not all students in either the school for the deaf or blind totally deaf or blind. But they are students who are so nearly blind or deaf that they cannot profitably attend the regular public school. The schools at Talladega are now working on a new program for multi-handicapped children, she said. This program is for those who have been refused admittance to other programs because their needs could not be met in them.

On the way back to Chelsea High School on the bus, students practiced reading in Braille and talked in the language of the deaf back and forth across the aisles. They are now compiling scrapbooks on their visit to the Alabama School for the Deaf and the Alabama School for the Blind.

The president of the school is Dr. Woodrow Elliott who formerly was Superintendent of Education in Shelby County.

Chemistry program at UM

Applications are arriving from high school chemistry teachers and administrative leaders to participate in a National Science Foundation program this summer at the University of Montevallo.

"It's a wonderful opportunity for high school chemistry teachers to receive extra training, six hours of graduate credit, and a $640 stipend to reimburse them for their effort," said Dr. Aris Merijanjan, chairman of the chemistry department at Montevallo, in commenting on the program.

One of ten institutions nationwide conducting the foundation-sponsored program this summer, Montevallo received a $36,000 grant to conduct the two-part project. Principals, superintendents and curriculum coordinators will meet for four days beginning June 3 to be updated on the philosophy of teaching chemistry and the problems of chemistry education.

The eight-week graduate level course for teachers will run from June 10 to August 2. Thirty high school teachers will be chosen for the course, with preference going to teachers from rural schools with limited physical facilities and to teachers who have had limited opportunities to participate in programs of this type.

Merijanjan said that CHEM-Study, a new approach has been used successfully in two previous summer programs at Montevallo, he said.

Designed to improve chemistry education throughout the state, the UM program is especially aimed at 22 counties who participated in a planning conference on the Montevallo campus.

Counties represented were: Blount, Bullock, Chilton, Clarke, Cleburne, Coffee, Coosa, Dallas, Fayette, Franklin, Geneva, Henry, Jefferson, Marshall, Montgomery, Morgan, Pickens, Randolph, Shelby, Talladega, Tuscaloosa and Walker.

Additional information on the program may be obtained by contacting Dr. Merijanjan at the Chemistry Department, University of Montevallo, Montevallo, Alabama 35115.

FORBES VISIT - Members of the Forbes family were on hand at the open house Sunday to celebrate the remodeling of the Presbyterian Center in Montevallo, called the Forbes House. From left, Aubrey Miree, Kenneth Forbes, Ernest Forbes, Mrs. Ernest Forbes, Mrs. Aubrey Miree and Mrs. Kenneth Forbes.

COMPARING NOTES - J.A. Brown Jr. talks with Mrs. Frances Anthony at the Presbyterian open house Sunday. Brown had just come from the Methodist open house, where he was a member of the committee that remodeled that church.

Church opens Forbes House

The Forbes House is now open for activities of the Montevallo Presbyterian Church, after an official open house and dedication held last Sunday.

The house, which is used as the Presbyterian Student Center, was renovated during the past year. Interior walls were removed to create a greater spaciousness and to encourage use of the house. The pastor's study and a student study remain essentially the same. The kitchen was rebuilt, the front and rear entrances were changed and extensive remodeling and redecorating was undertaken.

Chairman of the committee overseeing the remodeling was F.P. "Pete" Givhan.

Architect for the project was Davis, Speake and Associates. Angie Grooms Proctor is associated with the firm as interior decorator and she selected the color schemes.

Many visitors toured the house during the open house Sunday, and the Forbes family, of Birmingham, who donated the property to the church many years ago, also attended.

The student center will be open from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. each day for the use of students. House Director is Kathy Luquire. On Tuesday afternoons, the Rev. Mickey Duke, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church is available for counseling of students.

Pastor of the Montevallo Presbyterian Church is the Rev. John Sims.

Young honored by Chelsea High students on patriotic week

Chelsea High School participated in three days of patriotic activity recently, climaxing it with a concert by the 604th Maxwell Air Force Band. The students also honored their teachers who had served in the armed forces.

Before the band concert, outgoing student council president Denise Bradley recognized faculty members Fred Gleason, Richard Conkle, J.G. Jackson, and Alton Young for their periods of service in the military. Alton Young was presented with a proclamation declaring April 24, 1974 as "Alton Young Day" at Chelsea High.

Patriotism Week at the school was sponsored by the student council. The council's newly elected officers are Randy Looney, president; Wanda O'Shields, vice-president; Tina Salser, treasurer; Phil Cain, reporter; Joy Moore, parliamentarian; Dawn Weldon, chaplain; and Susie Foster, secretary.

Soap making is more than lye and grease

by Doris E. Davis

Recently I ran across a recipe for making soap at home. For years I have saved all my bacon and sausage grease just hoping someone would publish the recipe. Prices continue to incline to the point that it seems every week something else it out of reach to the homemaker because it is too expensive.

The recipe sounded simple enough and I had the saved up grease on hand so I plowed in with enthusiasm. The directions were to wash the grease by melting 12 cups of it in 12 cups of water. There's where I came to the first pitfall. I didn't have a container that would hold 24 cups of anything. I solved that problem by putting six cups of grease and six cups of water in one pan and an equal amount of each in another container. The directions were to let the mixture cool until the clean grease was floating on the water, congealed and could be lifted off. The recipe neglected to tell me that it would take all day that day plus half of the next for the grease to congeal and I was so impatient and so anxious to see my finished product.

The next step was to lift off the grease and melt again either weighing to make sure you had six pounds or measuring out 12 cups exactly. It has always been my belief that expedience is a virtue. I looked at the shortening can I had been storing the fat in and read on the label - Weight 3 pounds. That was when the brainstorm that nearly wrecked the whole project hit me. I filled the can full twice assuming I had six pounds of melted grease.

I then went to the grocery store and purchased a 13 ounce can of lye. The recipe I was going by subtly mentioned that the mixture become hot and caution should be exercised but when I got home and read the directions on the lye can it went like this: Use a wooden spoon. Do not use an aluminum container. Wear gloves and goggles when mixing. So now I was back to the original problem. I didn't have a container large enough to hold the lye dissolved in two and one half pints of water and six pounds of bacon grease. I had been proud of the fact that I was going to have a large supply of soap for the price of a can of lye but now the price included the cost of a canner large enough for me to mix it all up in.

When I got ready to dissolve the lye in water I suddenly realized that I had neither goggles nor gloves but being very innovative, I used sunglasses, an old pair of white Sunday Go to Meeting gloves. Then to top it all off the mixture didn't fizz or splash and I felt ridiculous all dressed up for the worst and nothing happened.

I poured the grease into the lye solution as directed, and stirred with a wooden spoon for twenty minutes, changing arms and shuffling feet as my limbs rapidly tired. It never did become the consistency of honey. I know because I got a jar of honey out and compared the two consistencies. It was honey colored however, so I settled for that and poured the liquid I hoped was not grease and lye but transformed into soap into a cardboard box lined with a plastic garbage bag.

The recipe said to set the box aside where no one would disturb it until the next day so I put mine out in the laundry room and covered it with a newspaper. I got pretty tired running out there every thirty minutes to see what was happening. Much to my amazement the mixture slowly but surely began to harden and turn snow white. It had about a half an inch of pure bacon grease floating on the top, the result of my failure to measure exactly or weigh accurately. I skimmed off the excess fat and, at last, a box full of pure white soap came into being.

I was very proud of my successful project and called a good friend to share my pleasure with her. Her candid comment was, "If you had told me you needed soap I would have bought you some."

Design an outdoor room . . .

with plants

Looking ahead to a summer we all will be traveling less and staying at home more, the people of the American Association of Nurserymen suggest this may be a good time to consider designing a family room outdoors. What they are talking about is something more than the traditional patio (although it may be an extension of that concept) because it should be planned to accommodate much more family activity.

"Consider all the different things you do in the indoor family room," the nursery people say, "and decide how they can be moved to an outdoor room. It's a place for relaxation, of course, with comfortable furnishings. It may be where television viewing takes place. It is the game room. And, on entertainment occasions, it is the party place." All of these functions, the nursery spokesmen point out, are easily and attractively moved outdoors with just a small amount of planning.

An important element, according to the nursery authorities, is the installation of some sort of "walls" or "partitions" to define the space of the outdoor room. An important element, according to the nursery authorities, is the installation of some sort of "walls" or "partitions" to define the space of the outdoor family room. This, of course, is probably a hedge that keeps out unwelcome noise, provides privacy, freshens and cools the air with its own natural air conditioning. If you have space enough, a shade tree or a flowering tree here and there will be a smart addition. This may be a place, too, to put in some of your favorite flowers and plants, much in the same way you add pictures and bric-a-brac to decorate an indoor family room.

Have you been wanting to make a rock garden? Surely there will be a corner of the outdoor room where this could be appropriate. If you add a bird bath and bird feeder you will probably welcome some new wildlife guests. Be sure to include games in the arrangement - perhaps a badminton net just outside the room, maybe croquet, and, inside the outdoor family room a weather-resistant chess and checkerboard, space for a bridge table if that's your game, a dart board, whatever family fun you like.

Planning and preparing this kind of outdoor extension to the home is an enjoyable activity for most families.

Girl Scouts tour UM campus

The Cahaba Girl Scout Council will bring 300-400 Scouts to the University of Montevallo campus Saturday for Daisy Day.

Brownie, Junior, Cadet and Senior scouts from the seven-county Cahaba Council will arrive in Montevallo at 9:30 in the morning and plunge right into a program of games, songs, dances, movies and a magic act.

Kelley Clegg, a Girl Scout volunteer and teacher at Susan Moore Elementary School in Blount County will coordinate the activities.

They'll be entertained by a magician, Samford student David Garrard, see square dance demonstration, and take a campus tour designed especially for scouts. Using their map-reading skills instead of a tour director, the girls will search for interest points where they'll find guides who will answer questions and start them toward their next destination.

Daisy Day will conclude at 3:00 p.m. with all the girls participating in a flag ceremony on the U.M. quadrangle.

The Cahaba Council includes scout troops from Jefferson, Shelby, Walker, Cherokee, Etowah, St. Clair and Blount counties.

Thompson gets edge in official count

When all the votes were counted, Bill Thompson was the high man in the sheriff's race. He polled 5,055 votes, giving him 182 votes more than Red Walker, who polled 4,873 votes.

Allen Wilson's 561 votes has thrown the race into a run-off. Both Thompson and Walker were hard on the campaign trail the day after the election.

Official returns bore out the indications of election night that Thompson ran strongest in Columbiana and the eastern part of the county, with margins well ahead of Walker's. The Columbiana vote was 753 for Thompson and 260 for Walker.

However Beat 12, which returned almost the same number of votes as Columbiana, went for Walker with 672 votes to Thompson's 275. Walker also did well in his home territory of Alabaster.

Calera handed Thompson 50 votes more than Walker, but Walker won in Montevallo by 14 votes, out of 1,123 cast.

The total number of votes cast in the sheriff's race was 10,489, just under half of the number of registered voters. Courthouse pundits had predicted a turnout of about that size.

The complete list of votes cast for all offices by Shelby County voters is found in the B section of this issue. However, in some contests votes cast in other counties were the deciding votes. For instance, Calvin Smith was high man for the House District 52 in Shelby County, but the Leeds vote was the determining factor in electing Sonny Moore of Sterrett to the office.

The Shelby County vote went to Tom Stubbs for Senate District 17 but the Jefferson and Tuscaloosa County votes weighed against him, and he came out third in the race. The runoff in this district will be between Eddie Hubert Gilmore and Doug Cook, both of Jefferson County.

Obie Littleton won in Shelby County for Senate district 18. He also won office, but his opponent, Lister Proctor of Sylacauga took the Talladega County votes by a sizable margin, and ran close in other areas.

For House District 53, both candidates were from Chilton County. However Curtis Smith won the office, carrying the Shelby County part of the district by 713 votes to Pig Headley's 590 votes. Smith also carried the Chilton County vote.

For House District 51, serving the Cahaba Valley-Alabaster area of the county, Charles Beavers was eliminated, and a runoff will be held between Jake Vaughn who polled 633 Shelby County votes and Jabo Waggoner who polled 1,051 Shelby County votes.

AN APOLOGY and an EXPLANATION

EXPLANATION:

In the "It's Time For A Change" ad published on May 2nd, a portion was incorrect. It should have read:

"Fees collected in the Sheriff's Department:

Pistol permits..... $ 8,000.00 per year
Warrant clerk's fees..... $ 4,500.00 per year
*State paid allowance for cooks $ 4,500.00 per year

Total $17,000.00 per year will be paid into the County General Fund. This is enough to buy two cars for the Sheriff's Department and operate them for a year. (*This is presently going into the Sheriff's pocket). The Sheriff is still the only county official still collecting fees as well as salary."

The asterisk was left off the last item of fees and the statement in parentheses. The ad erroneously gave the information that all $17,000.00 was going into the Sheriff's pocket.

APOLOGY:

We apologize to the voters of Shelby County and to the other candidates in the race for this error. We, and our candidate, are sorry that the error happened.

FURTHER EXPLANATION:

Under a local act passed by the Legislature in 1967, a $5.00 pistol permit fee is collected by the Sheriff. The act says that he may spend it according to his "exclusive discretion" in the operation of the Sheriff's Department.

The Warrant Clerk fees are paid to a lady employee working in the Sheriff's office. She is already being paid an annual salary of $8,950.00 per year plus a $20.00 per month uniform allowance. She fills out the warrants on the County's time. Why should this be additional personal income to her? Why not change this and let this $4,500.00 per year collected during office hours go to the County General Fund to help pay for the Sheriff's Department? This Warrant Clerk fee arrangement is also provided by a local act of the Legislature, passed in 1971.

A general law of the State provides that a Sheriff is paid a monthly allowance for hiring a cook for the jail. The allowance is based upon the average number of persons in jail for the month before. It amounts to about $4,500.00 per year. The present Sheriff employs no cook and keeps this allowance as personal income.

Bill Thompson believes this money should be paid to the County General Fund and the County employ a cook who receives a regular physical examination to protect the health of those who eat the cooking. This money is paid to the Sheriff by the State to try to insure a good quality food for the prisoners. Bill Thompson will not put this money into his own pocket.

Be my Valentine

by Milton Bird

She was just sitting there, pretty as a pansy patch, waiting for some guy to come in and pay his bill. And I came in and paid my bill. And, since the middle of February was as close as a bumblebee on a honeysuckle blossom, I said: "I'll pay if you'll be my valentine."

She didn't have to smile, but she did. A little smile that crept up and hung around for a long minute.

"I'll do it," she cooed.

And when she had written my receipt she looked up and smiled again.

"You know why I'll be your valentine?"

I didn't know and she knew I didn't, so she went on: "Because a long time ago, when I was just a little girl, you were my valentine. You didn't know it, but you were."

And tonight, thinking about it, the thoughts start crowding in. How many times, along the road I've traveled, have I passed a little valentine -- somebody who saw something in my life her young heart reached out for?

In more ways than I know, the things I do and the words I say spread out I know not where, and touch other lives, lives of little valentines, and big valentines maybe, in a good or a bad fashion.

I go to hear a sermon every Sunday. And I live another sermon every other day of the week. And I wonder, in a world where there is so much that is bad and evil, if the sermon I live isn't the one little folks will notice. The little folks who are forever looking for valentines in one way or another.

It was just a chance meeting, on a busy hurry-up world, but there was room in there for a valentine. And a lesson I hope I'll never forget.

Best way to succeed is to 'adapt' ideas

by Fred Cooper

The possibility has just occurred to me that I've never had an original thought in my life.

This struck me as I made my way back to my office after having invited myself to watch a fellow public relations person put together a slide presentation. I don't know how to put together a slide presentation but I need to know so I'm going to learn it from him.

Learn it is sort of a euphemism. What I'm going to do is steal his ideas.

I'm also in the process of stealing the layout idea for the annual report I have to do from one that was mailed to me from another agency. In fact, I had several to choose from. I feel like I'm stealing the best one.

I was in the service with a guy who was one of the greatest natural wits I've ever encountered. I was around him most of the time since he worked in the information offices at both Truax Field, Wisc., and Tyndall AFB, Fla., and I got the benefit of most of his jokes first.

Then I told them first.

He used to complain that when we were at a party or back at the barracks or even somewhere else on base, he'd start to tell one of his original stories and his listener would stop him, saying that I had already been there and told it. I never gave him credit for them either.

That was six years ago. I still use those stories and jokes.

I also steal literary styles. When I first started writing columns in college, I used to try conscientiously to copy different styles of writers I liked. I could do a better Benny Marshall column than the late Birmingham News sports editor could. Except for content, my Art Buchwald thievery was fairly accurate. Max Shulman had ways of turning a phrase that I took for my own.

The best cutline I ever put under a picture was for the base paper at Tyndall. The base was one of five that had been selected for testing out Dr. Kenneth Cooper's jogging, program with a long range view of making it the Air Force's official exercise program. I set up a picture of two men crossing a finish line with another guy timing their run. The cutline read, "This is the soul that times men's tries."

I never bothered to tell anyone that I had read that several years before and stored it away, just waiting for a chance to use it myself.

Even the one thing I ever sold to Playboy magazine was not something I'd written but rather had clipped out of the newspaper.

Psychologists and social workers always say that confession is good for the soul. I don't know how good for my soul this confession has been but I do know one thing -- I'm not going to stop stealing.

If I did, I might have to stop writing.

State's prosperity due to farming

By Senator Jim Allen

Alabama, which has led the nation for many years in rural development, is now reaping the many benefits of such development.

We have successfully made the difficult transition from a one crop economy to that of a diversified economy with beef cattle, broilers, soy beans, timber, corn and catfish farms playing an important part in our agricultural economy and with new industrial plants providing jobs for our rural population. The Southeast has set the national pace in balanced growth, and Alabama has set the pace for the Southeast.

Family income is up. Living standards have risen. Taxes are more equitably shared. Public facilities and services are better. Our state is stronger, and our average quality of life is vastly improved.

Between 1950 and 1970, Alabama's farm population skidded from about a million people down to some 200,000. This outmigration pulled families apart, and it weakened community institutions where people acquire the basic philosophies, codes, and behavior patterns which have made America great.

So it is little wonder that Alabamians are using rural development. Rural development makes possible better schools, more and better hospitals and other health services, business conveniences, cultural, social and recreational programs, facilities and services otherwise difficult to obtain.

Almost every Alabama county has a rural development committee. These committees know that development doesn't "just happen". Development must be solicited, created, fostered and cultivated so as to bring the greatest possible benefit to local residents - job benefits, aesthetic benefits, environmental benefits and other practical benefits.

Rural development committees in Alabama deserve much of the credit for stimulating, coordinating, and guiding the progress we have made.

This leadership was recognized by the United States Department of Agriculture when it awarded last year to the Alabama - USDA Rural Development Council its Superior Service Award "for effective leadership in helping rural people of Alabama organize, define local problems, determine priorities and program structures, and carry out a balanced program to improve their quality of living."

All of us may be proud of our state and of our heritage, glad for our accomplishments, humble about our leadership, and full of faith in our great future. Alabama has the brand of Americanism, the traditions, experiences and patterns to take its place among the stars.

As a member of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, I helped shape and write the Rural Development Act of 1972. I am particularly proud of what it is doing and can do for Alabama.

For candidates--

County employees can't campaign

If any county employee talks politics, he or she should be immediately reported to the county personnel board. He or she can be fired for taking part in a campaign.

Reports are circulating that some county employees are being urged to circulate stories that favor certain candidates in the June runoff primary.

Shelby County established a personnel board several years ago to deal with just such happenings. The purpose of the ruling is to protect county employees from being forced to campaign for his or her superior. It also protects the ordinary taxpayer. When the county hires people to perform certain jobs and the person spends his time campaigning instead of doing his appointed job, then obviously the taxpayers winds up financing a campaign.

There is one exception to the rule: Each elected official can appoint a chief clerk and that chief clerk or chief deputy may engage in politics, but no one else on the staff may do so.

The county ruling is similar to the Hatch Act, which protects and prohibits federal employees from engaging in political campaigns.

If any county employee says anything that could be construed as trying to influence a vote, then he or she is in violation of the county ruling.

Any violator should be reported to any member of the county personnel board composed of: T.O. Smith, Wilsonville; Kermit Mathison, Montevallo; Oscar Harris, Helena; A.A. Lauderdale and I.C. Whittle, both Columbiana.

County employees include all sheriff's deputies, most of the workers in the court house, and workers on the highway department staff.

By the same token, if any county employee is being pressured to campaign or make contributions, the employee should report it to the personnel board.

Candidate rides high in recent campaign

Campaigning styles vary with the candidate and Shelby County has seen some interesting candidates and campaign styles this spring.

Doug Ballard took to the air on the day before the May 7 primary and campaigned from the sky all afternoon.

Piloting a plane he rented from the Shelby County Airport, Ballard flew over District 2 seeking votes. He borrowed speakers from a football field and mounted them on the plane so sound would travel straight down.

When he spotted a crowd assembled for a baseball game he flew low and asked everyone for their vote.

Over farms and dairies, he would call out the names of the persons who lived there, and people came out waving to him.

Ballard landed once to refuel, then took off again. He served as his own pilot, sound man and speaker. "The recording and loud speaking equipment took up so much room in the plane, there wasn't any place for anyone else to sit," he said.

Among other unusual campaigning techniques was the campaign by boat of Allen Wilson. Senatorial candidate Obie Littleton also used a plane to trail an advertising sign over the county.

Allen expresses thanks

Dear Mrs. Sears:

I want to express my sincere appreciation to you and to other fellow Alabamians for the vote of confidence given in yesterday's primary in my service as United States Senator from Alabama. And I want particularly to thank you for the coverage your newspaper has given my positions and votes on issues that have confronted the Nation and the Congress during the past five years.

Alabamians have been better able to make decisions because of the interest you have taken in presenting these issues to the people for their consideration.

My pledge is to continue working for the well-being of all Alabamians and of all Americans throughout my service in the Senate.

With best wishes, I am

Beasley surprised by votes for Woods

by Don Wasson

The 65 percent victory of Gov. George C. Wallace came as no real surprise but the May 7 Democratic Primary was interesting for a number of reasons.

First, of course, was the poor showing by Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley, who was supremely confident going in that he would win all 67 counties and upwards of 60 percent of the vote. He actually got about 38 percent of the vote and could trail Dothanite Charles Woods when the official recapitulation is taken.

It became apparent about three weeks before the voting that Woods was going to run well, despite his record for losing. It seems that he pulled the same stunt Beasley pulled in winning in 1970 -- he stood the closest to the governor.

In fact, it would seem that the public placed much blame for the legislature's shortcomings on Beasley, but the voters also swept both Houses of the legislature virtually clean of incumbents.

In the House, only 37 could possibly return out of 105 after the runoffs are decided. That number could go as low as 17 should all the incumbents involved in runoff lose. In the Senate, only ten of the 35 incumbents have won renomination. There were only 17 of the 35 running and of the seven who did not win outright, three (possibly four) lost and the other three are in runoffs.

Six House members have won nomination for Senate seats, and seven more could win runoffs, so that will give the upper chamber some needed legislative experience.

Beat 12 resident knocks pro-zoner's statement

Letter to Editor:

I refer to the verbiage contained in your interview with Pro-zoner, Mr. Bill Pittman, President of the Indian Springs Civic Club, which appeared on page 4 of the Reporter, May 2, 1974.

Now I would like to discuss the issues that were raised by Mr. Pittman. Even though the issues raised in the interview were vague, I will try to discuss them as listed.

First of all Mr. Pittman admits that he is fallible. (Which we already knew).

Second, he describes a scene of devastation, (which is greatly exaggerated) caused by those interested in a "quick dollar".

Third, Mr. Pittman states that the strongest protestors to zoning are the large land owners, or those that stand to gain financially from commercial development. This statement by Mr. Pittman, is a classic example of the perversion of the facts regarding the zoning issue. The Majority of those opposed to zoning, believe that Act "816" is an abrogation of their constitutional rights as American citizens.

Fourth, Mr. Pittman relegates the non-property owners to the role of "Trackers or Sympathizers", and infers that they shouldn't be allowed to vote. I feel that he owes the non-property owners of Beat 12 an apology.

Fifth, Mr. Pittman states that he has no doubt that if zoning was left up to the property owners, (which is a contradiction of a statement he made at the beginning of the interview) it would be adopted. I agree that a constitutional zoning act may be needed for this area, but Act "816" goes far beyond this, it is nothing less than a mandate, giving a group of men that aren't even elected by those effected, dictatorial authority to monopolize and control the citizens of this area.

Sixth, Mr. Pittman states that there is a "Federal Land Use Bill" pending before Congress, which will control property, and he states that since we are going to have land use control anyway, why not accept Act "816"? Mr. Pittman, with all due respect to you, if you think that the "Federal Land Use Bill" is similar to the zoning act, you are misinformed.

The provisions of the "Land use Bill" is aimed primarily at industrial expansion and development, such as pit and strip coal mining, quarrying, and related industry, with emphasis on regulating their disruption of the landscape, and the industry, with emphasis on regulating their disruption of the landscape, and the pollution factors related to industry.

Oliver Wendell Holmes once said, "the art of philosophy is the ability to say more and more about less and less". I think that statement by the famed Jurist just about sums up the substance of the issues raised in this interview concerning zoning.

Since today is May 13, the zoning act has once again been defeated for the fourth time. I would like to commend the good people on both sides of the issue for their perseverance in this matter.

In conclusion - No, I am not a large property owner, in fact, I am almost a "Tracker or Sympathizer", as described by Mr. Pittman.

Sincerely,

Ellis J. Rich

Library expanded in Wilsonville

Wilsonville mayor R.G. Stephenson says that the town is moving ahead with an expansion program for the town library and is making progress in extending water lines to the Smith Camp area.

The library is being expanded from a small room to larger quarters now that the town's two fire trucks are housed in their own new fire hall. Mayor Stephenson told the Reporter that the library will have ample room to expand into the room in the town hall where the fire trucks once were. The new fire hall was financed with the help of revenue sharing funds, while the new library will be paid for by municipal funds, according to Stephenson.

He adds that the town is making considerable progress in extending its water lines to Smith's Camp, which was annexed last October. The mayor stated that they had been waiting for several months due to a delayed shipment of pipes. He indicated that the pipes had finally arrived and that three miles of water line is being laid to the new part of Wilsonville. Stephenson said that the project should soon be finished, since the final pipe shipment arrived last week.

To the People of Shelby County

From

TOM STUBBS

I appreciate the fine vote I received from the part of Shelby County which was in my district.

It has been a pleasure to serve you, the people of Shelby County, as your representative for 7½ years.

The only displeasure has been the attempt by Judge Fowler to dominate my office.

Other members of the legislature have told me they don't see how I have put up with this for 7½ years—

BUT I DID IT FOR YOU.

Now it appears to me that this take over campaign by Judge Fowler is continuing in the Shelby County Sheriff's Race.

I think this is the most dangerous thing facing Shelby County today!

Please Don't Let This Happen!

Pd. pol. ad by Tom Stubbs, Helena, Ala.

THANKS!

A sincere thank you from Wendy, Phillip, Ann, and Red Walker for the confidence you displayed by your vote and support on May 7th.

We solicit your continued support and will never violate your confidence and trust.

Baby born in police car

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Bullard of Jemison became parents of a seven pound, five ounce baby boy last Saturday and they will probably be telling the story of how the baby arrived, for many years to come.

They were on their way to Baptist Medical Center, Montclair, when a red light in Vestavia forced them to stop. Mr. Bullard flagged down a police officer and asked for a police escort to the hospital, because his wife was in hard labor. The policeman radioed in the report and was told to take them to the hospital in the police car.

But the baby did not wait for the hospital. Mr. Bullard delivered his new son on the way to the hospital while taking instructions from the police officer who was driving the car.

It is reported that the father, the mother and the baby are doing just fine. Mrs. Bullard is the former Judy Massey of Alabaster.

Johnathan Woodard Gathings of Columbiana, will graduate May 18, from Marion Institute. He is a member of the graduating high school senior class.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Gathings of Columbiana.

Summer Hill Baptist Church will hold its annual homecoming on Sunday, May 19.

Guest singers will be the Cross Quartet and the Campbell Family.

Larry Isbell, pastor, and Tommy Mitchell, singing chairman, invite everyone to attend. Members of the church are especially proud of the sign in front of the church, made and donated by Larry Perryman.

A shower for a concession stand? That's just what Louise Jones has in mind to provide supplies for the new concession stand in Helena's Joe Tucker Park. Parents who have boys in the Helena Little League are asked to leave items donated at the concession stand on nights of ball games.

Included in the list of needed items are big forks and spoons, a boiler, plastic bowls, broom, mop, paper towels and any other item that would prove useful in a concession stand.

The name of the youth pictured in the Reporter two weeks ago who was getting reflectorized tape on his bicycle was Jeff Johnson, according to his family. He was participating in Calera Bicycle Day, where emphasis was placed on bicycle safety.

Middle school gets state accreditation

Thompson Middle School has become the first middle school in the county to receive accreditation. The school received its certificate of accreditation from the state in a P.T.O. meeting on Tuesday night, May 7.

Thompson Middle joins Vincent, Montevallo and Valley as newly accredited schools in the county.

The accreditation of TMS was the result of months of work, according to school steering committee chairman Jane Riley. She and fellow teachers Joe Ash and Mrs. Charlotte Anthony told the Reporter that they had been working toward the goal all year long. They pointed out that it had been a joint effort of all of the school's faculty, staff, students, and parent-teacher organization.

The certificate of accreditation was presented to Principal Mary Roach by the county superintendent of education Elvin Hill. Hill had received it in turn from O'dell Grady, Alabama state consultant for accreditation. Miss Roach said that they were glad to receive the honor. Steering committee member Joe Ash agreed that "It's been in our minds for a long time."

Trooper hits judges for reducing charges

Realizing that the drinking driver is one of the leading killers on Alabama highways and disturbed over the number of Driving While Intoxicated arrests reduced to lesser charges by the courts, Public Safety Director, Colonel Eldred C. Dothard, has appealed to judges and District Attorneys to discontinue the practice.

Dothard said that since January 1, when the "Find the Drunk" program was started by Troopers, 3,420 drunk drivers have been arrested - the highest number on record for any comparable period. But it does little or no good to make arrests if the courts do not prosecute them.

"Our reports show that, in spite of the use of scientific instruments, which conclusively establish the degree of intoxication, it is almost impossible to obtain convictions as charged in many courts," Colonel Dothard said.

Public Safety records show that less than sixty percent of those charged with Driving While Intoxicated throughout the State are convicted. Unfortunately, in several counties, convictions are the exception rather than the rule. "We take no issue with court decisions reached after the evidence is presented; however, most case reductions occur without the court hearing the evidence of the case in question," the Director said. "Our reports also show that many cases are several years old and are still pending, with no court action taken," he continued.

THANKS

I thank each of you who supported and voted for me on May 7. I also thank each voter for taking the time to select his candidate whether I was your choice or not.

It is more important for the people to be democratic than for me to be nominated.

Inasmuch as I am out of the race I intend to vote for and support J. Alpha Lowe on June 4 and hope my many friends will do the same.

Alton Parker

Anthony told us about how each department in the school had to make a self-study of their methods, objectives, and philosophy. When the accreditation committee came to the school, they observed teachers in action, and closely examined every aspect of the school and its grounds.

When asked what was their next goal, Mrs. Riley answered, "Now we have to prepare for accreditation by the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges. Although the state board has strict guidelines for accreditation, the southern association is even more picky." Her other committee members agreed that this next phase will really require work in the coming year.

For opening new high school--

Board of Ed. requests funds

In an historic first, The Shelby County Board of Education appeared before the County Commission on Monday, to request assistance in the opening of the new Pelham High School.

Lavon Moore, chairman of the board of education was spokesman for the group. Board members Jim Seaman, Doug Kent and Joe Dean were also at the meeting. The only board of education member absent was D. B. Smith, who is in the hospital.

The board requested the Commission to build a safe front entrance road to pass in front of the new school and terminate at the football field; to grade a playground and to grade a football field.

The board of education stated that the cost of the building ($2,000,080) and land ($105,000) had exceeded the bond issue to pay for construction and they did not know how they could do these additional items.

County Engineer Jim Ray estimated that if the Commission did the work, it would cost approximately $46,000 and would take about two months time. This would prevent completion of the county's road construction and maintenance program as well as delay the opening of two new sanitary landfills. Ray further stated that if the job was contracted out, probable cost would exceed $50,000.

The Commission agreed to take bids on the project to discern actual costs, but made no final decision on the project.

The educators mentioned in passing the need for the Commission to pass a county-wide sales or occupational tax to support the school program. The Commission, visibly surprised, made no comment other than to note that it had the power to do so and it could be done with or without a referendum.

In further action the Commission approved an additional appropriation of $3,500 and an office to the Soil Conservation Service. With this additional appropriation a full time secretary and a soils scientist will be added to the staff. The soils scientist, in addition to preparing soils maps of proposed sub-divisions, will prepare a soils map of the entire county. This latter project should be completed in about three years.

The Commission unanimously rejected an application for a restaurant liquor license at the old antique auction building on Local business changes owners

One of Central Alabama's oldest automobile dealerships changed ownership and names Tuesday.

McDow Motor Company became Strickland Chevrolet when Rick McDow, son of the founder of the firm turned the keys of the company over to Bill Strickland.

The late J. T. "Jimmy" McDow began selling new Kaiser automobiles in Clanton shortly after returning to civilian life after World War II. McDow Motor Company, founded in 1947, moved to Columbiana in 1949 and became the county seat's franchised Chevrolet dealership.

Since Mr. McDow's death last year the firm has been operated by Rick McDow, who left Columbiana Tuesday to return to active duty with the U.S. Air Force.

Bill Strickland, the new owner, is a native of Helena and a graduate of Thompson High School.

Strickland, a veteran of the Korean war, has been in the automobile business since 1962. He operated Strickland Motors in Birmingham from 1962 until 1972 and Strickland Motors in Alabaster since 1967.

The new owner will be joined in the business by his son, Steve, 22.

Strickland is married to the former Angela Kemp of Birmingham. They have seven children including a daughter who is a student at the University of West Virginia, a son in the navy, two children at Thompson High School, a son at Christian Alliance School in Vestavia and a daughter at Shelby Academy.

The Stricklands plan to move to Columbiana in the near future.

Highway 31 at Saginaw. The application was made by Mrs. Shirley Lemley. Reason for the denial was that 14 of the 15 residents in the immediate area objected to allowing a liquor outlet there.

Mr. J. S. Lee was appointed to the board of directors of the Spring Creek Water Authority, to fill the unexpired term of George Eller.

The voting place in Beat 22 was moved to the residence of Mrs. G. L. Mulkey.

M. C. Sparks to be honored with dinner

At Montevallo council meeting--

Summer rec program outlined

Montevallo's summer recreation program will begin June 10 and will run through August 26, according to Eric Stipe, director of the city's municipal recreation program.

Stipe outlined plans for the summer program and gave a brief review of the winter's activities during Montevallo's City Council meeting Monday night. A Fourth of July celebration will include a city wide family picnic in the new city park, according to Stipe. In other action Monday night, council members voted to permit the Montevallo Jaycees to sponsor a carnival during the month of June. The request to sponsor the event was made by Larry McGee of the local chapter.

Montevallo's Fire Chief, Dr. S. M. Mahan reported to the council that the city's fire department has been answering an average of slightly more than one fire call per week since the fiscal year began in October. Mahan also informed council members that the chassis for the city's new fire truck has been delivered to the Snorkel firm in St. Joseph, Missouri. The city ordered a fifty-five foot snorkel-type fire engine last winter. Delivery on the new vehicle is scheduled for March, 1975.

Personnel of the fire department is at an all time high, according to Mahan. The department now has 31 men on its rolls.

In other action Monday night, the council approved a request from Smitherman Taxi Company, to provide one reserved parking space for a taxi on Main Street.

Joe Smitherman, owner and operator of the new service made the request. Montevallo had been without taxi service for several months until Smitherman began his service several weeks ago.

Visitors at Monday night's meeting included members of the Montevallo Jaycees and several members of the Montevallo Cub Scout pack including Cubmaster Leldon Rochester.

Bus drivers sought by school board

The School Board is looking for school bus drivers. A 12 hour training clinic is scheduled for the week of May 28-31 to train new bus drivers, according to Sherill McClure, supervisor of transportation.

The training will be given by personnel of the State Department of Education each morning of the week from 9 a.m. till noon.

Anyone who holds a valid driver's license, is under 60 years of age and in reasonably good health is eligible to attend.

McClure said that all persons interested in taking the training should telephone the education office in person or by telephone, 669-2491.

My opponents in the primary race for the Shelby County Commission.

They are to be commended for the clean, high-level race they ran. They came to me as soon as the results were known and shook hands and congratulated me. I am very happy because we were friends before the race, we were friends during the campaign and best of all we are still friends.

I admire the people who supported them so well, but I am now requesting that they throw your support to me.

Following their wedding the couple plan to live in Tuscaloosa where Miss Halstead will continue her studies and Mr. Moore will further his journalistic career.

Friends honor McDows at neighborhood picnic

A Neighborhood Picnic held last Friday evening on Briarwood's spacious grounds marked another memorable occasion for "Rick and Beverly McDow" to cherish as they leave for Craig Air Force Base where Rick will be stationed as he re-enters the military life as a first Lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force.

The delightful get-together was hosted by Mrs. Bill Thompson, Sara Rasco and Mary Gene Denney, and brought together 40 neighbors and friends in this section of Columbiana where friends had the opportunity of expressing regrets over losing the McDows in Columbiana but wishing for them future happiness in the patriotic service for Uncle Sam.

One member of the group told the writer that everyone had such a good time just taking time out to "be together" that this cook-out might just become a once a month event.

Your friends and mine

by Mildred White Wallace

Mr. and Mrs. William Rasco, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Blackberry and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Rasco have returned from a flying trip to Madrid. They found Spain to be a fabulous country to visit with many interesting sights to see; but all was not light and merriment. The chartered plane on their way home blew a tire and forced a landing. They spent the night in a motel nearby. They started again the next day to reach their destination and the same thing happened to the plane and they were forced to remain 31 hours in the airport while parts needed were flown in from Germany to repair the plane. This delay caused a belated communication with homefold -- and much anxiety was experienced regarding the "wee ones" left at home before families were re-united at their homes in Columbiana.

Glad we can write a happy ending to an event which could have resulted in a tragic happening.

Glad to report that Mrs. Butch Ellis is recuperating satisfactorily at her home from a recent trip to the hospital.

Mrs. Warren Duke (Pat Brown) continues her stay in Carraway Methodist Hospital, but is recovering satisfactorily from recent surgery. This will be good news to many friends in Columbiana who have been deeply concerned over her illness.

A curbside chat with Lucille Crawford reveals the fact that the building she owns on Main next to Clay's Fabrics is being torn down so that Butler -- owner of Bill's Dollar Stores -- can enlarge his present store building and bring an even larger stock of goods to the Columbiana store for the approval of his customers.

Western Auto Associate Store is building an addition to his warehouse to take care of this fast expanding business.

Dr. and Mrs. John Gates spent the weekend in Tenn. as the guests of her daughter Mrs. Poole and Mr. Poole.

Ray Joiner and Patti McDow, young people's leaders from First Baptist Church, were honored in a special Commissioning Service Sunday evening. They will serve with the Home Mission Board during the summer months. Patti will be with the Home Mission Board in Illinois; and Ray will go to Calif.

Cecil Ethridge of Atlanta presented the charge to these students. Following the ceremony, the deacons of the church gave them special recognition.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hotchkiss of Rt 1 Chelsea, announce the arrival of a son born in Shelby Memorial May 5 tipping the scales at seven pounds and ten ounces. The name of Chelsea's newest citizen is Joseph Rodney.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hotchkiss and Mr. Jerry McDaniel and the late Mrs. McDaniel.

There is a new little face in Pabum Land today in the person of a son born to Mr. and Mrs. Ben King (Darlene Cox) on May 4 in Baptist Medical, Princeton. They have named him Leslie Brent. He weighed nine pounds and seven ounces when he arrived.

Grandparents are Jean C. King and J.B. King, Jr. of Columbiana; and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cox of Helena.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Suttle have returned to Columbiana after spending the weekend in Atlanta with Mr. and Mrs. Allen Suttle and Mr. and Mrs. Buster Suttle.

Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Farr Jr, Rhonda and Kimberly Farr of Senoia, Ga., were special weekend guests of his mother Mrs. Mary Farr and of her parents Mr. and Mrs. O.B.

Merrell.

Present to say "Hello Mom" Sunday in the L.B. Wallace home were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Wallace of Hanceville; Mr. and Mrs. Joel Glaze and four children and Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace and Scott all of Athens.

Once upon a time Adele Price and Gavin Minor were born in Columbiana. They were schoolmates and the kind of sweethearts that wrote on that slate "I-love-you-Joe". Years however came between -- as they sometimes do -- bringing different scenes, places, and people into their lives. Each married someone else and had families of their own. Time moved on and brought other changes in their lives. Both Adele and Gavin lost their companions and their pathways grew lonely! Kismet-Fate-Cupid-call it what you will, a chain of circumstances brought them together again -- and to make a long story short -- both walked through the office door today and told me that after 40 years apart -- they were now happily married and we had the privilege of wishing for them naught but happiness through all the years go be.

Last Thursday was an exceptionally lucky day for us. Several former residents who had been away from Columbiana for years came back to "look around the old home town" and they dropped in to see us. For instance, Dr. Paul Longshore, prominent dentist in Birmingham; Alice Longshore (Mrs. -----) and her son from Montana; and Frances Longshore from the Magic City. All were children of the late Judge and Mrs. A.P. Longshore who resided here many years before moving to Birmingham. Judge Longshore served the county as Probate Judge for over 30 years. The longest tenure, I have been told, in the history of the county.

Minor awarded C.A.M. designation

by Mildred White Wallace

Of keen personal interest to the writer and to former Shelby County High classmates and friends of Thomas W. Minor, Jr., comes the news that he has been awarded the Certified Administrative Manager (C.A.M.) professional designation. He is Director of Financial Planning, Southern Pipe and Supply Co., Inc., Meridian, Mississippi.

Minor is a former officer of the University of Alabama Alumni Association and the first C.A.M. in Miss.

Earning the C.A.M. does not come easily. The recipient has to meet five program standards designed to measure his "professionalism". In addition to meeting all these requirements he is required to have two years of management experience and to possess high standards of personal and professional conduct. Before the final award is made, evidence of the individual's leadership and communicating ability must be submitted and approved by an accredited panel comprised of leading administrative managers and educators.

Tom is the first candidate to receive this C.A.M. award in Mississippi. Over 700 individuals are currently enrolled as candidates for this prestigious distinction. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T.W. Minor Sr. in Columbiana.

Grads seek careers in journalism field

by Mildred White Wallace

Several of our young graduates from various high schools in Shelby County who soon will be tucking the coveted sheepskin under their arms have begun wondering - just "where do we go from here as they (trite but true) take their stand at the time worn "cross-roads". A few have stopped by seeking some pointers on a journalistic career; the preparation needed abreast of what is happening. It is a time consuming occupation. The minute you get one edition off press -- you begin thinking about the next issue and you find yourself swimming around in a sea of printer's ink looking for a potential news story. There is no limit to the work nor the hours involved in the production of a newspaper -- even in a limited territory.

We, however, once talked with Cranston Williams of the Associated Press regarding his ideas of the essential for successful newspaper writing. He said: "The most necessary requisites to success in the newspaper profession are intelligence, scientific curiosity and a willingness to learn and work." He further stated that those entering the newspaper field would find that their feet had already started on the first rung of a ladder, the climbing of which would bring singular satisfaction seldom found elsewhere.

He said, that education specialization in journalistic subjects was to be desired but that it offered no substitute for experience and work. The last two words "experience and work" he emphasized as essentials.

Do not get the idea that the newspaper you casually flip through, taking only a few minutes to read and throw away, did not require long hours of hard work on the part of many people who had a part in the creation of the finished product. Possibly more study and work than you might ever have dreamed about.

However, there will always be a newspaper. There will always be Old Man People; and there will always be things happening on this fast spinning ball of a world worth writing about.

So, if you have a flair for reporting them, a good vocabulary, and you like folks and things, and you want to tell people about them, pick up your little penpoint and get going. But -- be prepared to make the cake before attempting to ice it! Get what I mean?

Tennis court project fails to draw bids

The question regarding the two tennis courts for which money is available to be built has met a labor problem which is holding up the project. The contractor who agreed to build the courts is reported to have reneged on his contract after the cement jumped sky high in an unprecedented short time. It seems contractor's are interested only in large jobs -- and the two tennis courts are too small to attract a bid. Perhaps those interested in recreation activities for the summer can inveigle someone to undertake this job.

You are truly right in being concerned over it and dead right when you say "Time Waits For No Man" and the summer will be gone before a single game can be played -- but -- solving the labor problem and getting a contractor interested seems to be the problem.

Columbiana city police issue speed warning

Chief of Police, Howell Horn, and his assistants have issued a "courteous warning" to motorists in Columbiana who may be exceeding the speed limits posted. A new radar device has been installed which will tabulate your speed no matter where you are.

Chief Horn suggests that you read the STOP signs -- and the Speed Limit signs lest Mr. Radar catches you and fines you for not observing these municipal laws. To refresh your memories -- the residential section carries a limit of 25 miles per hour; in the business section and in the school zones you may travel only 15 miles per hour.

News-- 25 years ago

by Mildred White Wallace

Following our recent mention of four markers on the four Confederate graves now in the Columbiana Cemetery, we learn that Rev. T.K. Roberts, several weeks ago, heard of a government project that would furnish markers for all Confederate graves. He went to work on this worthwhile tribute to fallen heroes of a lost cause and he was informed by the late W.G. Parker that 50 more Confederate soldiers died during the Civil War in a hospital located at Shelby Springs and were buried in the Columbiana Cemetery. Authentic information was obtained on four soldiers whose graves have now been marked in Columbiana.

Mr. Roberts has sent markers to others in Shelby County when the correct information could be substantiated. He was assisted in financing this patriotic gesture by members of the Columbiana Culture Club.

West Blocton bank moves

Calera resident Eddie Downs, president of the Bank of West Blocton, announces that the bank is having the grand opening of a new building on May 26.

The new building is across the street from the smaller building used by the bank since 1965. When the bank moves, the old building will become West Blocton's new city hall.

The bank is as large and modern as many banks in the state's larger cities, with its first floor for office use and the second floor for storage. The most unusual feature of the building is an underground teller system with pneumatic tubes connected to two drive-in windows. The teller will be able to serve two drive-in customers at one time.

Customers using this system can cash a check by placing it in a canister which travels by tube underneath the pavement to the teller. The teller will send the money back by the same means.

The building will boast a large lobby and spacious offices for president Downs and Mrs. Janice Callahan, cashier. Mrs. Callahan said that the bank invites everyone to the new building's grand opening on May 26.

Ministry is family affair for Lunsfords

The Christian ministry is a family affair in the home of Jimmie D. Lunsford, route 1, Alabaster.

The Bible Study Overseer of the Columbiana congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, Lunsford has a wife and four children, all four of whom qualify as ministers in the congregation.

Right now they're preparing to represent the congregation in a semi-annual convention May 25 and 26 at Tuscaloosa, Ala. Almost any week throughout the year, however, they may be found walking from house to house pursuing the doorstep ministry for which Jehovah's Witnesses are noted.

The object of their visits, he explains, is to promote home Bible study.

It was through such a study that Lunsford, a native of Missouri, and his wife, of Iowa, learned about Jehovah's Witnesses back in 1957. Both have been active Witnesses ever since.

All Witnesses are ministers, and none are salaried. Thus, Lunsford makes his living as an office manager. This doesn't mean the ministry is incidental, or part-time.

The 39-year-old minister takes the lead in congregation activities, which means arranging five weekly congregational meetings, visiting the 71 members in their homes, plus the public house-to-house ministry.

His wife, while rearing four children, regularly engages in the public ministry too and finds time to devote as much as a hundred hours a month to such work on special occasions.

The eldest son Stephen, 19, and Julie 16, also have been a hundred-hour a-month ministers at times, particularly during school vacations. Kim 17, and Nikki 11, are door-to-door "publishers" with the congregation.

Lunsford points out that it is this sort of personal ministry which has been responsible for the growth of the Witnesses, who now number one and two thirds million.

Lunsford will have a main part on the Saturday evening program entitled, "Witnessing in a Discerning Manner."

The coming convention, to be held at the Tuscaloosa County High School Gymnasium, will bring together some 1200 Witnesses from this area and they will get a weekend of instruction, climaxed by a public Bible talk Sunday at 2 p.m. It is entitled, "Be Confident of Divine Victory."

ADK society holds last meeting of year

The last meeting for this school year of Beta Lambda Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa met at the University of Montevallo faculty lounge.

Taking part in the installation service were Clemmie Bradley, Arleta Eastis, Dorothy Hatcher, Juanita Lightsey, Doris McGaughey, Mary McEntee, Iva Belle Moore, Bettye Shirley and Kathleen Turner. Frances Lokey, retiring president was in charge of the service.

Brief reports were given by the three members who attended the state convention at Troy University on April 20.

The next meeting will be in September when the new president, Kathleen Turner will assume duties for the 1974-76 term of office.

Some of the committees will be working during the summer to work on programs, yearbooks and other projects. The theme for the coming year will be "Appreciation of Our Nation," which is in keeping with the celebration of the 200th birthday of the nation.

Chickenque held

The Shelby County 4-H Chickenque was held Saturday at the recreation area in Columbiana. Thirteen 4-Hers participated in the county-wide contest. They barbequed chicken and were judged on various points, such as starting the fire, barbeque sauces, cooking procedures and the taste of the chicken. The judges talked to the 4-H members while they were barbequing and asked questions about cooking tips, recipes for sauces etc.

After they finished, a delicious lunch of barbequed chicken was served to the 4-H members, parents, judges and guests.

Seniors winners were, 1st place, Louise Rooks, Chelsea; and 2nd, Melinda Hollis, Wilsonville.

Steve and Melinda will represent Shelby County at the district chickenque to be held in July.

Food stamp office open for service

The food stamp office will open this morning, May 16.

Food stamps may be purchased between the hours of 9:30 and 12 noon, and 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. at the former commodities building in Columbiana.

This schedule will be followed Mondays through Fridays except on state holidays when the office will be closed.

Food stamp applications will be taken from 8 to 12 and from 1 to 5 according to Mrs. Sarah B. Meadows supervisor of the county food stamp program.

Water purifiers aid tornado victims

Water purifiers from Helena's J and B Enterprises are again in the news as a result of last month's devastating tornadoes. Following the storm that leveled Guin in early

April, the company rushed a shipment of portable purifiers to the Red Cross, where they provided safe, good tasting water for thirsty victims and disaster workers.

The purifiers were so effective that Robert Arnwine, area Red Cross Disaster Services Director, said that they have retained some of the units for use in future disasters when water sources are affected. The purifiers were used in relief work in areas without safe water because of the storm damage to the community water system. The units were placed in Red Cross disaster vans and used to supply water to families and disaster workers.

In an article a few months ago the Reporter featured Josh Jones, president and founder of J and B Enterprises, and his inventions the Aquacell and the Traveler. Forty-eight of the Traveler model were presented to Arnwine of the river and lake water into same Red Cross, with the units valued at about $1,500.

Jones stated that the small, portable water purifiers were originally developed to convert as numerous retail outlets."

New films coming to library

More films are coming to the Shelby County library for use by county residents.

Mrs. Cecile W. Leonard, Director of the Shelby County Library, announced today that the Alabama Public Library Service has allocated $10,000 and the Alabama State Council on the Arts and Humanities has allocated $2,500 to purchase 16mm films for the Alabama

Cooperative Film Circuit. The Shelby County Library is a member of that cooperative organization, and the grant will permit local clubs and agencies to have access to substantially more films for educational and cultural programs.

This is the first time that the APLS has allocated funds for this program, and there are no restrictions on the type of film which may be purchased. This is the second time the State Arts Council has provided a grant to the film co-operative. Last year, $4,000 was allocated to acquire a basic collection of films of benefit to arts organizations in such fields as the dance, drama, literature, film study, poetry, art, sculpture and ceramics.

This second grant, Mrs. Leonard said, will permit the acquisition of additional titles in the arts and humanities fields of benefit to any organization concerned with those subjects. The grant provided by the APLS will permit purchase of films needed for children's story hours, and other films covering travel, history, biography and the social sciences for adults and young adults.

Selection of films is done cooperatively by the members of the film circuit, who share in the purchase of these expensive resources, and in their use. There are 16 member library systems, serving 31 counties and over two million persons in Alabama. The circuit has over 240 films in its collection, which are equally divided among its members, and rotated each month, to insure a fresh supply of films are available to each library.

Among the films available for loan this month from the library are Azalea Trails in Old Mobile, Marxism: The Theory That Split A World, Sunshine Showplaces, Speaking of Glass, Wealth of the Wasteland, the Mongrel Dog and Little Blue and Little Yellow. Booking information on these films can be obtained by telephoning 669-7851.

Marion sets summer school

Marion Institute has announced that its coeducational summer session will be non-military this year in a return to an earlier tradition.

"Until the 1960's," Colonel James A. Jackson, Jr., newly appointed Admissions Director, states, "summer sessions were always civilian."

Now he cites the small classes, excellent laboratories, and expert instructors as especially appealing to any student who wants to catch up or to get ahead.

"Students wanting to take science or math with us during the summer and return to their present school in the fall can do so without the expense of buying uniforms," he says.

New house features rustic theme

by Elsie Archer Jones

When the statement is made that the sons and daughters of the people of the South, and especially Alabama, were electing to remain at home to find employment is particularly true here all over Shelby County, and more especially true here in Westover. Whenever any land in this vicinity is sold, it is usually passed on down to the heirs of that family, so that they can remain "at home."

Many of our newest homes and trailer homes are being placed on a plot which had been purchased from "Dad" and "Mom".

Such is true with the magnificent new home of Ray and Barbara Moore, which is built on the forty acres of land which they had purchased from Barbara's father, Bill Osborn, and is just joining the land of "Grandpa Osborn".

When you first come upon this home which features black and sunshine yellow, even the bricks themselves, you think that it covers the entire forty acres itself. But, when you walk through the house, you will find that they have made their rooms larger than the normal house, for it is a three-bedroom, two bath home, but with all the extra utility rooms which are necessary in a modern home. Too, since it is built on a steep hilltop, back off Highway 280, it has huge retaining walls of brick and stones to hold the land from washing.

Barbara remarked that their motto in life is "That when you have had to work for something, you appreciate it more." This home shows in every detail that it has been built by artisans who have known how to use their artistic instincts throughout the house. In the den, there is the fireplace which has become famous throughout this area as the "Adrian Lee Moore fireplace", which is built of native stones and put together with black mortar. It extends across one entire end of the den with its benches and even a spark arrester on the floor. The lighting fixture was made by Ray from an old Oak wagon wheel, with the wiring added. Much of the furniture of the house, has been finished by Ray using a blow torch to burn off the old paint and brushing on the burnt wood, carrying the original idea of black and yellow throughout the furnishings. Old relics from the families have been refinished and placed around for display.

The basement extends entirely beneath the area covered by the home, and it is the gathering place of all of Gregg's and Cathy's friends. There is no generation gap in this family, for even to "Grandpa Osborn" there is a complete feeling of belonging and of communicating with each other.

Gregg's bedroom is alive with relics portraying the "Rebels". One wall is filled with the flags on the Confederacy and pictures of football teams from both Chelsea and Coosa Valley Academy, which truly look like pictures of some of the husky men of the Old South who could take on any Yankee brigade today, and chase them right back north of the Mason and Dixon Line.

A new arrival in the home of Chad and Brenda Barnes was announced on May 1. This young miss was born at Baptist Medical Center, Montclair, and weighed in at eight pounds and nine ounces. She has been named Kelly Michelle, and is the first child for this couple, as well as the first grandchild for Chad's parents Mr. and Mrs. Duffee Hughes. Her maternal grandparents are Mr. Howard Brown of Highway 280 West, and Mrs. Mary Brasher of Chelsea.

The Preserve the Old Courthouse Committee of the Shelby County Historical Society met at Indian Springs School for a supper party on May 3. A good representation of the Committee was present and plans were made to start a campaign of letters to our government officials from local to national soliciting their help in furthering our plans to preserve this old historic building and to get funds to renovate it for future use. From the Westover community, Mr. and Mrs. Lane Shaw, Mrs. Velma Shaw, and the writer were the representatives. We wish to express our thanks to Mr. Howard Draper and the staff of the Indian Springs dining room for their gracious hospitality and for the delicious meal which was served to us.

BEFORE YOU BUILD, IMPROVE OR BUY LAND AROUND ALABAMA POWER COMPANY RESERVOIRS, DETERMINE HOW MUCH OF THE LAND WILL BE SUBJECT TO FLOODING.

Alabama Power Company has full ownership of lands in the permanent reservoir areas upstream from its dams. It also has a flood easement on certain lands above and outside of the permanent reservoir areas for the purpose of flooding these lands from time to time as may be required during flood periods for temporary storage of water. This temporary storage is necessary for the purpose of flood regulation and control which is required by its Federal Power Commission license.

Property owners, builders or prospective purchasers of lots or acreage extending into the flood easement areas should learn how much of the property in which they are interested is situated on land between the top level of the permanent reservoirs and the top level of the flood easement areas since these areas are subject to flooding and will be flooded. The extent of Alabama Power Company's flood easement on any given tract of land can be determined by examining the public records in the court house of the county in which the land is located. With such information a competent surveyor can locate and stake the limits of the flood easement on the ground.

Alabama Power Company wants to see the lands above the flood easement of its reservoirs fully and attractively developed, but in a manner which will be safe, enjoyable and reasonable. However, Alabama Power Company cannot be responsible for injuries to persons or damages to any property or to any type of structure or improvement in the permanent reservoir areas or flood easement areas resulting from flooding. Please note that construction of dwelling houses, commercial establishments, dikes and fills and other improvements on the land in the permanent reservoir areas, as well as the flood easement areas, both covered by Federal Power Commission license, is not permitted. FUTURE STRUCTURES OR IMPROVEMENTS UNLAWFULLY PLACED IN SUCH AREAS WILL BE REQUIRED TO BE REMOVED FROM THE RESERVOIR AND FLOOD EASEMENT AREAS.

Observing the precaution of knowing how much of the land you plan to improve is in the flood easement area and avoiding construction within that area of any type of structure will eliminate the necessity of action on our part to protect our flood rights and will help make your experience in the development of the lot or acreage you own a pleasant one.

WE NEED YOUR HELP

The law says that County Deputies may not be politically active, but that they may express their own personal political conviction privately and that they may vote as they please.

WE FIND THAT: County paid Deputies, riding in County purchased cars, on county gas, are actively visiting citizens in the County and asking them to support the present Sheriff, and are actively passing out political literature for the Sheriff. This is illegal and it is unfair.

You can help put a stop to this

Please ask these Deputies who make political visits to get back to their law enforcement duties. Let the Sheriff know that you expect him to abide by the law in this campaign. These Deputies have been trained at taxpayers expense and should not be required to be active in this campaign.

Bill Thompson has made it clear that he is running against the Sheriff - not the Sheriff's Department.

Let's keep the deputies out of this race

The family lawyer--

Motel not liable for loss

Melvin's restful night at a motel came to a jarring end when he looked out the window in the morning. His car, which he had parked just outside the room, had disappeared. In fact, he never saw it again.

In due course, he tried to collect reimbursement from the management of the motel. "I was their guest," he argued in a court hearing, "and my car was on their premises. Therefore, they are legally liable for the loss."

However, the court tossed out Melvin's claim. The court said his argument did not stand up because he had never turned over possession of the car to the management. He had parked the car himself and kept the keys in his pocket.

It is true that motels — and hotels as well — bear a substantial responsibility for the property of their guests.

This rule dates all the way back to the Middle Ages in England, when inns were considered a kind of safety zone for the travelling public.

But the rule does not go into effect until the property has been transferred to the possession of the management. In the case of automobiles, possession is ordinarily transferred when the guest surrenders his keys to a company employee.

The exact moment of transfer may become crucial. One woman left her car at the entrance to a hotel and went in to register. When the bellboy asked her for the keys, she replied that she had left them in the ignition.

Shortly afterward, a thief slipped into the car and made off with it.

Had the woman delivered possession of the car to the hotel management, making it responsible for her loss?

A court said yes, even though the keys had never been physically handed over to the bellboy. The court said the woman's words had given him the right to take possession of the car — and along with the right went the responsibility.

THANK YOU!

I sincerely appreciate the vote you gave me on May 7. I will always try to prove worthy of your trust and show my appreciation by doing the best possible job as your State Senator.

Sincerely,
Obie J. Littleton

FIRE -- Smoke billows from the Calera Eagle Restaurant as firemen are shown directing streams of water on the blazing building. The alarm was turned in at approximately 9 a.m. Tuesday. The burning building and its contents created an unusual amount of dense smoke, hampering firefighters and at times cutting visibility to zero on U.S. Highway 31. An unofficial estimate of damage: $10,000 to equipment and furnishing; $15,000 to the building.

Alabaster to let contract on sewer improvement

The city of Alabaster is on the verge of beginning their municipal sewerage improvement project, delayed for more than five years.

The city is taking bids for the construction of a sewage treatment plant and a sewer pumping station with outfall sewers.

Construction on the project is expected to begin in July or August, and Alabaster mayor Harold Davenport estimates that the cost will run around two million dollars.

Alabaster has been working for about seven years with the engineering firm of Harry Hendon and Associates on plans for the sewerage system, but the project has been long delayed by various factors. Davenport told the Reporter that this time "Everything is ready to go except for letting the contracts."

The sewer project will be partially funded by about $827,000 in grants from the Environmental Protection Agency. The rest of the money will come from the sale of bonds, with probably three bond issues, according to Mayor Davenport. The city had received bids previously, but the bids exceeded the amount of money the city could amass for the project.

Due to the long delay in beginning, many newer houses in Alabaster will not be initially served by the sewer system. The houses built in the past few years were not included in the original plans, and thus will not be served until a second phase of construction begins sometime later in the future.

The project should begin within a month or two of June 14, the deadline for contractors to submit their bids. If the city accepts one of the bids, the contract will be let within 60 days. Davenport said that they will probably notify the contractor in a month's time, and the work should soon begin afterward. One of the consulting engineers estimates that the actual work will take at least twelve months, but the mayor predicts a year and a half of construction.

The sewer project will be done in several steps. The first part will be the building of the treatment plant and the laying of outfall lines. The treatment plant will be located on the city's land behind the Triple J restaurant. The second phase of work will be the building of the pumping station, to be located north of treatment facility. The last phase will be the installation of collection lines for sewer subscribers; this phase will be delayed and bids will be let on that part of the project later.

Mayor Davenport said that when the collection lines are laid and the initial project is completed, all houses or places of business with access to the sewer will have to tie into the system. He stated, that, unlike Helena's municipal system, Alabaster's will not tie into the proposed system for north Shelby County. Alabaster will dump its treated sewage into Buck Creek, while the other two systems will use the Cahaba River.

When the system is completed it will initially serve about 800 units, including homes, businesses, and industries. Davenport said, "If we already had the sewer system in, we would be able to get more industry. Also, since no more apartments can be built without a sewer line, developers of three sites are merely waiting for us to get the sewer system in."

All around county--

Road projects forge ahead

by Willard Harrison
Highway construction is proceeding in almost every part of the county, though the detours and inconveniences are only temporary. Both state and county road crews are busy on a number of projects, from interstates to new county roads and even modernizing projects.

Alabama Highway Department projects are well on schedule according to Ray Edwards of the department office in Calera. The overpass bridge project is getting into full swing in Alabaster on Highway 31 at the intersection with Interstate 65. The crew is preparing to lay the foundation for the bridge, and further progress is expected in the coming weeks.

Adjacent to the bridge project is the I-65 construction. This project, separate from the Highway 31 bridge crossing it, is moving ahead with the roadbed graded for several miles northward. Edwards adds that the crew is grading down a hill at the northwest corner of the intersection in preparation for an access road for the construction workers. There is already one access road from county road 11 onto the interstate project.

Edwards told the Reporter that related projects will soon be let for additional bridge projects on the new stretch of I-65. Three new bridges will have to be built, including ones at Peavine Creek and at the Seaboard railroad crossing.

The new Highway 280 construction is on schedule as well, says Edwards, with no major problems confronting them. He admitted that several sinkholes on the nine-mile route will require special attention. The roadbed for the new route is graded and the construction crew is now pouring the cement drain culverts.

Edwards mentioned that the highway department headquarters is also making progress toward a permanent location in Calera. The state has purchased land and contracting for the building is in the works. The state headquarters in the county is temporarily located in the Shelby Industrial Park in Calera, having been housed in a rented building since the county office was created some months ago. Shelby County was formerly served by the state's district office in Talladega.

The county road department is equally busy with several major road projects. County engineer James Ray points out that they are working on road projects in all parts of the county, including several major jobs such as the massive rock cut the county is working GUTTED INTERIOR -- Calera fire officials declared the Calera Eagle Restaurant a total loss after fire fighters spent two and a half hours preventing the blaze from spreading to other buildings. The fire is believed to have started from an unknown cause in the kitchen area of the 25 year old building. The cement block structure was built by the late Neil Farris, Calera businessman. Mrs. W.H. Crawford purchased the building in 1950. The restaurant was operated by Mrs. Betty Horton. No one was in the building when fire broke out.

Calera group passes blood drive quota

Shelby County American Red Cross granted total blood coverage to all employees and families of the Calera Martin-Marietta Southern Division Plant Thursday, May 16. This industry, for the fourth straight year, surpassed the 35 percent participation quota required for the Red Cross 100 percent blood coverage. At the Bloodmobile Operation Thursday, 118 plant employees offered blood - 78 of which were productive donors contributing 78 pints of blood!

Mrs. Emily C. Rabren, Executive Secretary for Shelby County Red Cross, states: "The accomplishment of this Blood Operation is attributed to the enthusiastic recruiting of the Plant Safety Director, Leo Horton, and to the great interest and support of the Red Cross Blood Program by the General Plant Manager, W.E. Robinson, and the local Plant Manager, Harold A. Estes.

Mr. Horton, Plant Safety Director, stated that a number of the plant's employees can be counted on to stand by in cases of emergencies to give additional blood when needed through out the year.

"A volunteer corps of Calera women led by Mrs. Walter Ingram, Chairman, assisted tremendously in the record contribution of the Blood Operation. They include: Mrs. C.T. Childress, Mrs. Joe Crawford, Mrs. Tim Fancher, Mrs. Buddy Hayes, Mrs. O. Horn, Mrs. Joe Killingsworth, Mrs. Henry Lambrecht, Mrs. Mack Turnbloom, Mrs. Ted Wells, and Mrs. Sam Williams.

Summer sessions to attract 1300

Summer time means vacations of many county school children, but about 1,300 students will be attending summer school sessions at ten Shelby County schools. Beginning on May 29, students will attend twenty-six half days of school until July 3.

Children from pre-school age to those in the eighth grade will study mathematics, reading, and the language arts. The federal money available this year through Public Law 89-10, Title One, gives priority to the lower grades, with grades seven and eight having the least priority, according to Verner Davis of the Superintendent of Education's office.

Under this arrangement the county has eight elementary school participating in the summer program, and two middle schools.

The elementary schools holding summer school are Calera, Chelsea, Columbiana Elementary, Helena, Montevallo Elementary, Thompson Elementary, Valley, and Vincent Elementary. The two middle schools offering summer sessions are Montevallo and Vincent middle schools.

Davis told the Reporter that the summer school program will enable the teachers to better relate to the special needs of the students. He commented that a class would average about fifteen students per teacher. The

Chelsea girl makes team

The women's liberation movement has been gaining momentum for some time now. The female equality trend has filtered down through the age groups until it has reached the traditional all-boy little league baseball program. Specifically speaking, it has come to the Chelsea Tigers Dixie Youth team.

But in the case of pretty blonde haired Jan Tate of Chelsea, nobody seems to mind a bit. This spunky lass has earned the praise of her coaches and team mates for her prowess on the baseball diamond.

Jan was officially welcomed into the Dixie Youth baseball program in Calera last Saturday night by Central Shelby League commissioner Wayne "Frosty" Shaw. This distinction makes Jan the only girl on a Dixie Youth or a Little League team in seven southern states, according to her coach, Nat Baker.

Coaches Baker and Joe Snider said that when Jan showed up for practice they decided to let her try out. Since then she hasn't missed a practice. Baker commented that he wished the Chelsea team had more players with her hustle and determination.

Jan started out playing the center field position in her opening game appearance in Columbiana. At her first time at bat, Jan showed all the skeptics in the crowd that she was on the field to play ball by hitting a line drive for a double on the first pitch that was thrown to her. Incidentally, she was the only one in the game to get a hit that inning. Jan Tate is twelve years old and attends the sixth grade at Chelsea School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.O. Tate of Chelsea.

FIELDING FOR CHELSEA -- Pretty Jan Tate is set to cover any ground ball coming her way on the ball field. Jan, a sixth grader at Chelsea School, has earned a starting position on the Chelsea Tigers Dixie Youth baseball team. She is the only girl playing on a Dixie Youth or Little League team in seven southern states.

SCHOOL'S OUT -- Montevallo High School seniors express the wild jubilation felt by all seniors as they reach the last day of their high school careers. Occasion for the pyramid pile-up was the senior class picnic held Friday at the city park.

Highway director speaks to Montevallo Rotarians

Alabama's 898 miles of Interstate highways are now 73 percent complete, according to Ray Bass, Director of the Alabama State Highway Department.

Bass was the principal speaker at a recent Rotary Club meeting held in Montevallo.

"Ninety two percent of the entire Interstate project is either open to traffic or in the design and construction stage, but only 63 percent of the funding has been provided," Bass stated.

Bass, who is a Navy veteran and a graduate of Auburn University, told the Rotarians that the nation's Interstate program is one of the most ambitious engineering projects ever attempted.

In reviewing progress on the coast to coast and border to border system, Bass indicated that the idea for such a highway system entered the planning stage before World War II, and was actually begun in 1956. Initial plans called for completion in 1972. The target date was later changed to 1976 and present plans call for completion in 1981, Bass said.

Currently the biggest problem is one of funding. Alabama has the contractors, the engineers, materials and experience to complete the project well before the target date, according to Bass. The questionable factor is funding, he said.

Rural sections of the system are costing approximately $1,750,000 per mile to complete, Bass revealed, but in many urban areas the cost can go as high as 14 million dollars per mile.

When asked about the completion of I-65 and I-20 are now under contract to both the Mississippi and Georgia state lines.

Bass stated that only about ten percent of the requests for state roads and highways can be met. "Funding is the problem, again," he said.

In commenting on the proposed toll road from Kansas City to Brunswick, Georgia, Bass stated that studies show the segment between Memphis and Birmingham is the most feasible. He also indicated that construction of toll roads is less time consuming than construction of conventional highways. Toll roads frequently have traffic moving on them in less than four years from the start of construction. Normal roads take as long as ten to fifteen years, he said.

Bass was introduced by this month's program chairman, M. Thornton. Presiding at the meeting was Rotary president Phil Beasley.

TOPIC: ALABAMA HIGHWAYS - Ray Bass, (center) Director of the Alabama State Highway Department, discussed Alabama's Interstate System for members of the Montevallo Rotary Club at the civic group's most recent meeting. SA plans horse show

Shelby Academy is making plans for its annual two-day horse show, to be held this year on Friday, May 31, and Saturday, June 1.

James Duke of Alabaster is overall chairman of the horse show. Bill Knowles and Tommy Baker are co-chairmen and Sue Duke is secretary of the event.

The Friday show will feature 27 classes of western and 4-H horses, beginning at 6 p.m.

On Saturday Arabian, gaited, racking and walking horses will be featured in 35 classes, beginning at 4 p.m.

Assisting the Academy in the show this year is the Helena-based Racking Horse Breeders' Association of America.

Officers of the association are Joe D. Bright, president; H. A. Stewart, vice president; Johnny E. Turner, treasurer and Harold B. Blach, Jr., secretary.

The association is the official registry for the pedigrees of racking horses. It publishes a register or stud book and rules on other matters pertaining to the breeding, exhibiting and sale of racking horses as deemed advisable.

Proceeds from the Shelby Academy horse show go to various projects at the school. The Band Boosters are selling advance tickets and part of the proceeds will be used for the band. Other projects that will benefit from the show include academic and athletic projects.

James Gould of Alabaster returns this year as Ringmaster of the show. Bobby Sands will be master of ceremonies. Mrs.

Lyles Jenkins will serve as organist of the two-day event, and James M. Lee is coordinating publicity for the show.

To The Voters of Shelby County

As a group of interested citizens from Beat 7, Box 1, we ask that you give strong consideration to the facts presented below concerning the Sheriff's Department.

1. We have a qualified Sheriff with a law degree and many years experience.
2. There is a highly trained staff of deputies, office personnel, and reserve deputies on duty 24 hours a day, 7 days per week.
3. There is a mobile, fully-equipped crime lab and other equipment obtained by a Federal Grant, acquired by the knowledge of an experienced man.
4. Red is most interested and concerned about the youth in our County. Proof of this is the Youth Aid Service recently established. He has attended Drug Abuse Schools and is dealing with this acute problem by sponsoring seminars in churches, schools and clubs and working continually in combating all phases of drug abuse and the heartache it causes.
5. Sheriff Walker is a very personable, considerate person; always ready to help ALL people with any problem they might have. He lends a helping hand to all in need; keeping a cool, calm head in every situation.
6. Red now has working for him, one of the most highly trained deputies in the state. ALL the deputies have good character, are considerate and handle cases in a most efficient manner.
7. No personal faction is backing Red Walker.

In considering the above facts, please think also that it is a known practice, any time the office of Sheriff changes, the entire staff changes.

Where can we find a "BETTER, MORE QUALIFIED TEAM THAN THE ONE WE HAVE?"

Chairman lauds cancer drive

To the People of Shelby County:

On behalf of the Shelby County Cancer Society, I wish to thank all the good people from this county for their support of the cancer crusade.

I wish it were possible for me to personally thank each person who helped with the crusade from the high school coaches who made the "kick-off" such a success to the men who manned the road-block and the persons who did door-to-door solicitation. It was these volunteers who made the crusade a success.

If there is any person in Shelby County who was not given the opportunity to contribute to the crusade and wishes to do so, please send your contribution to Mr. Joe Bull, Treasurer, Shelby County Cancer Crusade, Central State Band, Calera, Alabama.

Let us wipe out cancer in our lifetime.

Cordially yours,
Sara Posey Morgan

Law sets poll hours; ballot is secret

by Conrad M. Fowler
Probate Judge

Several questions have arisen concerning election procedures. The questions have been heard often enough to indicate a need for information.

Hours Polls Are Open on Election Day

State law governs the hours polls are open. Under the existing law, polls in Shelby County must open at 8:00 and close at 6:00 with the provision that anyone in line at 6:00 p.m. may remain at the polling place and vote. Hours are different in other counties: Jefferson has a 7:00 to 7:00 schedule by reason of a special act. A special act for Shelby County to extend the hours was introduced in the last legislature but the bill died before passage in the last minute legislative log jam. A special act for Shelby County will again be sought in 1975.

Secrecy of The Ballot

There is no way that anyone may know how an individual voter casts his ballot on the voting machine. The voter, alone inside the curtain, has complete secrecy. One rumor currently circulating seeks to create the impression that a voting machine ballot is not a secret ballot, hence this explanation.

Assisting Voters

A voter in need of assistance, because of blindness or other disability or one who cannot read is required to make an affidavit as to the disability and then he may be permitted to name a person of his choice to assist him in the voting machine. If the voter desires assistance by an election official the law requires two officials to provide the assistance, one to cast the ballot and the second to see that the instructions of the disabled voter are followed.

Politicking in The Polls

It is a violation of the State Corrupt Practices Act for any election official to politic in any manner on election day.

Registration of Voters Within 30 Days of an Election

The law of Alabama makes provision for special registration days when approved by the Governor and the County Commission but the law does say that special registration days shall not be held within a 30 day period of any election. The Shelby County Board of Registrars sought four additional days before the June 4 run off. The County Commission did not act on the request because of the state law.

On County Employees

A local act applicable to Shelby County permits county employees to vote as they please and to express privately their own personal opinions. The law prohibits a county employee from engaging in political activity in behalf of any candidate. Citizens who witness unlawful political activity by any county employee may report the incident to the Shelby County Commission. A hearing will be held at which the witness and the accused county employee will be heard.

If the employee is found to have violated the law he will, by the terms of the act have forfeited his employment.

The employee has the right of appeal to the Shelby County Personnel Appeals Board. Citizens have the right to expect that public funds will not be spent for the political promotion of any candidate. Citizens who witness political activity prohibited by the act are urged to provide their testimony to the Shelby County Commission.

French Ell Lansford asks creditors 'Be patient'

Letter to the Editor:

Please publish this letter for me in order that I might inform my creditors, I do not make the kind of money as stated by a political ad in last weeks paper; so please be patient!

Four warrant Clerks are appointed in Shelby County by the Circuit Judge, Inferior Judge, District Attorney and Circuit Clerk.

In 1973, the total amount paid out of the Courts was $3529.50 to all four combined Shelby County Warrant Clerks, not $4500.00, as stated for one warrant clerk.

In as much as most warrants are issued during the night and on week ends, disturbing my family's rest and privacy; I feel I deserve every penny collected.

As for my salary, 75% is paid from a Grant obtained by Sheriff Walker and only 25% from the County General Fund.

If anyone has any questions, please call me; I am on call 24 hours a day.

Signed: a lady in the Sheriff's Dept.

Remember Marie and Josephine?

by Milton Bird

He was up in Maryland somewhere, getting old the same as I, and dreaming dreams the same as I, a guy who used to tiptoe through the tulips with me before a lot of you folks were born.

Probably he'd had a beer that night, or a highball maybe, and the stereo seemed a little softer. Sometimes music creeps about so gently a guy doesn't know it's there until it starts waking up little memories in his mind, that bring back other memories, each a separate ecstasy in its fashion.

You live today and anticipate tomorrow but yesterday is a glutton of time, once you have climbed the highest mountain and are coasting down the other side.

Maybe that's why, in the mail today, there was this little note from a half-forgotten friend about a thousand yesternights. And two gals, Josephine and Marie, who keep coming back, ever so seldom, no matter who you are or where you live.

The sunrise is beautiful and the day is golden, every second you hope the day will bring; but if you were dancing when Marie and Josephine were young, the sunset ain't to be sneezed at.

And then there was this other note, written tonight, that I know he'll read. Since for years and years he has walked with me along the word-trails I have traveled.

Dear Doc - - -

They were the sort O' gals who came out of the juke boxes, loaded with sweet talk and soft music, to get in a guy's blood. At Narrow's Inn we called her 'Josephine' and at Lloyd's Place 'Marie.'

But now Josephine is just a part of an old medley you'll hear on your stereo, and Marie just slips back once in a while in a Tommy Dorsey oldie.

While the real live gals, who made a thousand nights beautiful, are married now, and their children are married. And guys like us, married too, and content with our slippers and lemondad and music boxes, are just guys who're friends of a hundred grandmothers.

Intrest grows in GOP candidate

by Don Wasson

Interest is beginning to grow around the state in the candidacy of Republican Donald Collins of Birmingham in the lieutenant governor's race.

Collins was given about as much a chance in the November general election as a long-tailed cat in a room full of rocking chairs until the Democratic primary results were known.

The deflation of the Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley balloon was devastating and the first place finish of Dothanite Charles Woods was probably one of the biggest upsets in state voting history.

The votes for Woods, for Sen. Richard Dominick and two other also-rans is all being calculated as primarily an "anti-Beasley" vote, so the question arises, "From whence would come the votes that would allow Beasley to turn it around in the June 4 runoff?"

Beasley himself doesn't believe that all those votes were against him, and feels that he will get a sizeable chunk of the Dominick vote. He also feels that the voters have lodged their protest against the way he managed his office in the first term and is already making pledges to give up the "fulltime lieutenant governor" gambit and to cut off the private fund which helped support him for the past three years.

He and his chief lieutenants believe that many voters, including even some of those who voted for Woods, will now turn back to him.

Beasley and Woods are falling all over themselves trying to align themselves with Gov. George C. Wallace, and while Beasley's initial "He voted for me" gambit turned out to be a bummer, he is nevertheless lining up a lot of the lower echelon Wallace supporters for his runoff campaign.

Wallace's brother Gerald is among those who don't relish Woods being a heartbeat away from being governor.

On the other hand, some people very close to the Wallace administration prefer Woods, feeling they will get more cooperation from him than from Beasley.

It's a Hobson's choice, many Capital observers feel, and thus the growing feeling that Collins might do pretty well in November.

Collins is a former state representative who took the floor in the House one day a few years back to tell the world why he was leaving the Democratic Party and converting to Republicanism. That was during the Goldwater hysteria.

He also made an unsuccessful race for attorney general eight years ago, losing rather largely to MacDonald Gallion.

It's going to be a tough campaign, and Beasley has a lot of ground to make up. From the looks of those who are joining in the effort, he just might make it.

Stubbs-Walker alliance hit

Letter to the Editor:

It is interesting to note the articles and to hear the rumors being falsely spread by Mr. Stubbs and some of the Sheriff's deputies. I have known Conrad M. Fowler Sr. for many years and it is difficult to understand the attacks and untruths. Apparently Mr. Stubbs still feels indebted to Sheriff Walker and is trying to save the Sheriff from the people's determination to make "A CHANGE". They possible see the "handwriting on the wall".

Mr. Stubbs has surely done Sheriff Walker's bidding while in the state legislature with such poor legislation as:

1. Passing a local act (without a vote of the people) to give the Sheriff over $8,000 per year of pistol permit money to do with as he pleases which should by rights go into the county's General Fund to be administered properly.
2. Passing a local act (without a vote of the people) to give the Sheriff the sole authority to serve alias warrants on arrests that have been made by other law enforcement officers which should be served by the other officers such as Conservation Officers, State Troopers and ABC Officers.
3. Passing a local act (without a vote of the people) to create warrant clerks that would be under the Sheriff's control. Warrant clerks already on the county's payroll should not receive fees during regular working hours.
4. Attempting to pass a local act (without a vote of the people) to bring the County Alcoholic Beverage Inspector under the sole control of the Sheriff.
5. AND just last year making a bold attempt to remove the duly elected County Commission Chairman and placing a handpicked individual on the Commission as Chairman with little or no experience just so he and the Sheriff could have absolute control of the County. Thank heavens for Senator Obie Littleton who stood up to be counted when needed and who Shelby County voters helped to return to office in the recent primary.

THESE are just a few cases of power grabs and abuse of authority definitely NOT in the public interest.

On the other hand we have in Judge Conrad Fowler a fine gentleman who is not only locally but nationally recognized as a man of unquestioned honesty and has the knowledge and unselfish interest in his County. He has always served with distinction placing his County's welfare ahead of any personal interest. His colleagues from throughout our country's some 2,100 counties bestowed on him the Presidency of the National Association of Counties where he served with honor representing the South well. His service to his country is well known, having been much decorated in combat and twice receiving the country's silver star and other decorations for valor. Does this sound like a man Mr. Stubbs, the Sheriff and a few deputies depict? Certainly not!

Wake up Shelby Countians. DON'T be deceived by these personal vendettas and untruths. These people are slandering one of the finest individuals to ever serve our County and the future of the County needs such leadership.

Criminologist supports experience

Letter to Editor:

I am writing this letter concerning the upcoming run-off for Sheriff in Shelby County on June 4th. To those of you who read this letter, I feel a need to explain why I have written it.

To begin with I am a relatively new resident to the area having lived here only a year. I have met the two candidates and believe them both to be honorable men. And I am not attempting to address such issues here. The point I am making is that based on my particular background, I feel I am able to judge what qualities are needed in a Sheriff. For I have worked not only as a Deputy Sheriff but as a City Policeman and hold a Bachelors Degree in Criminology, a Master's Degree in Police Administration, and a Doctorate in Criminal Justice, and I feel based on such a background, I am able to compare their qualifications.

To begin with, the job of Sheriff, although an elected position, is still not one that just anyone off the street can perform. It requires a high degree of professional skill and a significant amount of experience. And although Sheriff Walker went into office some 15 years ago without this experience, you the taxpayers have paid to see that he got it. Mr. Thompson on the other hand has had no police experience and even assuming his is a highly intelligent individual, it would take over a full term for him even to learn the most basic aspects of the job. In his campaign he stressed a number of issues which only show his lack of knowledge in this area. Many such as the pistol permit fee question are handled in the same way in almost all counties and simply provide an investigative fund. Such issues are simply not valid complaints about the present Sheriff. As for being the Coroner, I should explain that this job in no way would qualify one to serve as the Sheriff either. To begin with, the role of a Coroner is simply to determine the cause of violent deaths. And in most areas of the country, it is being replaced by a doctor who is a medical examiner, and in the not too distant future, will probably also be replaced in this manner in Alabama.

The point I am making to you here is simply this. If you wanted a man to do some carpentry work on your home, would you call a plumber? I seriously doubt it. And when you want the law enforced and citizens rights observed in the proper and legal manner, you need someone with the skills to do it.

One of the greatest problems in law enforcement today is that every citizen on the street thinks he can do it better. But it is hard to find a substitute for education, training and experience. And these are things you must consider when you vote for the Sheriff on June 4th.

Sincerely,

Calvin J. Swank, Ph.D.

House version bill favored on education

by Senator Jim Allen

The United States Senate has been in the midst of debate on legislation which will affect for years to come the quality of education for our boys and girls. Millions of dollars in school funds for Alabama are at stake as well as the question of whether Congress is at long last ready to assume its long-neglected responsibility of taking away discretionary powers of Federal judges to force mass busying of boys and girls for the sole purpose of creating racial balance.

The House of Representatives has already passed a bill which is much more favorable to Alabama and the smaller, less wealthy states than is the Senate bill. Under the House bill, Alabama would gain about $5 million in Title I funds and some $8 million in impact aid funds over the provisions of the Senate bill.

On Title I funds, the question is how the same overall amount of money - - a $1.8 billion total National program next year - - is to be divided. The Senate bill bases the division in large part on how much individual states pay for the general support of needy children. The large wealthy states can afford to pay more and would get more under the Senate bill. The House bill provision is based largely on how many needy children there are in a State.

On impact aid, the Senate bill would adversely affect 51 Alabama school systems located near the seven military installations in or near our State's borders. I supported efforts that would, in effect, substitute the House language for the Senate language on these money provisions, and I am hopeful that we can carry the day.

I am equally hopeful that this will be the bill in which the Senate finally comes to grips with the need for strong anti-busing legislation. I have introduced legislation to accomplish this and my full support has been given to other strong anti-busing amendments.

Not a single anti-busing proposal to be offered conflicts with rulings of the Supreme Court nor do they singly or collectively deny a person a Constitutionally protected right. They simply impose reasonable and humane limitations on the discretionary powers of the U.S. District Courts in formulating decrees which involve busing of children. Congress has the power to correct this situation. In my judgment it has a duty to correct it, and it is my sincere and solemn hope that through its actions now Congress will shackle the unlimited discretionary powers of Federal judges to tyrannize the people of our Nation.

From the first day I entered public office as a member of the Alabama State Legislature some three decades ago, education has received my full and active support. I have sought to help give Alabama an outstanding school system because I agree with the words of Thomas Jefferson that "no surer foundation can be devised for the preservation of freedom and happiness than public education."

Why the confusion on election night?

Letter to Editor:

Just a few strokes of the pen to let you know of my displeasure of how the election returns were handled at the Shelby County Courthouse on the night of May 7th.

First of all there was so much confusion and absolutely no organization at all. It irks me to no end at the way Red Walker tried to run everything.

(1) We had enough deputies up there for security for a presidential election. If they had been out doing their job they might have caught someone in the act of another burglary.

(2) Red Walker's son was answering the telephone and his wife, as well as himself was handling the returns. Why are they not made to sit in the audience with the other candidates?

(3) Red Walker was counting his own votes ahead of the official count. I have never seen in my life where the Sheriff was able to get the returns ahead of the official counters.

(4) Women working there brought their young children and they were crying to add to the confusion. Didn't they think enough of everyone else to try and get a babysitter.

(5) There was a board prepared at taxpayers expense to show the people how the votes were going in each beat. They didn't even use the board. Tax dollars down the drain.

I'll be there on June 4th, and I hope and pray who ever is responsible for some kind of organization that it shows this time.

Please vote!

Sincerely yours,
Harry Jones

Reader saw sheriff

on date of checks

Letter to Editor:

I don't know if Sheriff Walker wrote those checks or not, but I do know that on January 11, 1974 between the hours of 10:00 and 11:00 o'clock a.m. my sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Colvin, and I were in his office discussing the drowning of my brother-in-law Mr. Thomas Colvin.

I have always found Sheriff Walker available when I need him and I am not a rich man and have no political influence, and find the charges against Sheriff Walker as being somewhat foolish.

Yours very truly,

The way it looks down in Bibb County

Reprinted from The Centreville Press of May 16, 1974 by Jim Oakley, Jr., Editor

As is the case in all political seasons, unfortunately it is the season for lies to start and start they have here in Bibb County. Since last Tuesday I have heard some mighty bad things about some of the people running. I personally take no stock in this type thing and before I will believe it somebody has got to show me something. If someone approaches you with a tale that so and so bought certain votes or is on some sort of list or another, then simply ask them to prove it to you or tell you where they heard it so you can call them up and ask for yourself.

You will be amazed at how quickly those strowers of venom can vanish when they are pressed for facts, the cold hard facts. Just today (Monday) I was told something pretty bad about a candidate and three telephone calls on my part proved the whole tale a straight out lie, just as I suspected. Folks, I guess I probably have a little bit of Missouri mule in me but that is the way I am.

I am not going to stand still and let anybody tell me something bad about one of our candidates and accept it on the face for the truth. On the other hand occasionally somebody will tell you something that is bad and upon investigation you find in fact it is bad. We need to know this too in order to be an informed voter.

I sometimes get real amused at how some people delight in running all over the county telling people not to vote for someone because so and so is backing him and in most cases they will run over to the other side of the county, change their characters a little bit to suit the location, and spread a little more poison.

I long for the day when people start smacking these lie toters right on the top of the head and hit it again every time they raise it up. They tend to make a messy thing out of the most democratic process in the world today, the free elections that we hold in America. Be informed, don't listen to a liar.

Shelby County's industrial management and professional leaders will be honored Thursday night by the Central Civitan Club of Alabaster.

The civic club's annual dinner meeting will be held at 7:30 Thursday at the recently opened Foothills Restaurant in Oak Mountain State Park.

Some 200 Shelby Countians are expected to attend this year's meeting, according to Leon Barton, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. Other members of the committee include Hershiel Meadows and Charles Nelson.

Principal speaker for the evening will be Dr. Doug Davis from the University of Alabama Birmingham.

This year's president of the Central Civitan Club is Bill Morris. Howard Prater is serving as vice president.

658 voters register

Mrs. Doris Turner, chairman of the Shelby County Board of Registrars reports that 423 new voters registered on Monday. The next day, 235 new voters signed up bringing the total of new voters to 658.

These names will be added to the list of approximately 21,500 voters who had registered previously.

Mrs. Turner says that the new voters came from all sections of the county. Many were older residents who had not voted before.

There will be no other opportunities to register to vote before the Democratic Party runoff June 4.

However, Mrs. Turner says that the Board will be in regular session on Friday, June 7 and again on Monday, June 17.

Phillip Bentley, of the Birmingham engineering firm of Harry Hendon and Associates, agrees that once they have finished the sewerage project Alabaster will experience another surge of growth. In an interview with the Reporter, Bentley indicated that when the project is finished, the city will gain more residences as well as expand commercially.

Everyone connected with the sewer project seems optimistic that this time they can get it off the ground. Davenport concluded, "We've made more headway in the past six months than in the past five years."

ACCEPT NEW HOME - This swarm of bees enters a hive after leaving their old home. When a new queen is hatched she will leave the old hive with a swarm or worker and attendant bees. The swarm will settle on a tree, bush, etc. while scouts fly off in search of a new place to live. Beekeepers try to catch the swarm in this stage. The limb is cut and the swarm of insects placed near a man-made hive. Since the bees are looking for a new home, they will usually accept the hive and enter it.

County highway projects making progress--Ray on between Helena and Bessemer on county road 52. The new road behind Thompson High School is forging ahead, and the county crew has just finished paving a long section of road between Calera and Shelby.

Ray told the Reporter that the highway 52 project is the major effort the county is now working on, with help from the federal government. He stated that it took two years for the county-federal team to begin the project. At present the half-mile straightening project is 50% finished, said Ray, with perhaps two more months of construction and excavation.

While the road crew removes 30,000 cubic feet of rock, Ray says that two thousand cars a day are using the detour on county roads 13 and 93. The last major step in finishing the safety project is providing a concrete cover over the rock cut. When the job is through there will be one bridge where there were formerly two dangerous narrow bridges. Ray pointed out that the road is being constructed by the county with half of the funds coming from the federal government and the rest from the county budget.

Ray mentioned that another new project is the new road which will provide a safe route behind Thompson school to the top of the mountain in Alabaster on county road 44. The bridge near the school has been completed for several months, and the current phase is laying the foundation. Ray said that this project is 95 per cent complete, and that it should be paved by December of this year. He added that when the road is ready for use, there will be a traffic light installed on highway 44 near Alabaster water tank.

The future of the county road program looks good, according to Ray's predictions. He mentioned that with the paving finished on the road near Prospect No. 2 church outside Calera, more road will be paved in the direction of Shelby. He added that new safety projects are in store for county roads 47, 52, and 55, and maintenance is constantly on the agenda. When asked about future new roads, Ray said that the outlook was good despite the soaring cost of asphalt plus other factors.

To The People of Shelby County from "Sonny" Dorrough Campaign Mgr. for BILL THOMPSON FOR SHERIFF

In regards to TOM STUBBS ad on May 16, 1974

TOM STUBBS and all Shelby County voters, I want to set the record straight. I have since the beginning been Bill Thompson's Campaign Manager. All campaign literature, newspaper advertisement, radio advertisement, and work schedules of all people involved in this campaign are managed by me. We have from the beginning been the people's candidate. The vote received on May 7th clearly shows that the majority of people in Shelby County agree with us that "It's Time For A Change" and voted that way. We represent the average working man in this County who is tired of the special interest groups who in the past have received special attention.

We are tied to no individual person. We have not been involved in any other campaign for any other office. We have continually stated that when Bill Thompson is elected, he alone will run the Sheriff's Office and all other elected officials in this County can run theirs as they so desire. We have also stated that Bill is running against the Sheriff ONLY and not the Deputies as some people imply.

Bill Thompson's record as your Coroner for the past 10 years has truly been a remarkable one. There never has at any time in the past, been any reason for anyone to doubt the decisions that Bill has made in the many homicides, suicides, drownings etc. that he has investigated.

Ed Burdett, the newly elected Coroner, stated at Indian Springs School: "If you see fit to elect me as your new Coroner on May 7th, I only hope that I can do HALF the job that Bill Thompson has done in the past".

We again solicit your vote and influence on June 4th, and we are very confident that Bill Thompson will be elected as the NEW Sheriff of Shelby County.

WHAT JABO WAGGONER'S 8 YEAR SENIORITY IN THE HOUSE WILL MEAN TO YOU.

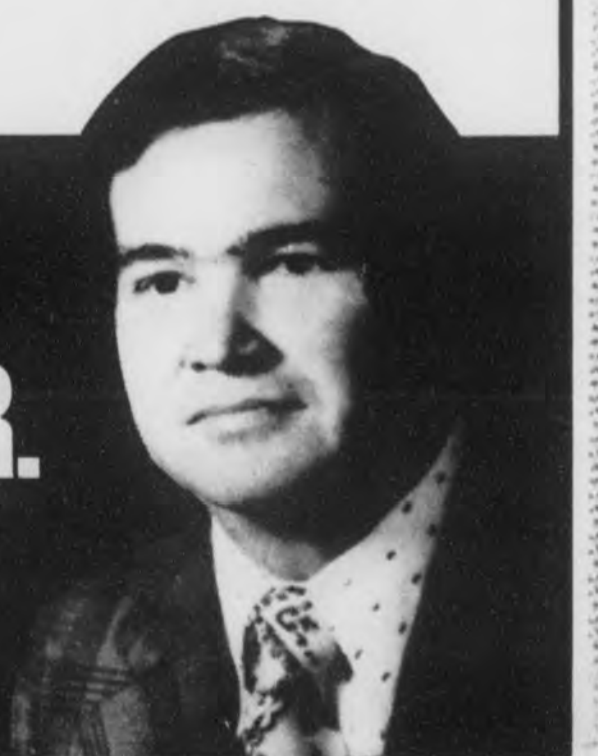

When the Alabama House of Representatives convenes next session, there will be more than 70 new members out of a total of 105. These new members will have absolutely no seniority. The members of the House who have seniority will become the chairmen of the important committees or be assigned to major committees. This seniority system has been the reason the South has always had such tremendous strength in the United States Congress. Most of the important committees in Congress have Southerners as their chairmen. This is why we need Jabo Waggoner's seniority for District 51.

1. Checks Allegedly Written ?

Billy Thompson and Judge Fowler Say that this fee goes into the Sheriff's

3. ALIAS WARRANTS ?

Thompson and Fowler say that alias warrents should be executed by State Police.

FACT

1. My attorneys are now preparing to file suit against those responsible for this low political attack upon me and my family.

These were not my checks and I can easily prove it.

The checks were dated 1-11-74 and I can easily prove that I was in Shelby County all that day. In fact, I have not been out of the State since Jan. 1, 1974.

I stopped payment on these checks myself because I owed no such debt.

The vicious characters behind this smear attack on me any my family will eventually be exposed.

Imagine the embarassment to me and my family when we read the Front Page of the Birmingham News on Easter Sunday when we were getting ready to go to Sunrise Service.

Believe me, when I say those responsible will have to anwer for their lowly deeds.

2. The Pistol Permit Law says that this fee shall be used "for law enforcement use only."

This fund is audited regularly by state examiners. Last year the auditors had only one exception to the pistol permit fund and Sheriff Walker paid back $135.88 spent for flowers sent to funerals of deputies' families.

There is no way the pistol permit fee can go into the Sheriff's pocket.

3. Thompson and Fowler advocate violation of the law in regard to Alias Warrants.

If Billy Thompson and Judge Fowler had their way this could happen to you:

Suppose you were on your way to Panama City and you were given a traffic ticket in South Alabama - then you forgot to mail the fine, or if your money order was lost - an alias warrant would be issued for your arrest.

If Billy Thompson and Judge Fowler had their way and this warrant was executed by State police - they could knock on your door in the middle of the night, make you get into their car and you would wind up in jail in, say, Opp, Alabama, without bail, and away from friends - "Kidnapped" to another county!

This is a dangerous and illegal practice and Billy Thompson and Judge Fowler should know better because our forefathers wrote into the State law that this was an illegal practice.

Horseshoe Bend Park preserves early Alabama history

by Doris E. Davis

The end of a nation. The beginning of a state. The making of a President. It all took place between 10:00 a.m. and dusk on a March day in 1814. The 27th to be exact.

The Creek nation, a civilized federation of Indian tribes living in cities, wearing European clothing imported from England and dealing primarily in agriculture, became enraged by the white man's encroachment upon their lands. In an effort to run off the land grabbers they attacked and killed many settlers. The most atrocious attack was the massacre at Fort Mims where only a handful of whites escaped.

In order to settle accounts with the Indians, General Andrew Jackson called up his Tennessee volunteers and marched into present day Alabama. Fort Strother was built on the west bank of the Coosa river near what is now Gadsden. The troops crossed the river at Fort Strother and proceeded down the east bank of the Coosa to construct Fort Williams. Fort Williams was located on the east bank of the Coosa near what is now Talladega Springs. In relation to Shelby County it is due east of Shelby, across the river. Although no positive proof could be found to substantiate the theory that "Old Hickory" slept here in Shelby County, it is safe to assume that he did gaze upon our shores and since the grass is always greener on the other side of the river it is possible that he may at sometime during this military campaign have actually trod on Shelby soil.

From Fort Williams, Jackson and his troops cut a 52 mile swath through hills and wilderness to reach Horseshoe Bend, a peninsula on the Tallapoosa river, where the Creek warriors were encamped awaiting attack by the white man. The volunteers blazed that trail of 52 miles in three days time. Twenty one year old Sam Houston and twenty eight year old Davy Crockett were among this group of brave Tennesseans. Houston was wounded at the battle which ensued.

Although Jackson didn't fully realize it until later, he and his troops literally wiped out the Creek nation that day. The annihilation was accomplished so effectively that the territory was rapidly populated by white settlers and only five years after the battle the population was great enough for Alabama to be admitted to the Union as the twenty-second state.

As a result of his victory at Horseshoe Bend Andrew Jackson received a commission as a Major General in the regular army of the United States. He was in command of the U.S. forces when the British attacked New Orleans only nine months after his victory at Horseshoe Bend. His victory at the Battle of New Orleans made him a national hero. His popularity led to offices of Governor of the Territory of Florida, U. S. Senator from Tennessee and in 1828 President of the United States.

The scene of the historic Battle of Horseshoe Bend has been preserved by the National Park Service. The park can be reached from Shelby County by traveling highway 280 to Alexander City. Then take Alabama highway 49 to the park. There is no admission charge. The Visitor's Center houses exhibits explaining the battle. A paved road winds through the battlefield with information shelters located at points of interest along the way.

Or if you prefer to hoof it, a 2.8 mile nature trail has been provided for hikers. Park rangers demonstrate and actually fire a Kentucky long rifle, the principal weapon used in the Battle of Horseshoe Bend. It is a flint-lock rifle. When the trigger is pulled a spark from a flint rock ignites gun powder in the powder pan and propels the bullet.

The round trip can be made in one day's time from Shelby County but if you prefer to stay overnight restaurant and motel facilities are available in Alexander City and Dadeville. Both cities are near the park. The nearest camping facilities are at Wind Creek State Park, six miles south of Alexander City. For the one day vacationers picnic tables are available at Horseshoe Bend Park.

Visiting Horseshoe Bend National Park is a lesson in history learned in a beautiful setting. Advocates of visual aids in education will agree that it is easier to see a history lesson than to read one any day.

BATTLEFIELD - This aerial photograph of the Horseshoe Bend National Military Park gives a graphic view of the battle site that broke the strength of the Creek nation. The Indians fortified themselves in the bend of the Tallapoosa River by building a breastworks across the narrow neck of land at the head of the peninsula. On March 27, 1914, an army of backwoodsmen led by General Andrew Jackson attacked and defeated the Creek force paving the way for the settlement of Alabama.

Tyus and Brown ink scholarships

Two senior players from Montevallo High School's 2-A state championship team have signed scholarships to play basketball at junior colleges in Alabama.

Ronnie Tyus has signed to play with George C. Wallace Junior College in Selma while Percy Brown inked a scholarship to Gadsden State Junior College.

Coach Lothian Smallwood of Wallace Junior College commented on Tyus's ability. Smallwood explained that Tyus will be able to help the team with his ball handling and rebounding as well as his shooting.

During the 1973-74 high school season Tyus hit 42 percent of his shots from the floor. He was second on the Montevallo high school team in scoring and rebounding with 412 points and 226 rebounds.

Coach Riley Whittaker of Gadsden State commented that Percy Brown has the best timing in his jumps of any player he has or has signed.

Brown's accomplishments in Montevallo athletics this year include permanent team captain, the best field goal percentage of 52 percent, the most points scored - 432, and most rebounds - 390. In addition, Brown was named most valuable player on this year's baseball team.

Both Ronnie Tyus and Percy Brown along with teammate Willie Moore were named to the prestigious Coach and Athlete magazine Prep All-America Basketball yearbook. Inclusion in the yearbook comes from nominations from coaches, principals, athletic directors, and sports writers from across the country.

Richard Petty eyes July 4 classic

Four-time Grand National racing Richard Petty, has never won the July Fourth Firecracker 400 at Daytona International Speedway and he admits the law-of averages are getting better all the time. He has, however, won the Firecracker's sister event, the Daytona 500, an unprecedented five times. So he does have a good track record on one of the world's fastest speedways.

"I never worry about things like that," says the sport's winningest driver with 158 career victories. "Every time I run in the Firecracker I feel I have a good chance of winning. I've had some good finishes and come close to winning many times."

Petty, who will celebrate his 37th birthday July 2, averaged 140.894 miles per hour winning the prestigious Daytona 500 for a second straight year in February. No other driver has won the 500 more than once.

Petty's other victories this season have been in the Carolina 500 at Rockingham, N.C., the Gwyn Staley 400 at North Wilkesboro, N.C., and the Music City 420 at Nashville, Tenn.

Petty will be among the top contenders for the pole position when time trials get underway Tuesday, July 2 at the 2.5-mile speedway. The first 20 positions in the 40-car starting field will be up for grabs. Bobby Allison won the pole last year with a speed of 179.619 miles per hour in a Chevrolet.

CAHABA CARP - Tommy Watkins of Helena surveys a catch of 12 Red Horse Carp that he and Burk Dunaway caught in the Cahaba River May 1. The catching of these carp as they bed in the Cahaba shoals was once a popular sport. The practice, however, has now fallen into disuse.

Red horse carp fishing is a dying sport in county

Upon first hearing an account of a red horse carp fishing expedition, many people would tend to stick their tongue in a cheek, smile and say "Uh-huh." However, the practice was once widely participated in by Cahaba River fishermen but has now fallen into disuse.

Helena resident Tommy Watkins related the "how to's" of red horse fishing after trying his hand for the first time on Wednesday, May 1. Accompanying Watkins on the trip was Pelham city councilman Burk Dunaway, a veteran red horse carp fisherman.

Red horse carp, also called "red horse suckers," swim upstream like salmon swim upstream to lay their eggs. This happens every year about the first of May.

The smaller male carp is called the "Horse". The male horns on his head and tail which he uses to dig a bed in the gravel shoals of a smaller stream such as the Cahaba River.

The males stay in the beds and try to attract the larger female of "Mare" carp to spawn. The mares float with the current of the water over the beds laying a few eggs at a time. Females are known to make as many as fifty passes over the beds before all the eggs are deposited.

It is at this time that sportsmen catch these fish. Watkins reported that the snare method has been used for many years by Cahaba River fishermen.

He explained that a snare loop is made from No. 24 brass or stainless steel wire and fastened to a fiberglass pole. Weighted by a blaze sinker, the loop can then be slipped over the fish's head while they are bedding on the shallow shoals.

Watkins said that the fish were real fighters -- especially the females who are considerably larger. Carp fishermen usually leave the males on the bed to attract the "Mares." The "Horses" can be recognized in the water because they are smaller and their heads appear to be white.

Watkins said that an unusual amount of red horse carp were on the beds in the Cahaba River this spring. He and Dunaway caught 12 of the fish in a little over three hours.

The two men filleted the fish and made croquettes out of the meat. Cooked like salmon, the meat provides a tasty meal, Watkins said.

Watkins also stated that the practice of red horse carp fishing is dying out among young people. He said that he can remember hearing reports of hundreds snaring the fish on the shoals of the Cahaba River in years past. Now he estimates that perhaps there are no more than 12 or 15 real experts fishing for carp on the Cahaba River.

Precautions can avert accidents

As the sun sinks slowly in the west, old salt, And your boat sinks slowly in the lake, It's a bit too late for all the safety tips And precautions that you didn't take.

These few lines of verse preclude a report released by the Insurance Information Institute concerning boating safety recently.

The Institute reminds everyone that boating is fast becoming the nation's number one pastime. Alabama is no exception. State waters from the Gulf of Mexico to the Tennessee River will be teeming from everything from two-man rafts to 60 foot houseboats.

With a few common sense precautions, says the Insurance Information Institute, boaters can keep their number one pastime from becoming a number one problem.

In Alabama last year there were a total of 111 boating accidents which caused the deaths of 41 boatmen and injured 40 others. Total property damage from the accidents reached $910,700.

Prospective purchasers of a small craft have to decide what use they intend for their new boat and under what conditions they intend to operate it. The Institute notes that no matter how well designed and engineered a boat is, using it in the wrong waters or trying to exceed the limitations of speed and capacity for which it was built automatically make it unsafe.

Since October 31, 1972, the Coast Guard has required that all recreational craft meet specific safety standards, and that each boat have a plaque attached certifying that those standards, and that each boat have a plaque attached certifying that those standards in effect at the date of construction have been met.

Each vessel has a certain load capacity, whether measured in pounds or number of people. Some newer boats will have a plaque attached to indicate that capacity. Other owners might inquire of the manufacturer or retailer, or of their local Coast Guard Auxiliary for this advice.

There are three critical systems to check out when boating: fuel, electrical and steering. They must be more than in working order. Connections, fastenings, protective casings and other parts of each system should be expertly checked for conditions that could produce hazards during operation.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary, as part of its Courtesy Motorboat Examination, also checks for: the configuration and working order of navigation lights; sound producing devices; anchor and anchor lines, and ventilation systems among others.

The Insurance Information Institute also stated that precautions concerning an automobile left on the shore should not be neglected. Be sure you lock your car with the windows closed. Even though modern cars are better protected against theft, there are still people who manage, and often quite easily, to steal automobiles left by boaters at a marina or landing -- just because the driver was not careful to fully lock his car.

Vines absorb sunlight; help in cooling house

A green blanket of clinging vines growing up the masonry walls of your house can add a natural kind of insulation to keep the inside cooler in summer's heat. The American Association of Nurserymen suggests that as an energy-conscious way to reduce the use of your air conditioner.

The overlapping leaf blades intercept and absorb the rays of sunlight before they reach the actual surface of the wall. And between the leaves and the wall is a space that allows a convection current to carry the warm air up and away.

The nursery people suggest that deciduous vines (the kind that lose their leaves in winter) will be most effective on the southern and western walls which receive the full heat of the sun in the summer. Boston ivy and Virginia creeper are two species that serve as excellent cooling devices.

Vines absorb sunlight; help in cooling house

A green blanket of clinging vines growing up the masonry walls of your house can add a natural kind of insulation to keep the inside cooler in summer's heat. The American Association of Nurserymen suggests that as an energy-conscious way to reduce the use of your air conditioner.

The overlapping leaf blades intercept and absorb the rays of sunlight before they reach the actual surface of the wall. And between the leaves and the wall is a space that allows a convection current to carry the warm air up and away.

The nursery people suggest that deciduous vines (the kind that lose their leaves in winter) will be most effective on the southern and western walls which receive the full heat of the sun in the summer. Boston ivy and Virginia creeper are two species that serve as excellent cooling devices.

DEBORAH SUE BERRY

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Berry Sr. of Columbiana announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter Deborah Sue to Tommy L. Blankenship son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd A. Blankenship of Camp Branch.

Miss Berry is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Berry of Birmingham and Rev. and Mrs. M. A. Heatherly of Camp Branch.

Mr. Blankenship's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. N.K. Blankenship of Calera and Mrs. J.O. Payne and the late J.O. Payne of Camp Branch.

The wedding is planned for June 14 at Camp Branch United Methodist.

Dr. Griffith speaks to DKG Society

The May meeting of Delta Kappa Gamma Society was held May 9th at Thompson Middle School.

The program focus: "Continuing Education for Changing Times," with special emphasis on, "Coming of Age," was in charge of Mrs. Tommie Ruth Harrison. She presented Dr. Lucille Griffith, a former faculty member of the University of Montevallo.

Dr. Griffith holds a A.B. from Belhaven College, M.A. from Tulane University and a Doctorate from Brown University. She is an example of a person who continued her education and literary activities beyond her college years.

She is a well known author. Perhaps her best known books are the Virginia House of Burgesses and The History of Alabama. The most recent of her writings, "Burma Letters" will be released in June. This book contains letters from her aunt Ethel Mabure, while she was a missionary in Burma. These letters illustrate the indomitable spirit of a woman, who was a teacher, a missionary, a ministers wife, and aid in a Children's hospital.

After the program, chapter officers for the biennium were installed.

Hostesses were: Carolyn Davidson, Lavada Hooper, Marion Sides, Margaret Baron, Mary Korell and Mary Roach.

MRS. JAMES DONALD JONES

Rev. Richey displays wealth of talents

We are always amazed at the versatility of Rev. F.P. Richey. He is a man of many talents. A beloved minister with a flair for individual expression as shown by his recently published book titled: "The Humorous Side of a Solemn Profession".

A humorist, whom people often refer to as the Mark Twain of Main Street. But the best part about this fellow -- as far as the writer is concerned -- is his thoughtfulness of others and sincere friendly interest in people. This is often evidenced by "special requests" he grants from both old and new friends he has made along his merry way.

All of this verbal preamble brings me to the point of telling those who follow through these pages each week that he is evidently the very best "tiller of the soil" around in this part of Alabama judging from the biggest, freshest, greenest, crispest home grown head of lettuce we have ever seen which was brought in our office as an example of his garden produce about which we had heard much and are now prepared to verify. We proffer our thanks to this cherished friend of ours not only for the gift but for his never failing thoughtfulness!

M.W.W.

Tommy Blankenship, prospective bride groom whose bride elect is Deborah Sue Berry, was the Reporter's Mascot in 1952 he, being the first little baby born in that year. Time truly marches on. Tommy and Deborah are happily planning for their wedding which is set for June 14.

Miss Kirby marries Mr. Jones

The First Baptist Church of Bucksville was the setting Saturday, May 18, for the wedding of Miss Marsha Kay Kirby and James Donald Jones. Rev. C.L. Garrison performed the ceremony.

Nuptial music was presented by Miss Anita McDaniel, organist, and John Ray was the soloist. Candles were lighted by Myron Kirby, brother of the bride, and Julian Jones, brother of the groom.

Parents of the couple are Dr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Kirby of McCalla and Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Jones of Wilsonville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white bridal satin. The empire bodice, bishop sleeves and Victorian neckline were accented by chantilly lace inserts and edged by silk organza ruffle. The demi-bell skirt featured a ruffled flounce around the hemline. A Juliet cap covered in chantilly lace held the fingertip veil of illusion framed in matching lace. She carried a bouquet of mixed spring flowers centered with an orchid, and mounted on a white Bible carried by her mother in her wedding.

Miss Carol Jones of Birmingham was maid of honor. Mrs. Linda Gaither of Collierville, Tenn. was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Deborah Manely, Mobile, Miss Gail Phillips, Phenix City and Miss Ramona Richardson, Middleton, New Jersey.

The attendants wore gowns of flocked floral print voile over satin in shades of blue, lavender and mint green, styled on empire lines.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Groomsmen were Dan Cathey, Tamps, Fla., Rex Horton, Columbiana, Michael Platt, Sylacauga and Larry Willis, Mobile.

A reception at the church followed the ceremony. After a wedding trip, the couple will live in Birmingham.

Disillusionment hits U.S.

by Mildred White Wallace

There seems to be a tide of disenchantment or disillusion in America for the government and what's more, it is extending into every major institution including the church, the press, the universities. Even the style of clothing now in vogue -- the so called casual variety worn by some of the younger generation, gives them the look of just having returned from the reservation.

A great many charges and counter-charges are being carelessly tossed around but none seem to be offering any solution to the problem. Could it be a lack of trust in the U.S.A., or is it just the result of erstwhile good times we have known that is providing us something to beef about? One writer says that there is one thing for certain -- the security of this country and its people is probably at stake. No country or people succeeds without confidence in itself. If we lost faith in our democratic way of life the above statement might just prove to be correct.

Sen. Jim Allen last week called our attention to the millions of dollars currently being proposed for foreign aid; the money to be used to remedy the ravages of war in the Far East -- which, if granted would further plunge the USA into debts -- the interest on which sum staggers one to even think about.

Sen. Allen had this to say on this give away program now in progress on Capitol Hill "How in the name of good common sense can the American people be asked to pick up the tab to repair the massive destruction wrought during wars in the mid-East which we did everything in our power to prevent?" Seems to me that this furnishes us something to really be concerned about.

We were rambling through Webster's Dictionary this morning and came across the word -- "potlatch" -- that seems to us to be peculiarly suited to the present era. It describes a potlatch as a festival of certain American tribes. The festival is marked by the lavish giving of gifts by the chiefs of the tribes.

In a way, the American scene is reminiscent of an Indian potlatch. It seems the chiefs in Washington D.C. try to outdo each other in dreaming up schemes for giving away money in various programs they hope will please voters. The only difference is that, unlike the Indian chiefs, they are not giving away their own wealth. They are dishing out the wealth of others -- those who labor in the fields of life in an endeavor to support themselves -- and possibly -- some of the politicians! Our good friend Sen. Jim Allen has called our attention to it -- we hope -- since he has won a return to Capitol Hill for another six year term in the Senate that he will be able to do something about putting a stop to this reckless handling of the other fellow's money. For instance -- yours and mine!

Chelsea girl to be featured in Who's Who

DENISE BRADLEY

Denise Bradley, a senior at Chelsea High was recently notified that she is to be featured in the Eighth Annual Edition of Who's Who among American High School Students, 1973-74, the largest student award publication in the nation.

Denise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.R. Bradley of Route 1, Chelsea. She is active in Beta Club; Good Citizenship Girl; Seniors' Who's Who; Senior Valedictorian and has also won last year's Girls' State Representative, FFA Quartet member; GHA; Student council president, and yearbook editor. In addition to having her biography published in the book.

Courthouse still stands despite controversy

The old courthouse "slightly disfigured but still in the ring" standing in the middle of Main Street, continues to furnish a topic for conversation among "old timers" and some few interested new comers.

The question at issue is whether to tear down the old building -- an admitted traffic hazard -- with no visible claim for beauty in architectural circles -- or to attempt a face-lifting job of sufficient magnitude to attract the attention of enough tourists to warrant the amount of dollars and cents that would be involved in the remodeling job. This is the sum and substance of the question now being tossed around the coffee tables which will finally be determined by the decision of the City Fathers.

The building, obviously, needs a complete over-hauling and will -- if it is retained -- require thousands of dollars to do the job. The majority of people with whom the writer has talked think that Mayor Bolton and his councilmen will consult the people of Columbiana and possibly allow them to vote on the municipal matter before the final decision is made.

In the meantime -- the old courthouse stands -- like a silent sentinel -- a relic of the past apparently unconcerned with the verbal upheaval it is causing.

News from your friends and mine

by Mildred White Wallace
Mr. and Mrs. M.L. Edge Jr., (Lisa Cagle) and their three year old son are currently stationed at Redstone Arsenal. Mrs. Cagle has written me a letter expressing appreciation for Bill Clark who is in charge of Veterans Affairs in Shelby County. Some day when we can catch this busy gentleman we shall show him this verbal tribute which is in the form of a poem. I am sure Bill merits the accolades included in this letter and will appreciate them. All too often "thorns" outnumber the "roses" a fellow gets along the way when trying to fill a public office.

the eleven o'clock worship hour Sunday morning. Gifts from the church were presented to each. Preceding their coming to church, Rev. and Mrs. Charles Stroud hosted a breakfast at 7:30 a.m. in the parlor.

It is now inoculation time for "Fido". Dr. Charles Thornburg, Rabies Inspector for Shelby County and his assistants are making their rounds throughout the county. Arrange to meet them at the nearest point these anti-rabies shots are given.

Women are fast taking their stand in the political arena. According to the National Women's Political Caucus, so far, 828 women have announced candidacies for congressional and state offices. There are now 16 congresswomen and 441 women in state legislatures and 27 women in high level statewide executive jobs. It is said that this is the highest number of women ever to run for elective official recognition in the U.S.A.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Walton extended sympathy to them during the weekend due to the tragic death of her brother John King and his wife who were both victims of an automobile accident last Saturday. Both Mr. and Mrs. King have been frequent guests in the Walton home in Columbiana and news of their deaths will cause sadness among their friends they have made during their stay in Columbiana.

Members of the senior class of SCHS who are Methodists were honor guests in the United Methodist Church in Columbiana Sunday. Rev. Lamar Davis gave signal recognition to the group and the morning worship hour was designed especially to honor them.

Alan Hume, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hume, is a member of the Shelby High graduating class. Unlike most of the young people we have talked with who have not exactly made up their minds in what career or profession they will direct their time and talents -- Alan knows what he wants and what is more to the point, he began making preparations during his early school years to meet the requirements necessary to attain his goal. The result was made known this week when he received the assurance of four years scholarship at Auburn University all expenses paid, after which he will enter the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Friends are awaiting news from the bedside of Tom Stinson who is hospitalized in Baptist Medical and from Mrs. Lessie Nivens, a patient in Shelby Memorial.

Jonathan J. Goad of Montevallo, a National Merit scholar, has accepted a George C. Wallace Academic Leadership Scholarship and will enroll in Troy State University for the 1974-75 school year. Gary L. Branch, associate dean of admissions, has announced.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Goad.

The first dedicatory service for a baby ever observed in the Baptist Church in Columbiana was impressively held for Parrish Bentley, two month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Argo, on Sunday evening, May 12, at the worship hour with Rev. Charles Stroud officiating. Both Mr. and Mrs. ARGO are actively engaged in supporting all phases of the church program. He is Chief of the Deacons in the church and she works in the Youth Department. Both are members of the Sanctuary Choir.

Chairman, Veterans Ass.

Thank You

from

Mr. & Mrs. Wayne Archer & Sons

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the voters of District 4 for being so nice to us. We enjoyed meeting so many nice people. I would also like to thank the other candidates for the gentlemanly like way they conducted themselves during the race.

The time is now that we as good citizens should get involved in politics. We as candidates should not be tied to any other politician. Our only obligation should be to the people. That is the way I ran my race and if I run again, I would be the same way.

Now as a voter, I feel obligated to vote for whom I think is the best qualified man for the job of Commissioner of District 4. On June 4, I will cast my vote for J. Alpha Lowe and I would recommend him to the other voters of my District.

Thanks again.

Wayne Archer

BEFORE YOU BUILD, IMPROVE OR BUY LAND AROUND ALABAMA POWER COMPANY RESERVOIRS, DETERMINE HOW MUCH OF THE LAND WILL BE SUBJECT TO FLOODING.

Alabama Power Company has full ownership of lands in the permanent reservoir areas upstream from its dams. It also has a flood easement on certain lands above and outside of the permanent reservoir areas for the purpose of flooding these lands from time to time as may be required during flood periods for temporary storage of water. This temporary storage is necessary for the purpose of flood regulation and control which is required by its Federal Power Commission license.

Property owners, builders or prospective purchasers of lots or acreage extending into the flood easement areas should learn how much of the property in which they are interested is situated on land between the top level of the permanent reservoirs and the top level of the flood easement areas since these areas are subject to flooding and will be flooded. The extent of Alabama Power Company's flood easement on any given tract of land can be determined by examining the public records in the court house of the county in which the land is located. With such information a competent surveyor can locate and stake the limits of the flood easement on the ground.

Alabama Power Company wants to see the lands above the flood easement of its reservoirs fully and attractively developed, but in a manner which will be safe, enjoyable and reasonable. However, Alabama Power Company cannot be responsible for injuries to persons or damages to any property or to any type of structure or improvement in the permanent reservoir areas or flood easement areas resulting from flooding. Please note that construction of dwelling houses, commercial establishments, dikes and fills and other improvements on the land in the permanent reservoir areas, as well as the flood easement areas, both covered by Federal Power Commission license, is not permitted. FUTURE STRUCTURES OR IMPROVEMENTS UNLAWFULLY PLACED IN SUCH AREAS WILL BE REQUIRED TO BE REMOVED FROM THE RESERVOIR AND FLOOD EASEMENT AREAS.

Observing the precaution of knowing how much of the land you plan to improve is in the flood easement area and avoiding construction within that area of any type of structure will eliminate the necessity of action on our part to protect our flood rights and will help make your experience in the development of the lot or acreage you own a pleasant one.

Westover news

by Elsie Archer Jones

On Mother's Day, the family of J.C. Robertson gathered at their home for the day. Of course, the center of attraction was the arrival of the Robertson's new grandbaby, which is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Adams, who was born on May 9 at the Brookwood Hospital. He weighed in at eight pounds and nine ounces, and is named Kristopher Jay. The other grandparents are Mrs. Helena Cellura and Mr. Dewey Adams, both of Toledo, Ohio. He has a little brother, Corey, aged 4.

The other members of the family present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Lee, from Prattville; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Vick of Sylacauga, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Robertson, of Harpersville; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brasher, and Mr. and Mrs. John Adams. In addition, the children of these couples were present, also.

Michael Wayne Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Moore, of Pumpkin Swamp Road, was initiated into Alpha Zeta, Agriculture Honorary Fraternity, on May 13 at Auburn University.

Mike is a graduate of Vincent High School, where he was a member of the football squad and president of the Beta Club.

This is Mike's second year at Auburn University. He is majoring in agricultural economics. In his sophomore year, he joined the Sigma Phi Epsilon Social Fraternity. We are always proud of any of our Shelby County "Country Hicks" who go on into the outside world and made records like "Mike's", which can put them into the upper brackets in all phases of their activities. We have had a number of these people down through history who have made many contributions to their homes and their country.

As Lane Shaw put it at a meeting the other night, "The outside world used to think of Shelby County only as the "Moonshine Capital" of the area, but now all eyes are turned this way seeking better homelands, better manufacturing sites, and purer air, and more beautiful surroundings." I think that we should all pitch-in and start a general clean-up of our surroundings. I think that we should all pitch-in and start a general clean-up of our surrounding and do all we can to show them that we are worthy of their interests and praises. I am all for it 100 percent. Won't each of you help out in such a campaign? Please note that I got a lot of my weeds and bushes cut this week.)

County children to register for Smokey Bear reading clubs

This summer, thousands of boys and girls are enrolling in Smokey Bear Vacation Reading Clubs all over Alabama.

Mrs. Cecile Leonard, Director, Shelby County Library System, and D.L. Duckett, Shelby County Forester, joined in announcing that Shelby County's Libraries are taking part in this special program which bears the name of the famous fire prevention bear.

A fine selection of books on nature, conservation, wildlife, woods lore, and the great outdoors will be made available to interested boys and girls. Children who join the club will receive Reading Cards and Smokey Bear Buttons. Members may check out a wide range of exciting books and take them home to read.

Registration for the Reading Club will begin June 3 in each of the Community Libraries - Alabaster, Calera, Columbiana, Helena, Montevallo, Vincent and Wilsonville, and on the Bookmobile. Boys and girls who will be in the third through the eighth grades next school year are eligible and are urged to participate.

Interested youngsters are urged to contact their local Librarian for further details.

The reading program is being offered through the cooperation of the Alabama Public Library Service and the Alabama Forestry Commission.

Hearing on aging held at Columbiana library

A county-wide hearing on aging was held in the Columbiana library on Tuesday, May 22. The afternoon meeting drew interested persons from all around the county to air their views about the needs of the aged.

Sponsored by the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission, the meet was held as required by the federal law which provides for the commission's nutrition program for the elderly. In order to continue receiving federal funds, each county under the program must have a public hearing once a year, according to Linda Hovell of the planning commission.

Miss Hovell stated that this is the first such hearing held in Shelby County. The nutrition program has been in effect here for several months, with food serving stations located in Vincent and at the Calera armory.

The purpose of the meeting, she said, was to allow the public to air its views about the needs and priorities of older people served by the nutrition program. Miss Hovell added that the public was given a chance to state their concerns and exchange ideas, allowing the program administrators to better plan for the coming year.

THS band plans summer

When school lets out for the summer, Thompson High's band students will stay on the job with practice all summer long. The majorettes also have a full line-up of activities and practice before them.

Band director Elson Hood said that the girls practice with national baton-twirling champ Robin Cutler, spending hours in perfecting their technique and routines. The majorette team for Thompson's '74-'75 school year are Fran Standifer, head, Kathy McQueen, Apryl Dunshee, Cindy Mathis, and Tammy Festivan.

Tammy, the school's featured twirler, is currently the state baton twirling champion. She and the other majorettes will participate in several majorette clinics, as well as compete in regional tournaments. They will do their best to equal or surpass the record of the past year's majorette squad, who rated "superior" at a contest held in Tarrant.

The majorettes are not the only band members with a busy summer schedule. The rest of Thompson's marching band will convene in August for two weeks of intensive practice to ready themselves for the opening of school. Hood stated that the band will practice eight hours a day for the two weeks before school. He expects between 140 and 160 students to be in the band next year.

Hospital to get re-accredited

Shelby Memorial Hospital has received official notice of two year re-accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, following a survey of the hospital's facilities earlier this year.

"We are extremely pleased that our hospital meets the rigid standards of patient care required by the Commission for Accreditation," Chester M. Black, Administrator said, "and we wish to assure the people of Shelby County that we will continue to strive for excellence in the services we provide".

This is the fourth year Shelby Memorial Hospital has received accreditation.

A hospital that has been surveyed and accredited gives the public the following assurances:

1. A safe and secure building where maximum precautions are taken against fire, and where there are provisions for emergency lighting during power failures. Patients are also protected against diseases of other patients.

2. Good facilities and equipment to diagnose and effectively treat illnesses.

3. Hospital services to meet the patients' needs, such as a dietary department, a well-stocked pharmacy with a registered pharmacist consultant, and emergency services.

4. A medical library containing medical text books and periodicals for use of the medical staff.

5. Physicians granted privileges of practicing on an accredited hospital staff meet the highest professional, legal and ethical qualifications. A well trained nursing staff and adequate hospital personnel are also required.

Sheriff arrests opponent

THOMPSON TAKES IT IN STRIDE - Bill Thompson flashes a smile as he prepares to leave the Shelby County jail with his wife after being arrested by Sheriff Red Walker on a "conspiracy" charge. Thompson is running against Walker in the runoff election to be held next Tuesday. He and six others were arrested late Tuesday. They all made bond of $1,000 each within a short time of their arrest. (Additional photos on page 3)

Shelby County Sheriff C.P. "Red" Walker arrested his opponent in the upcoming election, and six other men Tuesday afternoon and charged them with "conspiracy with the intent to murder or maim him."

Arrested were Shelby County Coroner Bill Thompson, who is running against the sheriff; Probate Judge Conrad M. Fowler; Sonny Dorrough, campaign manager for Thompson; Tuck Parker, Charles "Cowboy" Benson, and two reporters of the Birmingham News, Ron Casey and John I. Jones.

Sheriff Walker signed the warrants himself and they were issued by Kyle Lansford, Circuit Clerk of Shelby County.

Thompson was arrested by Deputy Jack Neely as he returned to his home after a day of campaigning. Judge Fowler was arrested at 5:30 on the streets of Columbiana by Deputies Bill Davenport and Neely. The two Birmingham News reporters were arrested in Alabaster by Sheriff Walker.

The two reporters from the Birmingham News had a previous appointment with Sheriff Walker to discuss with him the results of an investigation they had been making in Shelby County. The investigation, reportedly involved drugs and the use of "work forces".

According to the reporters, the sheriff listened to their comments and called their allegations, "damn lies". Walker then asked about evidence and soon after being told that the evidence was on tapes, Walker told them, "You know your rights. I have warrants for your arrest on charges to maim and murder."

The reporters were then driven to the Shelby County jail in Columbiana.

After the news of the mass arrests became known, the sheriff's office was filled with men who volunteered to make bond for the accused. They were all released on bonds of $1,000 each.

Judge Fowler told the Reporter in an interview as he was being fingerprinted, "I have no awareness of any basis for any charge whatsoever." He said Sheriff Walker told him he was being charged under Title 14, Section 99 of the Code of Alabama.

District Attorney Harold Walden told the Reporter that a preliminary hearing could be arranged as soon as the accused requested it.

The Shelby County grand jury concluded its regular session a week ago, but a special grand jury could be called due to the seriousness of the charges, according to some courthouse sources.

The next regular grand jury is not scheduled until late summer, District Attorney Walden said.

The sheriff left the jail before any of the men were released on bond. The Shelby County Reporter reached the sheriff's wife at their home in Ababaster and she said she was sure the sheriff would like to make a comment for the press when he returned home.

However, he did not return the call and the line was busy during the remainder of the evening when the Reporter tried to reach the sheriff.

conservation officer Donald Tuberville and deputy Billy Northcutt.

The arresting officers confiscated the fishermen's boat, motor, fifteen 200 yard gill nets and an estimated 1,500 pounds of fish. The varieties of fish consisted of

Postmaster retires after 21 years

Marion C. Sparks was honored Monday night on the occasion of his retirement from a career of 21 years with the U.S. postal service.

Postal employees and many friends gathered at a Hoover restaurant for dinner in his honor.

Sparks was named acting postmaster of the Alabaster post office on May 5, 1953. One year later he became postmaster. He has seen the office grow from a small fourth class office to the largest first class office in Shelby County. Two rural routes have almost doubled the number of postal patrons served since February of 1972. The Siluria office is now a station of the Alabaster post office.

Sparks came to Alabaster in 1946 where he bought a half-interest in the Nickerson Drug Co. In 1947 he became sole owner and operated it under the name "Sparks Drug Co." until October of 1956.

He has the highest praise for all those who have worked with him, saying, "The present employees both at the main office and Siluria station are very dedicated and can be counted on for an extra effort when the load is heavy if necessary."

He added, "We also have wonderful people to serve from both offices and both routes. It has been an honor to serve as their postmaster during the 21 years."

POSTMASTER RETIRES - Marion C. Sparks (center) is congratulated by Alabaster city councilman Dan Acker (right) and K. E. Nutrition program observes anniversary

The fifth anniversary of the Shelby County Expanded Food and Nutrition Program was celebrated in Columbiana on Wednesday afternoon, May 22. EFNEP workers, as well as county and state officials were present at the anniversary meeting.

According to associate county extension chairman Marian Cotney, the main purpose of the program is to improve nutrition of limited resource groups of all ages and ethnic groups. The program has actually been in effect in the county for three years, with seven program assistants to aid in improving the diet of those enrolled in the program.

Each of the seven program assistants is expected to work with fifty or more families in sectors of the county. At present there are 393 family units served by the EFNEP workers. It was pointed out that some families are no longer in the program, and that the figures quoted were compiled for the last six months of 1973. Thus many more families had actually been involved, despite the figures given.

Guest speaker at the celebration was Mrs. Virginia Merable, from the Auburn headquarters of the Extension Service. Mrs. Merable discussed the benefits of the EFNEP program and its history of service in Alabama and Shelby County. Mrs. Merable explained that a better diet was not the sole result of the program, but that those served by EFNEP went on to live a fuller, more enjoyable life.

Following Mrs. Merable's talk, several EFNEP workers also gave short talks about their experiences in the program. Mrs. Mavis Kelly of Alabaster discussed how the program had helped her and those she works with. Mrs. Annie Vines told of how she teaches cooking to a group of young black children near Calera, and her pleasure at teaching some of her own grandchildren.

Miss Louise Rooks discussed her experience at etching a group of her classmates at Chelsea High. During her last year at school she worked with the DOT phase of EFNEP, proving to her students that the initials said, "Diet's Our Thing."

Toward the end of the meeting an award was given to Mrs. Mavis Kelly for her outstanding work as a program assistant. Mrs. Cotney explained that since they only had one award to give, they could not honor all seven of the assistants. They had thus decided to give the honor to Mrs. Kelly.

Following the program refreshments were served and EFNEP workers and guests mingled for a period of fellowship.

Citizens will decide 'hottest' political race

Shelby County residents will decide the outcome of one of the hottest political races in the state when they go to the polls Tuesday to vote for the office of Sheriff of Shelby County.

The 16-year veteran sheriff, C. P. "Red" Walker is fighting for his political life after being challenged by Shelby County Coroner, Billy Thompson, who polled more votes than Walker in the May primary.

The political fight has caused deep divisions among voters, families and friends, who seem to be taking this contest far more seriously than the usual political campaign.

Both of the candidates are waging a round-the-clock campaign.

The spotlight of statewide interest in the outcome of the election is new to Shelby County voters.

The two races for the County Commission are also drawing wide interest within the District 2 and District 4. In district 2, Doug Ballard of Montevallo and L. C. "Curt" Payne of Alabaster are in the runoff for the seat on the Commission now held by Lynder Henry, who did not seek the office again.

In District 4, the incumbent, I. D. Stone, is in the runoff with the Mayor of Vincent, J. Alpha Lowe.

The question of alignments

Same number of machines to be used

The same number of voting machines will be available in Shelby County for the upcoming runoff election as were available in the May primary. Probate Judge Conrad Fowler reminds voters to be sure to vote in the election. He reminded voters that the ballot will be shorter this time so there will be less time spent waiting in line.

The voting place for Beat 22 in East Pelham has been moved to the home of Mrs. Mary Mulkey.

is the first question voters want to know.

Two other local races of great interest are for State Senate District 17 which includes the Alabaster-Cahaba Valley part of Shelby County. Eddie Hubert Gilmore and Doug Cook are campaigning in a district new to them, after serving Jefferson County in county-wide offices previously.

In the same Shelby County area, Jake Vaughn and J. T. "Jabo" Waggoner are in a race for the House of Representatives. Both men are from Jefferson County.

The polls will open at 8 a.m. next Tuesday amid predictions that several of the candidates will have poll watchers posted at the polls.

In Calera --

City improvements planned

Calera's city council is planning a series of improvement projects, to be funded by Revenue Sharing funds. The town was awarded over $17,000 for various projects, and at the Tuesday, May 21 council meeting,

Mayor George Roy announced how the money will be spent. A total of $9,264.25 will be allocated for public safety, and $4,000 will go toward sewer improvements. $2,000 will be spent for the park and recreation program. Streets will be resurfaced with $4,285 of the funds.

The Calera council welcomed two representatives of the county Youth Aid Bureau. YAB's Wayne Smith discussed the functions of the bureau and described how it tries to help young people.

The money for park improvements will be spent to meet the demand for recreational facilities. The one tennis court is reportedly swamped with players, and another court is planned with the revenue funds. Meanwhile, playground equipment has been installed and the council is preparing to take bids on the construction of other facilities.

Calera's firemen are preparing for their annual fishing trip as well. This year they are going to Panama City for a bit of deep-sea fishing.

Sheriff Walker's Checks

I'm afraid some Shelby County people may not have seen the article in Sunday News about Sheriff Walker's debts with the Las Vegas gambling casinos. I would like them to read the final three paragraphs of that article. They were:

"Also during the investigation, it was learned that Walker has files in the cashier's offices of several Nevada gambling casinos.

A call to the Tropicana Casino last week revealed that $2,000.00 in checks was being held there. However, a casino official said Thursday that the checks had recently been picked up by an A. L. Walker who gave a West Blockton address.

At the Dunes casino where Walker also has a file, a casino official said Walker now owes no money."

On April 16th the News had run pictures of four $500.00 checks left by Sheriff Walker with Caesar's Palace.

This kind of activity by Sheriff Walker raises serious questions.

How can a Shelby County father or mother vote for Sheriff Walker and afterwards tell a son or daughter that it is wrong to gamble?

Shelby County has long been a haven for professional gamblers operating close to Birmingham but outside Jefferson County. Is it good for Shelby County to continue a Sheriff in office who gambles with large sums in Las Vegas? Who has never enforced the law in Shelby County against professional gambling operations? Who runs up large gambling debts and becomes obligated to professional gamblers?

The answer for the good of Shelby County needs to be "NO".

When asked by the league members present, both candidates stated they felt that blacks should be represented on the hospital board.

The membership expressed the opinion to both candidates that it felt that blacks were being passed-by on appointed offices. Members expressed that blacks are a part of Shelby County and want to be involved.

C.P. "Red" Walker addressed the Suburban League following Payne. He asked the league to help keep the program that existed in the Sheriff's department. Walker said that he has no apology for the manner in which he and his office had dealt with black citizens.

Doug Cook, a candidate for state Senator District 17, was the final office seeker to speak to the group. Cook told the league that he has had eight years experience as a state senator and representative. He continued that he supported equal rights legislation, ecology and recreation. Cook also stated that he had a moderate voting record on labor issues and is a lifelong Democrat.

It was reported that efforts had been made to contact Sheriff candidate Bill Thompson, to invite him to speak to the league.

After the candidates spoke, the Suburban league moved on to other business. The question was raised whether the new Alabaster sewer line would serve the black community well. The league members recommended that a representative find out the exact limits of the sewer system.

The league also voted to contract with Cole and Mixon Construction Company to do some grading on league owned land.

Looking back on past gives fond memories

by Milton Bird

Will and Minnie Davis lived at the foot of Granny's hill. Will snaked logs for Pop, up and down the hills around town, and Dan Harkins brought them to the mill, driving Tige and Emma. I used to pass Will and Minnie's house, and Alex Lisle's house further on, on my way to Toliver Taylor's spring.

Will and Minnie Davis and the years running away while a boy grew into a man and the years still piling up. Granny and Pop have been gone for years, and Will and Dan, and Tige and Emma, and today word came that Minnie had gone.

I guess that's what got me to thinking. About the way things looked then and how they look now. There are half a dozen houses at the foot of Granny's hill today, all the way from Mrs. McMillan's house to Alex Lisle's tin-top house on the curve. And a dozen more on the hill beyond, where the scaly-bark trees grew and the wild plum thickets along Longshore's fence.

Maybe, if I tried, I could still find Toliver Taylor's spring. It had to be there, somewhere between the houses on Turner Boulevard and the railroad.

So I started out. May had borrowed an April day, with a bright blue sky, and bundles of clouds bubbling up and floating away, and coming back after a little filled with rain, that lasted only a few minutes, before hurrying off to sprinkle the grass somewhere else. High up in the sky a bluebird peeped. It was a soft, moving sound that lasted only a second, before it hurried off, following the shower.

I climbed a little hill and looked down the other side. Suddenly I heard it. The gurgling noise a branch makes, hunting its way toward a bigger branch, the noise tagging along behind, on and on down the hollow.

Twenty feet further on I spied it. It was the same sparkling water oozing out, pushing its way through the straw and leaves, bright, radiant water the years hadn't changed. And beyond the spring, on a little rise, was a violet patch.

And tonight, looking back, I wonder if the violet patch wasn't what I was looking for anyway. In a world, grown ugly with its many sins, a fellow needed to get out in the middle of a violet patch and forget, for a little while, how ugly things can be.

And, you know, if he had made only one little violet patch and one bright May day I would have believed.

Broken shower ruins Cooper's day

by Fred Cooper

Just last week, I noticed how loose the little thing on my bathtub faucet that you pull to start the shower was and I thought to myself, "Cooper, how long is it going to be before that little rascal breaks?"

I'm pleased to announce that I now know.

The little rascal lasted through my Wednesday morning shower. I'm not sure if it broke during the shower or if the booger that resides in my house for the express purpose of breaking things when I'm not home did it. Whatever the reason, I barreled home at 5 p.m. to shower and change because I had to talk to a graduate class at the local university at 5:30. If it had been an undergraduate bunch I wouldn't have bothered with the shower. I could have slipped on a sweatshirt, jeans, and sandals and fit right in.

Since I did have to perform my ablutions, I turned on the water, adjusted it so I wouldn't burn my tender skin, and jerked the little thing that magically makes the shower work.

The magic was gone. Nothing happened. I ended up having to take a tub bath, which I hate. More than I hate a tub bath, though, I hated the thought of having to fix my shower.

I'm not one of these folks who can fix something that's broken. I can generally get it apart but in accomplishing this, I alter its original condition to such an extent that nobody can get it together again. It was either do it myself, however, or hire a plumber.

On Thursday, I trapped the maintenance chief at my office and presented my problem. Simple, he said, all I had to do was unscrew the faucet and get a new one.

Sounds easy, doesn't it?

Well, my shower apparatus is one which is on the outside of the wall rather than being built-in. Kind of an after-thought is what it looks like. After close examination of the set-up, I started taking it apart. I had at my disposal two pairs of pliers, a screwdriver, a wrench, and a hammer. Clearly enough tools.

Surprisingly, the various pipes came loose with comparative ease. It only took my 45 minutes. Then I arrived at the thing I really needed -- the faucet.

It was here that I reaffirmed another section of "Cooper's Law". It's always the last thing to go on or off that's the hardest. First of all, the faucet wouldn't turn either way. This led to the problem of which way I should try to force it. I didn't know if it were a right-handed or left-handed faucet, that is, did it unscrew to the right or the left? I couldn't tell which way felt more natural to turn it since I don't unscrew things enough for either way to feel natural. I twisted and jerked and pushed and worked back and forth and bent my screwdriver and finally came to a decision.

I would hit it with the hammer.

I did, too. I whopped it a good one. And it moved! Taking heart, I whopped it again and once again it moved. I eventually got it moved almost a quarter of a turn to the right. This turned out to be an unfortunate direction, since it was supposed to unscrew to the left.

Since I couldn't get it to go any further to the right or back to the left, no matter how hard I hit it with the hammer, I gave up and called my boss's husband who came over with HIS tools.

He didn't have any easy job of getting it off, either, I'd like to point out. It took him nearly 30 seconds. I had been working two hours. I feel like I loosened it for him.

Needless to say, the plumbing fixtures store had never seen a faucet like that so I had to buy a whole new outfit but I did put it in myself. It was simple, once I used my hammer on it.

'Bill Thompson will run own office'

Letter to Editor:

Bill Thompson has guaranteed Shelby County people that NO ONE but himself will run the Sheriff's Office. Bill has stated that he will work with the Shelby County Commission. This statement was reversed and the insinuation published that Bill would be working for the Commission to include Judge Fowler. Judge Fowler's reputation stands on its own merit and is certainly above being questioned. However, Judge Fowler is in no political race to include the running for Sheriff.

It is hard to understand why some candidates are unable to stand toe to toe with an opponent and run a clean and fair race without dragging the names of good leaders into the issue. Since the primary we have heard

Reporter re-examines November county audit

The Shelby County Reporter makes every effort to report news that affects the taxpayers of Shelby County. One of our first priorities is to report on government and use of public funds.

Last November 15, the Reporter published a report of the audits of various county offices, when the audits were returned to Columbiana by the State Department of Examiners of Public Accounts. To the best of our knowledge, no other local paper printed any of the audit report.

A question arose last week about those audits and the way they were reported. We went back to the courthouse and checked the audits again.

Everyone who had made an error in accounts had repaid the sum before the audit was released. It is generally agreed, even among auditors, that when public officials and public bodies handle thousands of dollars under hundreds of different laws, that a few errors in bookkeeping are bound to occur. No evidence of neglect or criminal intent was indicated by the audits, and a Shelby County grand jury inspected and passed on them, with no charges made against any county official.

The Reporter, in re-examining the audits last Friday, found a page that we had overlooked last November. On that page, it was reported that three members of the county commission had made errors in expense accounts. Lynder Henry re-imbursed the county for some $50 for his wife's share of a hotel bill on a commission trip to Washington, D.C. I.D. Stone reimbursed the county for a $2 telephone call that had been charged to his hotel room while on a commission trip to Montgomery, and Hoyt Blalock repaid $6 for his wife's share of a hotel bill on a commission trip to Montgomery.

The story of the audits as printed in the Shelby County Reporter on November 15, 1973 is as follows:

The financial records of county offices have been gone over with a fine tooth comb this year by the State Examiners of Public Accounts.

Several county officials have had to repay small amounts that state examiners said were not allowable expenses.

Every member of the County Commission, the sheriff, the coroner and the county planner each were asked to repay small sums.

A new law caused the County Commission's problem. For years, expenses of attending the meetings had been routinely paid from county coffers. However, when the new expense law was put into effect, the courthouse group did not catch the fine print and continued the older system for one payment period. Each member was asked to repay the sum, which was from $11.20 to $40, depending on how much travel the commissioner was allowed. The total was $116.

Traveling to investigate a multiple highway accident caused a mixup in the coroner's bookkeeping, on travel allowance. He repaid the amount of $44 as a result of the error. The county planner had a $6 error in his account. As earlier reported, the sheriff repaid $138 for flowers that he had purchased from his pistol permit fund.

Another mixup on the County Commission's paying the Harpersville share of $213.44 for membership in the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission brought criticism from state examiners, but later rulings proved the County Commission to have been correct.

State examiners recommended that all county commission travel vouchers show points of travel in the future. They recommended that the sheriff's pistol permit fund have a record of equipment purchased, kept in a permanent bound ledger and kept on file. Tightened bookkeeping procedures were also recommended.

The pistol permit fund for the two year period April 1, 1971 through March 31, 1973 showed receipts of $14,500 and disbursements of $11,409.

In the sheriff's fund on court work, the cost of feeding prisoners from February 1, 1971 through January 31, 1973 (two years) was shown at $24,158. State examiners recommended balancing the cashbook on a monthly basis and recording disbursements and receipts in numerical order.

In the audit of the Inferior Court, state examiners recommended that the state repay Shelby County for certain fines collected. They recommended that fines for drivers license violations be sent directly to the state, and that auto tag violations be remitted to the county.

Shelco gets new vehicle

The newest emergency and rescue vehicle in Shelby County was put in operation this week by Shelco Unit One.

Bearing the inscription "Rescue 1", the vehicle will be available throughout the county, but will be based in the Montevallo area, according to Doug Ballard, Jr., Chief of Shelco Unit 1.

The 3/4 ton van is equipped to handle nearly all types of emergencies including home injuries, multi-car accidents and cardiac or respiratory problems. Equipment on board "Rescue 1" includes light generators, oxygen equipment, a variety of resuscitators, a rescue basket, breathing packs, ladders and multi-trauma kits. "Rescue 1" will be operated by certified Emergency Medical Technicians and persons with equivalent training. It is equipped with two-way radio and will be able to be on the road in less than one minute from the time it is requested.

The basic vehicle was donated to Shelco Unit 1 by Mrs. Bonnie Moore. The Shelby County Area Vocational Training School in Columbiana painted the truck red and a safety lime yellow. The latter color has been proved to have the greatest visibility for day or night operation.

Equipment donations, according to Ballard, have been received from Mrs. Moore, Mrs.

Earline McGaughy, Larry Horton, J.C. Draper, Larry Smithman, H.K. Ferguson, Cecil Austin, Don Lovelady, Doug Ballard, Sr., and Jimmy Knowles.

The services of "Rescue 1" may be obtained, according to Ballard, "by calling the nearest fire or police department, the county Sheriff's Office or by dialing 911."

Ballard told the Reporter, "We hope no one will need "Rescue 1", but if they do, isn't it nice to know that there is someone you can turn to, 24 hours a day, seven days a week?"

NEW RESCUE VEHICLE -- Ready for nearly any emergency this Rescue unit is now operating on the highways of Shelby County and is prepared to roll within sixty seconds. Designed to be used in all kinds of emergencies including fires, lost persons, drownings, train wrecks or home injuries, "Rescue 1" is a part of the Shelby County Fire and Civil Defense Rescue Unit No.1, Inc.

Red's facts, fictions questioned by reader

An open letter to "Red" and the people of Shelby County: Just a few questions about "Red's" Facts and Fictions that appeared in the Reporter last week. These questions should be answered to the satisfaction of each individual in his own mind.

Here is a statement that appeared under Fact your statement "Red", "I stopped payment on these checks myself because I owed no such debt."

Now under Fiction you listed checks allegedly written. Question;

1. Would or could you define Fact and Fiction?

2. Why was it necessary to stop payment on alleged checks?

3. How could you stop payment on checks someone else wrote?

4. Why did you write checks for debts you didn't owe?

5. Do you know of a bank anywhere that will let you stop payment on checks you are not responsible for?

6. Do you make it a habit of writing checks or paying debts you don't owe?

7. Do you conduct the business part of the Sheriff's office as you do your own personal business?

You are right on one count those responsible for lowly deeds will answer. There is always a Day at Reckoning.

These questions are based on your very own statement.

I hope there are enough people who want the truth and know it when they hear it. Enough people to, "Get the Red Out".

Walker crowd compared to ring of N.Y. thugs

Letter to the Editor:

As an interested 18 year old voter in Shelby County, I find that the up-coming election in Shelby County will have direct bearing on the lives of many people.

An example would be the drug traffic in our public schools. I ask you, how can such a qualified Sheriff such as Red Walker allow so many peoples' lives be destroyed with these dangerous drugs? I also find it hard to believe that such a qualified Sheriff as Walker, allow, as he says it, people lie about his personal life and produce phony material which he didn't know existed.

As a student, I am reminded of an example of a ring of thugs which robbed the city of New York for all it was worth. The ring was known as the "Tamany Hall" bunch. Their leader was William "Boss" Tweed, and the time was in the late 1800's.

As I meet each day, I find a similar example, which has no rich name as did the "Tamany" boys, but in the same, they are a tightly knit group, their leader is C. P. Red Walker, and the time is now.

After a relentless struggle, the Tamany boys were finally brought out into the public light by Thomas Nast, a political cartoonist; the man who will bring the Red Walker bunch out into the public light will be Bill Thompson, that is, unless C. P. Red Walker has a few more tricks up his sleeve. Think about it, do you want to live in a town or community like that?

Teen knocks mud-slinging

Letter to the Editor:

It's hard for an 18 year old voter like myself to understand why or how the Birmingham News can produce an article on C. P. Red Walker and his affiliation with a Las Vegas gambling casino through signed checks that bounced and something not being done to eliminate such as this. The office of Sheriff of Shelby County is a direct representative of youth and old alike and should not even be involved with such as has been in the paper several times.

I also find it hard to understand why Red Walker, in his pursuit for re-election, finds it necessary to bring the names of good political leaders into the issue. Red Walker should, if he were a decent person, be able to stand on his own merit and face Mr. Thompson face to face without the aid of using illegally the help of his Deputies to get him re-elected.

Mr. Walker felt that he had the good people of Shelby County so deep in the palm of his hand that he didn't even have to plicit or call on the voters for their support until he came up beat in the May Primary. When he found himself beat after 15 years of undesirable service, he resorted to name calling and dirt slinging. I ask you as a good citizen, why did Red Walker resort to this attack? I feel it to be an effort to divert attention away from the young people's attention. I also include parents along with the young people. Shelby County is fraught with drugs, Shelby County is fraught with gambling, a good and true Sheriff would not allow this situation.

I plead with each and every voter in Shelby County to support Mr. Thompson for Sheriff of Shelby County.

Wallace shaping up '76 political campaign

Gov. George Wallace appears to be preparing for a bid for president in 1976. According to John Dillin in a copyrighted article in the Christian Science Monitor, Wallace is using computers to build up support in "one of the most sophisticated political operations in the United States."

The computers are used to log data about the five million past contributors to Wallace's campaigns including the donors' names, occupations, ages, size and frequency of contributions, plus their loyalty to the governor's cause, according to the Monitor.

Contributions arrive daily at Wallace Headquarters in Montgomery in checks ranging from $5 or $10 to $25 dollars. Wallace's campaign manager, Charles Snider, suggests that this is how all candidates will have to raise their funds in the future because of stricter campaign laws. The current operation is called the Wallace Stand.

In his 1968 nationwide campaign, Wallace and his team raised $9 million by operating out of a filing cabinet and manila envelopes according to the Monitor. Today the organization uses computers to find out whatever they want to know about past contributors.

Potential contributors are also enlisted by combing the mailing lists of magazines. The governor's campaign group recently mailed a million letters asking for support from the subscribers of several conservative magazines. All who contributed are being added to the computer list, according to Dillon's article.

Campaign funds are now being used to prepare for the National Democratic Conference to be held in Kansas City in December. Wallace workers hope to aid potential Wallace delegates from 23 states in their bids for the 2,050 places in the national conference. While campaign director Snider does not see the conference as being crucial, some people consider it a warm-up for the 1976 Democratic convention. The conference will also give the Wallace team an excellent try-out to check its operating procedure.

Although Governor Wallace has not announced whether or not he will run for president in 1976, he appears to enjoy discussing the possibility.

Courthouse dome buzzing with news

A delegation from Vincent appeared before the Shelby County Commission Monday to request county assistance in grading a ball park.

Nash Hardy was spokesman for the group. Commissioners advised that the group would have to incorporate as a non-profit institution to be eligible for any such assistance.

A delegation of residents from the Green Valley Homes subdivision asked the Commission for aid with a water drainage problem and also to consider putting speed breakers on their streets.

The trial of Richard Bradley, accused of murdering a University of Montevallo coed, Karen Jones, has been continued until the next session of criminal court, at the request of his attorneys.

The case was scheduled for arraignment and trial this week, but has been rescheduled for the week of August 25, according to District Attorney Harold E. Walden.

Wilton Smoots will go on trial in Circuit Court this Friday on a charge of violating the drug abuse control act.

Frank Wilder of Wilsonville has been named new Shelby County license inspector. He takes the position vacated by F. D. Elliott, when Elliott was named bailiff to Circuit Court Judge James Sharbutt.

Maurice Bishop of Birmingham has been employed to work with Shelby County attorneys to represent the county in the lawsuit being brought against the county by eight residents of Beat 12, in a class action suit.

Youth arrested for robbery of store in Montevallo

Nineteen year old Naron Q. Salter of Montevallo was arrested Tuesday afternoon and charged with the armed robbery of the Montevallo Lawn and Garden Supply Company.

Salter was arrested by Montevallo Police Chief Troy Kirkland when Salter's father brought him to the Montevallo City Hall to admit the daytime robbery.

Salter reportedly had a companion in the Highway 25 holdup, but at press time no other arrests had been made.

Before young Salter turned himself in, officers from Calera, Alabaster, the University of Montevallo, Jemison and Shelby and Chilton County Sheriff's Departments joined Montevallo officers in searching for the two robbers.

Montevallo police recovered the $103.00 taken from the store. They also impounded the young man's weapon.

Council discusses dogs ---

Two retire from Montevallo board

The resignations of two long-time members of the Montevallo Water Board were accepted with deep regret by Montevallo's City Council Monday night.

Former mayor Dr. M. L. Orr, Jr. and board chairman Pat Kelly tendered their resignations to Montevallo's governing body with an effective resignation date of June 30.

Both Kelly and Orr were instrumental in the initiation and implementation of the city's recent water system expansion that made city water available in Pea Ridge, Dry Valley, Spring Creek and the Moore's Cross Roads areas. The improvement and expansion program is nearing completion. Kelly and Orr had indicated, nearly two years ago, their wishes to be relieved of their responsibilities when the water improvement program is completed.

City councilman J. A. Brown will fill one of the two vacancies. A nomination to fill the other vacancy is expected at the next meeting of the city council.

In other action Monday night, the council voted to set the semi-annual dog detention period for June 23-29. Another detention period will be scheduled for late fall.

Purpose of the dog detention period is to eliminate strays from the community. During the detention week all dogs must be confined to a leash or pen. Dogs not confined will be taken to a veterinarian's kennels and kept for a week. Owners may claim dogs during this period. Owners will be required to pay the daily board bill.

Councilman J. D. Holsomback reported to council members that the new library located in the city's restored depot is nearing completion. Holsomback indicated that the Library Board hopes to move the facility to its new quarters within two weeks.

Fire Chief Mike Mahan, responding to a request made several weeks ago, stated that he is now beginning to receive sample ordinances from other communities dealing with the safety of the occupants of fraternity and sorority houses.

Nationwide statistics, according to Mahan, indicate that fraternity and sorority houses pose one of the greatest hazards to any college community.

Information from an association of insurance underwriters, the State Fire Marshal's office, and the Southern Building Code will be used in drafting an ordinance for use by the City of Montevallo.

Police arrest man with burglar tools

A Tarrant City man was arrested Monday night by Montevallo police and charged with possession of burglary tools according to Montevallo Police Chief Troy Kirkland.

Daniel Forest Bice, 22, is in Shelby County Jail in Columbiana where he was taken after his arrest Monday night.

Montevallo police officer Herman Lee noticed Bice "acting suspiciously" at the door of Smitherman's Pharmacy on Montevallo's Main Street. As officer Lee approached, Bice and a companion fled, Bice throwing a crowbar into a nearby patch of weeds.

Bice was apprehended, taken to the Montevallo City Hall where burglary tools including the crowbar, gloves and walkie-talkie radio were found in his possession. Officers also impounded a 1972 Dodge passenger car.

Bice's companion was not arrested. State Troopers release the following statistics for Shelby County so far in 1974: Troopers investigated 132 accidents resulting in 62 injuries and 2 deaths. For the same period in 1973 Troopers had investigated 174 accidents resulting in 65 injuries and 6 deaths.

The incident occurred at approximately 10:00 o'clock Monday night.

Bice was taken to Shelby County Jail by Deputy Bill Davenport.

Davenport and all members of the Montevallo Police Department participated in the investigation.

Same workers to man polls

Questions have been raised concerning whether or not the voting officials who worked at the polls during the primary election are supposed to work at the polls in the runoff election.

Attorney General Bill Baxley has ruled that the runoff election is a continuation of the primary. Therefore the same poll officials who served in the May election will also serve in the June 4th runoff.

An Open Letter

From the Shelby County Deputies

To THE PEOPLE OF SHELBY COUNTY

WE, the Deputies of Shelby County feel that the Sheriff should be a qualified person. We place our life on the line many times to protect you, the citizens of this county. The risk is high enough at the best, but we know we have a well organized team in the event of trouble. The Sheriff is the leader of this team and we will not work for a team leader who is not trained in law enforcement.

If we had a Sheriff who was not trained in procedures of law enforcement, we would not be the only ones in a dangerous situation but YOU, the citizens of the county would also be in a dangerous situation.

We are professional lawmen and feel that the Sheriff, who runs our office, should also be a professional lawman. We feel to elect a man with no training would be like hiring a plumber to be chief surgeon at the hospital. The Sheriff is the chief law enforcement official of this county and we ask that you vote for a qualified man.

THIS IS NOT POLITICS - THIS IS GOOD BUSINESS

It is not our job to pick the Sheriff - that is your job. We are only interested that whoever is Sheriff of Shelby County, that he be a qualified man.

An answer to a rumor

Thompson supporters have heard a rumor that Shelby County Deputies have agreed to announce that they would each turn in their resignation if Bill Thompson is elected Sheriff.

Bill Thompson has said throughout the campaign that he is running against the Sheriff, not the Sheriff's Department.

Bill Thompson says in response to this rumor:

1. That should the Deputies resign he will not accept their resignation;
2. These Deputies are the employees of Shelby County, not of the Sheriff. They are paid by the tax payers. Their training and experience has been paid for by the tax payers. Thompson will not accept their resignation;
3. These Deputies are, at this time, subject to the orders and direction of the Sheriff. They are in no position to try to tell the voters who should be the Shelby County Sheriff.

Mrs. Doris Turner, chairman of the Shelby County Board of Registrars, reported that 891 new voters registered in the county on May 20 and 21. These were the only two dates that the registrars certified new voters before the June run-offs in the state democratic primary.

Mrs. Turner stated that 423 new voters were registered on Monday May 20, and 468 were registered on Tuesday May 21.

The Rev. Charles Card of Calvary Baptist Church in Vincent has written a poem paying tribute to Charles Paul Davis, Jr., who died recently. Mr. Davis was a life long resident of Vincent and was a charter member of Calvary Baptist Church. He fought a losing battle against heart disease for three years.

One of the verses of the poem reads,

"I see a smile, a new look on your face I hear your words, "Heaven's such a wonderful place!"

Donahoo, charged with burglary in the second degree, and Paul Douglas Cleckler, being held on an alias warrant for three charges. The two got out of their cell by sawing through a bar and climbing out of a window.

At press time neither Donahoo or Cleckler had been apprehended.

Donahoo had been back in jail for less than 24 hours after a previous jailbreak and recapture.

Electric motors only on public lakes

Electric fishing boat motors are the only power permitted on boats on Alabama's state-owned public fishing lakes, except for three larger lakes where gasoline outboards with limited horsepower are permitted.

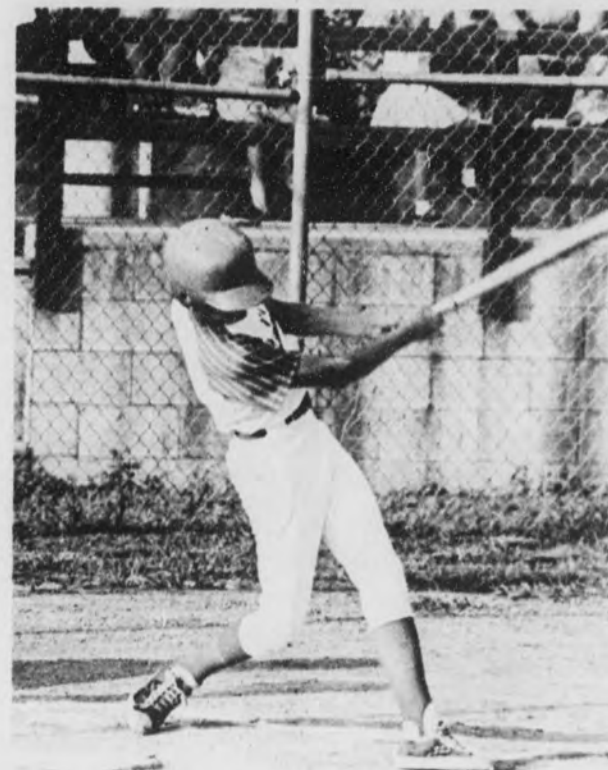

A state-by-state survey of boating regulations by Minn-Kota Manufacturing Company, pioneer manufacturer of electric fishing motors, reports that electric motors on public fishing lakes are limited to the kind that operate on six of 12-volt batteries.

Gasoline motors of up to ten horsepower, however, are permitted on Chambers County Public Lake and Walker County Public Lake.

Six-horsepower gas engines are allowed on Fayette County Public Lake.

In addition to the public lakes in Alabama, there are a number of lakes maintained by fishing clubs that set their own regulations concerning the kind and size of motors that may be used.

The Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, Division of Game and Fish, points out that there are several reasons for restricting gasoline motors on public fishing lakes. It notes that most of the lakes are fairly small and are used primarily by bank fishermen, and the waves produced by outboards disturb anglers along the banks. Noise is another nuisance factor.

LINE DRIVE - School's out and the local boy's baseball teams are really getting warmed up for a summer of baseball action. Here a player on the Columbiana Cubs gets a hit in a game played in Calera last Friday afternoon. The Cubs are a member team of the Central Shelby Dixie Youth League.

Leading team holds perfect 5-0 record

The City Recreation team now holds a perfect record of 5-0 in the Columbiana softball league after games played on May 21. Other teams and records are National Standard -- 2-1, Young Men's Club -- 2-2, Summer Hill -- 2-2, Four Mile -- 1-3, and Elastic Plant -- 0-4.

In games played on Tuesday, May 21, Four Mile downed the Elastic Plant 15-3; The Young Men's Club defeated the Elastic Plant 17-9; and City Recreation beat Summer Hill 6-1.

MEMORIAL DAY WEEKEND - David Ballard of Birmingham holds a bass he caught on Lay Lake while fishing out of Bozo's Camp. Lay Lake marina operators reported moderate fishing on the lake last week. However, lake activity did pick up during the long Memorial Day weekend with many people pleasure boating on the river.

NEW TENNIS COURTS GOING UP - Soon Helena residents will be able to enjoy playing a few sets of tennis in the afternoon or whenever their schedule will permit. This picture shows the site of the new Helena courts which will be located on the hill overlooking the baseball diamond in Joe Tucker Park. As the popularity in the game of tennis rises, other courts in Shelby County are either planned or under construction. A new court is now being built in Calera's Oliver Park, and the construction of new tennis courts for Columbiana has been approved by the Columbiana city council.

New players boost baseball program

Three new junior college transfers have been added to the University of Montevallo baseball program. Two new pitchers and a power hitting catcher will add new depth to the UM baseball program next year.

One of the new Falcon hurlers is pitcher Billy McReynolds, a transfer from Jefferson State Junior College in Birmingham. Standing five feet six inches tall and weighing 170 pounds, had a pitching record of 5-5 but held a strikeout total of 70. In his two years at Jeff State, McReynolds pitched a total of 62 innings.

"Billy has a lively fastball, probably the best in the area," commented University of Montevallo head basketball coach Bob Riesner. "We think he can become a good pitcher."

The second new pitcher added to the UM team is Dwight Dillard, a strong righthander from Lurleen Wallace State Junior College and Andalusia. Dwight stands six feet four inches tall and tips the scales at 220 pounds.

"With good control, Dwight looks like a stopper the Falcon program has needed, said Riesner. "Last year he was one of the top pitchers in the state, giving up only 19 walks in 82 innings."

Dillard compiled a 7-3 record and a 1.77 earned run average this season. As a freshman in 1973 he walked only six batters in 57 innings, chalking up a 4-2 record and a 1.53 ERA.

Balancing out the Falcons offensive attack will be catcher Steve Brown, a graduate of George C. Wallace Junior College in Selma. A left handed

Rodgers elected as president of conservancy

The Montevallo chapter of the Alabama Conservancy is making a study on recycling for the city. President Douglas Rodgers said that the group is preparing a economic report of what paper recycling could mean to Montevallo.

The group recently elected new officers, with Rodgers being joined by vice-president Dr. Robert A. McGuire and secretary Dr. Lucille Griffith.

During the summer the conservancy will have fewer projects and committee meetings since so many members are connected to the University of Montevallo. Rodgers indicated that new committees are scheduled to be formed in the fall when college is again in session.

Dairyman retiring after twenty-six years in business

by Rick Moore

After working seven days a week for 26 years, it's time for a rest, according to the philosophy of William Arthur Nolen, a long-time Shelby County resident who is going out of the dairy business.

Nolen owns 509 acres of land on county road 14 south of Alabaster and has been dairying on the same location since 1948. The dairyman stated that he started his business with a $13,000 loan from the FHA. He built his first barn by hand and started shipping 813,000 pounds of milk per month.

Twenty-six years later, Nolen now ships as much as 225,000 pounds of milk per month with a total of two and a half million pounds per year. Nolen reports that he is currently free from debt and realizing a good profit each month from his operation. He is milking over 200 cows and owns the best herd he has ever owned.

Why quit now, anyone might ask. Nolen says he feels the present time is the right time. He can sell for a comfortable sum, but if some unforeseen difficulties arose, he would not have ten or more years to build up his operation again. In addition, Nolen smilingly says that he is looking forward to a little extra leisure time.

Things have not always been a bed of roses at the Nolen dairy, he recalls. He says that he has been in debt as much as $100,000. He had to virtually start all over again in 1964 when a disease wiped out his herd.

When talking with a dairyman, the topic of conversion invariably turns to his cows. Such was the case with William Nolen. HE is milking 200, but the total herd numbers 400. Most of his cows are Holsteins.

Nolen said that his feeding program consisted of pasture grazing and hay. He also produces hay in his fields and raises between sixteen and twenty thousand bales of hay to feed his cows during the winter.

Nolen is selling 250 of his dairy cows this week to a dairyman in Blount county. He plans to raise his younger heifers and sell them at a later date.

As for future plans Nolen says he may buy some beef stock to graze his pastures and possibly put it in use a chicken house on his farm that has been empty for some time.

With so many hard luck stories associated with the dairy industry today, Nolen's story is a cheerful exception.

LEAVING THE BUSINESS - William Nolen surveys his herd of dairy cattle (above). Nolen plans to sell 250 milch cows this week. He holds a vial of medicine and a hyperdermic needle (below) used to administer medication to his cattle.

Nunnelley tech to offer community service courses

Nunnelley State Technical College in Childersburg plans to offer Community Service Mini Courses for the Summer Quarter. These courses are open to the general public. The technical college feels there is a segment of the general public that should be served by the school that has not been reached in its regular day and evening programs. It is for this purpose that the college is offering these mini courses.

The mini courses are set up for two short sessions: the first session from May 20 to June 28; the second session from July 14 to August 30.

Some courses will last for six weeks; others are scheduled for ten weeks. The courses are scheduled for one and two nights each week meeting from one and one-half to two hours nightly.

The mini courses available are: Ornamental Brick Work, Piano, Slimnastics, Food Canning and Freezing, Dancing (Folk-Modern Jazz), Decoupage, Ceramics, Knitting, Furniture Refinishing and Lamp Decorating, Art, Cake Decorating, Flower Arranging, Archery, Water Safety, Defensive Driving and Death Education (Psychological, Sociological, and Religious aspects), Bait Casting and Powder Puff Auto Mechanics.

The mini courses are set up so as to attract housewives, working mothers, high school students and others who wish to pursue a course for enrichment as well as practical purposes.

Michael J. Arban, Jr., President of Nunnelley Tech, stated that this is just a beginning for the community service mini programs. He anticipates that if there is good response from the public for these courses, then others will be offered in the future.

Erskine Penton, Coordinator of Evening Instruction, emphasizes that qualified instructors will teach these programs. Mr. Arban stressed that if particular groups, organizations, or individuals are interested in other courses, they should contact him and make their wishes known. Every effort will be made to offer other courses, as well as the present ones, just so long as there is a minimum of 12 students desiring the course.

Memorial gifts may be given for research

Memorial contributions are received the year around by the American Cancer Society in honor of those who have died of cancer.

As an observance of Memorial Day, the Shelby County Cancer Society suggests sending a Memorial Gift to the Society in the name of a friend or relative who has been the victim of this disease. The gift honors those lost to cancer and also helps the Society in its lifesaving program on behalf of the living.

Memorial Gifts may be mailed to Mildred Doyle Memorial Chairman, 167 South Shelby Street, Montevallo, Alabama 35115.

Project HOPE, with programs in Brazil, Ethiopia, the Caribbean, Tunisia and other countries around the world, has touched the lives of more than 3.5 million people in its 15-year history.

Miss Browne dies May 25 at age 74

Miss Elizabeth Browne, 74 a former resident of Columbiana, died at her home in Tampa, Fla., May 25. She retired from an executive position in the U.S. Customs Service in 1969.

Graveside rites were held in Columbiana at 3 p.m. Monday with Bolton Brown Service directing.

Survivors are: two sisters, Mrs. Emma Galyon and Mrs. Harold Broughton both of Prairie View, Kansas.

Interment in the Brown family plot in Columbiana Cemetery.

A total of 358 women were given the pap smears at four different locations.

The Health Department in Columbiana administered 111 tests, 56 were given at the clinic in Helena, 127 were given at the Montevallo clinic, and 64 were given at the clinic in Harpersville.

Many women attending the clinics had never had a pap test before. It was noted that many ladies went to the detection clinics.

Mrs. Robert Hume of the County Health Department reports that local doctors were very helpful at the clinics. All volunteer help was much appreciated, she said.

For anyone who was unable to attend the detection clinics, the County Health Department gives pap smears as a free

Library offers 16mm films

The following 16mm film will be available for use at the Shelby County Library during the month of June:

African Odyssey: The Red Bicycle. 13 min. Color. Tells about the economic life in Africa through the tale of a red bicycle which is assembled, painted and sold in Nairobi.

Art in Exhibition. 28 min. Color. Andrew Ritchie, who arranged the Yale Museum's art exhibit, illustrates how an art exhibition is mounted, from selection of the pictures to their final placement in the gallery. Show works of Picasso, Leger, Pollack, Rembrandt, Degas and Renoir.

Australia-Picture Frontier. 28 min. Color. "Waltzing Matilda", kangaroos, koala bears, and fascinating ways of life are all part of the Australian scene, and this film lets you share.

The Dragon's Tears. 6 min. Color. Based on a story by Hirotsugu Hamada, the contemporary Japanese writer of children's stories. The art of storytelling is here delightfully exemplified, with art work and music appropriate to a Japanese story. A dragon living in a mountain cave terrifies the village below, except for one little boy who invites him to his birthday party. This moves the dragon to tears which become a river, and provides a happy ending.

Ee-Yi-Ed-Yi-Oh! 10½ min. Color. Emphasizes that we must use modern methods to overcome the modern problems of over-population and pollution, by letting the audience see as barnyard animals in an overtechnicalized and polluted environment.

Making Yourself Understood. 14 min. B&W. Explains that in communication there are five elements to be expressed - who, what, to whom, how, and what effect. Points out the need for mutual understanding on the part of the speaker and his audience.

Normandy Invasion. 19 min. B&W. Presents on the spot coverage by U.S. Coast Guard combat photographers of the initial assault on Forress Europe.

A Place to Be. 13 min. Color. A tour of Vancouver. Includes panoramic views from Grouse Mountain, as well as scenes of shopping areas, parks and recreational areas.

So Little Time. 28 min. Color. Shows the need for preserving our wildlife by presenting intimate close-ups of birds and mammals in their natural environment.

Solo. 15 min. Color. Portrays the efforts and exhilarations that are experienced by the solo mountain climber.

T-15 and Counting. 23 min. Color. Provides a look at the Florida educational system. Reviews a variety of teaching methods.

Are small towns coming back?

Are small towns coming back? Some are.

Surveys show many city people would rather live in a small town.

"Whether a small town grows, or begins to wither, often depends upon the determination of local people," says Will Erwin, assistant secretary for rural development of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"Towns with a 'we can do it' attitude will go out and bring in job-producing plants, offices, and laboratories, so that their young people don't have to leave their home areas in search of job opportunities," says Mr. Erwin. "Others will cater to tourists and a recreation-hungry nation."

"The 'we can do it' crowd will guide the area's growth to make sure it helps to meet the needs of people, adding to the beauty and environmental tone of the neighborhood.

"Economic development makes it possible for towns to do things -- to provide convenience in getting goods and services -- to serve as a starting point from which people may improve the quality of their lives.

"Frequent, long drives to big cities may be far from dead. But it makes sense, regardless of the gasoline situation, for towns to develop in such a way as to meet the needs of residents, including farmers."

Can towns be developed to get this done? The answer is "yes," according to Assistant Secretary Erwin, if you are willing to work at it. He cites the story of Livingston, Alabama, as it appears in the May 6, 1974, issue of the Congressional Record.

Livingston had been going downhill for 20 years -- losing people annually. By the mid 1960's, it was thin and gaunt. Jobs were lacking -- living conditions were poor -- streets, many unpaved, were pitted with potholes. Potential employers took one look and kept going. Insurance companies threatened to cancel fire policies due to undependable water mains.

A crushing blow came in 1965 when the state condemned the tottering town's water system and ordered it to stop dumping its raw sewage into the Suwannee River.

Now it was sink or swim. The town decided to swim. City fathers joined hands with the Sumter County Rural Development Committee. They quartered back a community movement that led to a master plan. From that plan, work groups set out to give Livingston a new destiny.

One group worked on new jobs. Today five industries, employing about 1,000 persons from miles around, occupy a new industrial park. Livingston reversed its long mass outmigration of native sons -- many had been forced to seek employment in distant cities.

Several new businesses have been established. Old houses were renovated and some new ones built -- a product of more prosperity. And there was something to do around town.

The area's new water system provides water to neighboring communities. Livingston has better school, churches, and more community life. It has more of what it takes, including pride, to keep farms, businesses, and homes running.

Can other towns bootstrap themselves into better places to live and work? Federal rural development loans and other assistance, according to Assistant Secretary Erwin, are available. "But those communities that take the initiative to achieve and guide development, as a rule, will benefit most from it," the official concluded.

Renovation of Reynolds Hall nears completion at UM

Reynolds Hall, the white-pillared ante-bellum building on the University of Montevallo campus, will again be in the spotlight when its renovation is completed in late August or September.

Work has continued on the building since last summer, and the project should be finished after a full year on the job. Contracted by J.F. Holley Construction, the building renovation will cost $500,000. The 123-year-old building is receiving a major renovation as the old structure is modernized and reconstructed.

Constructed in 1851 as a girls' industrial school, the building took on other roles during its long history. During the War Between the States the building was the rendezvous point for Confederate soldiers who marched off to the war. It also served as a Confederate hospital during the conflict.

In later years the building again housed a women's school, academic departments for the college, part of the Montevallo High School, the theatre, chapel, the student union, and the alumni association. It served as administration building, headquarters for the speech department, and many other functions. The structure was named Reynolds Hall in 1925 after H.C. Reynolds, first president of the educational institution.

Even though small extensions are being added to the back wings of the building, the architect has designed them to blend with the rest of the building. Historical purists should also note that the building was enlarged and expanded in 1899 and 1925.

There has been some concern as to whether the building's wiring would meet fire inspector standards. The construction was begun on the assumption that the structure had been rewired five years ago.

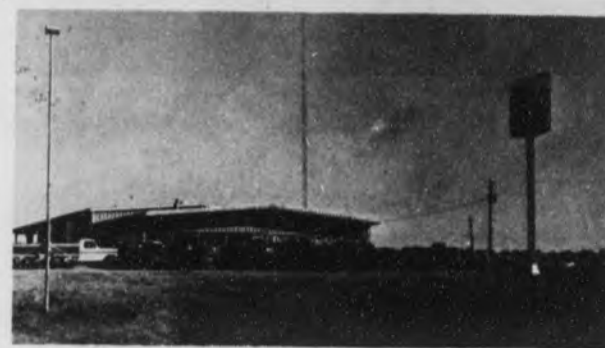

This was apparently not the case, and the Montevallo city fire inspector failed to approve the wiring of the building.

Inquiries by the Reporter revealed that the architect, Johnson and Cornish of Montgomery, has assured the University of Montevallo that the wiring will meet the state code. They have also arranged to have the state fire marshal inspect the building before it is reopened.

When the half-million dollar project is completed the speech department will move back to Reynolds after a year's stay in Ramsay dormitory. A new theatre will be ready for use in the second floor of Reynolds, and the stairs and classrooms will be completely refurbished and rebuilt to meet safety standards.

With the renovation almost complete, the grand old lady will again be a vigorous part of the university and a focus of memories for future graduates.

MRS. MARCO JULIO BONILLA
... formerly Elizabeth Marie Anthony

Miss Anthony, Bonilla wed in Montevallo

Miss Elizabeth Marie Anthony became the bride of Marco Julio Bonilla at 5:30 p.m., Sunday, May 26, at the Montevallo Presbyterian Church. Mr. Bonilla is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julio Bonilla of Miami, Fla.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Frances Anthony, was given in marriage by her uncle James A. Farrell of Montgomery. She wore a chiffon gown featuring a shirred empire bodice and tiered sleeves. Her floor length veil fell from a Juliet cap. She carried a bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Michael Pickett was her sister's matron of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Mike Kincaid, Miss Laurie Orr, and Miss Courtney Parker.

Mr. Bonilla served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Ruben Bonilla, Glenn Anthony, Mike Kincaid, Tom Arledge, Michael Pickett and Arvin Pattel of Montevallo and Don Blakely, Sonny Neal, and Brent Puckett of Birmingham.

A reception followed at the Presbyterian Forbes House. After a wedding trip to the Smokies, the couple will live in Montevallo.

Vacation time begins 'cause school's out

by Mildred White Wallace

Over the coffee cups this morning several "Mommies" of children who recently joyfully announced: "School's Out", said that they could always tell when this annual exodus took place for you could always find half-eaten peanut butter sandwiches appearing in most unlikely places around the house at all hours of the day. Baseball gloves quickly replaced text books and cries from Johnny and Mary "What can we do now?" - reverberated around the house and the lack of sufficient recreational activities to keep them occupied again became apparent.

With the "good old summer time" naturally, the traditional outpouring of youngsters takes place. Freedom to vacation in the mountains or at the beaches or just camping along the way seems to be on the planning agenda of a number of our families. Some of the older children say they will take summer jobs - others prefer attending summer school sessions preparatory to the collegiate courses planned. At any rate, it might be wise for them to take a few minutes time and pause long enough to be thankful for the many blessings that are theirs just because they are Americans!

If these young people can appreciate all that is America and build upon it constructively - taking good care to blend freedom with responsibility - we older ones will be fully justified in entrusting to them - with confidence - the future destiny of the United States.

So, happy vacationing - wherever you go. Just play it safe so you can come back alive in time to hear the tinkle of the school bell next September.

Roden-Bunch vows solemnized May 18

The marriage of Leah Jean Roden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack N. Roden of Huntsville to James Hayes Bunch Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bunch of Helena, was solemnized on the afternoon of May 18, in the Epworth United Methodist Church in Huntsville, with Rev. Earl Gordon reading the wedding vows.

Preceding the ceremony a musical program was rendered by Mrs. Sandy Vann, organist and John Whitfield soloist.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.B. Zuiderhoek of Siluria; and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Roden Sr. of Helena.

Grandparents of the groom are: Mrs. Molly Harris of Helena.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin organza with Venise lace outlining the neckline, the sheer yoke and waistline. Crystal pleated organza and Venise lace edged the long sleeves and circled the hem of the skirt. Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a Venise lace headpiece. She carried a nosegay of blue rosebuds with white carnations and baby's breath.

Miss Lois Peck was maid of honor and Jan Roden served as bridesmaid. They wore sky blue dotted swiss floor length gowns with white organza lace trimmed collars and cuffs. Each carried a long stem white rose.

Richard Bunch was best man and ushers were: Donnie Penhale, and Billy Harris. Candles were lighted by Jerry and Randy Weathersby.

A reception followed at the home of the bride. A rehearsal dinner party was hosted by the groom's parents at the William Tally House.

After a wedding trip the couple will live in Helena.

Regarding the History of Shelby County, you have asked me about. The most authentic record we have read was written by the late Rev. E.B. Teague whose articles we have already run twice (by request) as a serial -- Practically all articles you have recently read are repetitions of facts that are included in the Teague book. The original manuscript is in the Alabama Archives of History in Montgomery.

Several other writers including, the late J.L. Peters, and the late Judge E.S. Lyman, have written articles about the county, but the Teague account predates these historic episodes.

Belated though we be, we extend our personal congratulations to this little "Queen o'Hearts" and we are looking forward to our initial introduction when Dana gets a little older and can accompany her Dad on one of his weekly commercial trips to Columbiana.

WHAT JABO WAGGONER'S 8 YEAR SENIORITY IN THE HOUSE WILL MEAN TO YOU.

When the Alabama House of Representatives convenes next session, there will be more than 70 new members out of a total of 105. These new members will have absolutely no seniority. The members of the House who have seniority will become the chairmen of the important committees or be assigned to major committees. This seniority system has been the reason the South has always had such tremendous strength in the United States Congress. Most of the important committees in Congress have Southerners as their chairmen. This is why we need Jabo Waggoner's seniority for District 51.

'Love' musical comes to Alabaster Baptists

The first Baptist Church of Alabaster is hosting LOVE, the young world musical, on Tuesday, June 4, at 7:30 p.m. It will be presented by the Toar Choir of First Baptist Church of Mobile.

According to Otis Skillings, author-composer, his lyrics express the need for love in the world, how to find it, and how to express it. Skillings says,

"Love's the greatest power of all. There are so many problems in the world -- at work, at home, in school and all of society -- but I believe that every one can be solved by love."

The music combines contemporary sounds from the upbeat through soul-type to melodic. The choir will be directed by Charles Hayes.

Food stamp building gets face lift

by Willard Harrison

Now that the food stamp program is in effect, the Shelby County Commodity Building is receiving a total face-lift. Food stamp workers are going ahead with sales although the building is without air-conditioning, lights, restrooms, or drinking water.

Food stamp supervisor

Sarah Meadows told the Reporter that she and the other workers are proceeding even as the work crews continue to reconstruct the building's interior. Offices, stamp sales cubicles, and a receptionist's room have already been built and are in partial use.

Stamp seller Betty Daniel has been doling out stamps all week from her window, although she has to use a flashlight in the dark building. Receptionist Henrietta McNeel is operating from a desk placed near enough to the front door to be able to see by daylight. Yet despite the inconveniences they are going ahead with the food stamp program.

Mrs. Meadows said that the new food program has been met with great enthusiasm by families formerly on the commodity program. They feel that the stamp program gives them more freedom to eat what they want and more dignity in purchasing food rather than receiving a hand-out of commodities. Many food stamp users admitted to Mrs. Meadows that since the new program has gone into effect, they have eaten foods they have never had before.

There are limits on what stamp users can buy with food stamps. As the name indicates, they are to be used for edibles, although imported foods, pet foods, and related items are not allowed. The stamps cannot buy tobacco products, alcohol and spirits, cleaning products, or paper items. However the stamps allow the buyer to purchase steak rather than bologna if they prefer. Mrs. Meadows said that although many may use the stamps unwisely, they at least have a choice in the matter.

The stamp program caused some confusion at the beginning in grocery stores, but most grocers are happy with the food stamps. Sales have noticeably risen in many markets now that the stamp patrons have purchasing power. Store owners are very much in favor of the program since a great deal of money will be coming into the county to improve the economy.

Mrs. Meadows indicated that already the program is a success, but that things will move even better when the building is completed. She pointed out that the power company is working to bring electricity to the building, and that a crew of workers is lowering the ceiling of the former food plant. When the ceiling is installed at a standard height, the attic of the round-roofed building will be insulated.

When the building is completed, there will be several offices and small rooms around the perimeter of the front half. A waiting room will be set aside up front, with a large central area with a bannister separating it from the office and stamp sales area. The concrete floor will be carpeted, restrooms installed, and further improvements will make the building more like a government office than a warehouse.

POWER LINES - - The nearly-renovated Commodity building in Columbiana almost has its electricity hooked up. The Food Stamp program workers have been administering the program as the renovation progresses. They hope to soon have lights, water, and other "luxuries."

NEW TELEPHONE DIRECTORY FOR GREATER SHELBY COUNTY - President Kermit Johnson of the University of Montevallo receives one of the first copies of the 1974 Greater Shelby County telephone directories from John Godwin, South Central Bell local manager. The directory serves telephone customers in Alabaster, Calera, Chelsea, Columbiana, Montevallo and Vincent.

New telephone books ready

A popular new book is about ready for delivery to homes and businesses in Greater Shelby County. It is the latest telephone directory.

According to John Godwin, local manager for South Central Bell, delivery of the directories will begin Tuesday, June 4, and is expected to be completed by June 17. "If you haven't received your directory by this date, please call the South Central Bell business office," Godwin said. Numbers in the directory become effective June 23.

"Approximately 17,540 copies of the new books will be distributed," Godwin said.

Godwin added that the paper shortage is forcing South Central Bell to revise its procedure for distributing directories this year.

The new plan calls for distributing one directory per household, instead of one for every two phones as in the past. The new policy does not apply to business customers.

"It looks like the current paper shortage will be with us for awhile," Godwin said, "and we simply can't get enough paper to print as many directories as we used to."

Godwin added that persons who have a special need for more than one directory may obtain additional copies at the local South Central Bell business office.

University names four to dean's list

Four county students made the dean's list for the spring semester at the University of Alabama. Dean of Admissions Hubert E. Mate announced that a total of 1,425 students made records of between 2.5 and 3 point (all A's).

Shelby County students on the dean's list were Danny M. Weldon, Calera; Susan Florence Lusk, Rt. 1 Helena; Millard Blane McGlawn, Helena; and Karen Elizabeth Stone, an all-A student from Wilsonville, Route 1.

Rainbow reunion set

The 1974 State Reunion of the Rainbow Division Veterans Association promises to be the best attended in at least a decade, according to State President Rex Luna of Huntsville.

Luna bases his prediction on a record number of advance registrations being received by the Reunion Committee for the association's meeting in Huntsville on June 7 and 8.

This volume of registrations results from a state-wide campaign now being conducted to contact former members of the 42nd Infantry Division.

The association asks that persons having information about a former member's name, company, regiment, and present address contact State Secretary Raymond J. Thome at P. O. Box 491, Huntsville, AL 35804.

Seniority does prevail in the U.S. Congress

BUT—

NO RULES IN THE ALABAMA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES STATE THAT SENIORITY DETERMINES COMMITTEE CHAIRMANSHIPS OR ASSIGNMENTS TO MAJOR COMMITTEES. THESE APPOINTMENTS ARE MADE BY THE SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE!

Our present Legislature ranks approximately 48th in the nation. This is what eight years seniority of my INCUMBENT opponent has helped do to the people in House District 51.

Is this what you want AGAIN in your Representative? If not, then let's make a change and put a MAN in Montgomery who will stand up for the PEOPLE, and NOT SPECIAL INTEREST GROUPS.

Vote for Jake Vaughn -

He is not tied to any special interest groups.

He will represent you!

Jake Vaughn extends his sincere thanks to all who cast their vote on his behalf in the May 7th Primary.

Your votes and continued support will be greatly appreciated again on June 4th for the Run-Off.

VOTE FOR

DISTRICT 51
SHELBY COUNTY

DEAR CITIZENS OF HOUSE DISTRICT 51,

Many new faces will make up our next State Legislature, and I'm hoping you will elect me to be among them.

INCUMBENT POLITICIANS do not always tend to be our most effective representatives in government, because after a time, they quite often become controlled by SPECIAL INTEREST GROUPS.

I am asking for your vote because I want to give the PEOPLE better representation. Together, let's clean up our State Legislature. LET'S STOP THESE SPECIAL INTEREST GROUPS FROM DOMINATING OUR STATE GOVERNMENT. I feel that ALL should be HEARD and REPRESENTED.

I will LISTEN to and REPRESENT the people in BOTH JEFFERSON and SHELBY counties, and would sincerely appreciate your vote on June 4th, 1974.

Yours truly,

MY STAND ON SOME ISSUES

- Will work hard to improve the quality of our educational system, including the lowering of the pupil-teacher ratio.
- Will fight to preserve the Cahaba River for this and future generations.
- Will work to give the people most affected — the homeowners — a more DIRECT voice in zoning matters.
- As a pharmacist, I am well qualified and will work for better drug abuse programs.
- ★ Will work to maintain truck weights at a safe level.
- ★★ Will not vote to allow twin-trailers on our highways.
- ★★★ Will support legislation to lower Alabama's "Mini-Code," which presently allows up to at least 26% interest on revolving charge accounts, credit cards, and short loans from loan sharks. Other states are allowing a maximum of 12% and still showing a good profit.

CHECK THE PAST VOTING RECORDS OF THE INCUMBENT (REP. WAGGONER) IN MY HOUSE RACE, AND YOU WILL FIND THAT HE:

- ★ ABSTAINED ON THE TRUCK WEIGHT BILL.
- ★★ VOTED FOR TWIN-TRAILERS ON OUR HIGHWAYS.
- ★★★ VOTED FOR THE "MINI-CODE" (increase in interest rates). CASTING THIS VOTE WAS A DIRECT CONFLICT OF INTEREST, AS HE IS A BANKER. HE SHOULD HAVE ABSTAINED. He also voted for an increase in bank interest rates. This, too, was a direct conflict of interest, and he should have abstained.

Hamilton named administrator

Lowell Hamilton, vice president for general services at the Birmingham Baptist Medical Centers, has been appointed interim administrator of Cullman County Hospital.

Bessemer Tech aim courses at seniors

Bessemer State Technical College will offer high school seniors an opportunity to earn technical college credit this summer, according to Charles L. Payne, president.

Payne said that the special program is popular among high school students who want to begin their college education prior to finishing high school.

The credits earned during the summer quarter will be applied toward earning a technical degree, diploma or certificate when the student returns to Bessemer Tech after graduating from high school.

Payne said that during the summer quarter, high school students can become familiar with college programs and can better determine which course of study they wish to pursue following graduation from high school.

To qualify for the summer program, a high school student must be enrolled as a senior for the coming year and eligible to graduate during that year.

The student also must be recommended by the staff of his high school, Payne said. The technical college credit earned during the summer session cannot be substituted for high school credit.

Registration for the summer session will be held Monday, June 3, at 8 a.m. in the administrative building at Bessemer Tech. The summer session will conclude on August 29.

Training for the high school students will be provided in more than 20 technical and vocational programs, Payne said.

The announcement came today from Jerry White, chairman of the hospital's board of trustees, after administrator Kenneth Hawthorne announced his resignation on May 22.

Hamilton will manage the hospital till a permanent administrator is appointed and will continue his post with the Baptist Medical Centers, which operate under an affiliation agreement with Cullman County Hospital.

A former resident of Montevallo, Hamilton was at one time, Director of Public Relations at Alabama College.

Hamilton has served as general co-chairman and chairman of the Birmingham Festival of Arts and has been active with the Birmingham Area Red Cross Council, the Birmingham Jaycees, the Boy Scouts of America, the Birmingham United Appeal, and the Little League.

- Did Rick McDow suddenly pull out of Thompson's campaign with less than 3 weeks to go ?
- Does Sonny Dorough now say he has been Thompson's manager since the beginning of his campaign? When in reality he only stepped in when McDow stepped out?
- Does Mr. Thompson keep harping on Mr. Stubbs' legislation upgrading the Sheriff's Department? Why was this necessary ? Because our County Commissioners failed.
- Was an error conveniently made in Thompson's ad the week before the Primary? In the apology and explanation was there still so many errors- such as the statement that warrant clerks did their work on county time- when we all know a lot of the work is performed at their home- any time of the night- the salary was also misrepresented.

We have heard Mothers say that their children would not have been good law abiding citizens today if it had not been for guidance from Sheriff Red Walker.

FACT OR FICTION

CAMPAIGNS CAN BE CONFUSING IF YOU DON'T HAVE THE PLAIN AND SIMPLE TRUTH ON THE ISSUES. TAKE A FEW MINUTES TO READ AND EXAMINE THE FACTS.
YOU OWE IT TO YOUR FAMILY AND TO YOURSELF TO BE WELL INFORMED.

FICTION

1. Checks Allegedly Written ?

2. PISTOL PERMITS-- ?

Billy Thompson and Judge Fowler Say that this fee goes into the Sheriff's pocket they know this is a falsehood

3. ALIAS WARRANTS ?

Thompson and Fowler say that alias warrents should be executed by State Police.

FACT

1. My attorneys are now preparing to file suit against those responsible for this low political attack upon me and my family.

These were not my checks and I can easily prove it.

The checks were dated 1-11-74 and I can easily prove that I was in Shelby County all that day. In fact, I have not been out of the State since Jan. 1, 1974.

I stopped payment on these checks myself because I owed no such debt.

The vicious characters behind this smear attack on me any my family will eventually be exposed.

Imagine the embarassment to me and my family when we read the Front Page of the Birmingham News on Easter Sunday when we were getting ready to go to Sunrise Service.

Believe me, when I say those responsible will have to anwer for their lowly deeds.

2. The Pistol Permit Law says that this fee shall be used "for law enforcement use only."

This fund is audited regularly by state examiners. Last year the auditors had only one exception to the pistol permit fund and Sheriff Walker paid back $135.88 spent for flowers sent to funerals of deputies' families.

There is no way the pistol permit fee can go into the Sheriff's pocket.

3. Thompson and Fowler advocate violation of the law in regard to Alias Warrants.

If Billy Thompson and Judge Fowler had their way this could happen to you:

Suppose you were on your way to Panama City and you were given a traffic ticket in South Alabama - then you forgot to mail the fine, or if your money order was lost - an alias warrant would be issued for your arrest.

If Billy Thompson and Judge Fowler had their way and this warrant was executed by State police - they could knock on your door in the middle of the night, make you get into their car and you would wind up in jail in, say, Opp, Alabama, without bail, and away from friends - "Kidnapped" to another county!

This is a dangerous and illegal practice and Billy Thompson and Judge Fowler should know better because our forefathers wrote into the State law that this was an illegal practice.

Governor Wallace appointed McMillan Lane Commissioner of Agriculture because he's the best man for the job.

Following the death of Commissioner Pete Gilmer, Governor George Wallace appointed McMillan Lane to fill the unexpired term. Lane was selected over several other candidates, including his present opponent. His success and experience in agriculture and business have made him an outstanding commissioner.

Now McMillan Lane is running for his first full term. We believe he is the kind of man who takes the responsibility of this important job seriously, and urge our neighbors to elect him.

NOTICE

To the Voters of District 4:

It has been a pleasure serving you and the County for the past 3 years and 4 months. I would like to have the pleasure of serving you another 4 year term at the end of this term.

I will have 37 miles of new paving and approximately 20 miles of new graded road within the next 4 years. If I am elected, I have at this writing placed pipe, chert or stone on 1291 driveways. I had bad reports that other people said that they were responsible for having your drive repaired. They did not have any authority to have any drive fixed unless I approved it. If I am re-elected, I can have every mail route and bus route paved by each mail box in District 4.

One of my opponents that was defeated, (Mr. Wayne Archer), told me the reason he could not support me was because I did approximately $300.00 worth of free work for Mr. Signal Church (It is not in my District) and that approximately $300.00 or more was done for Mt. Zion Church here at Westover. I do not belong to Mt. Zion Church. I belong to Mt. Tabor Methodist Church. I have been a member at Mt. Tabor 22 years.

I promise the people that I am not backed by any lawyers, doctors, judges or any big companies out of Shelby County. I am obligated to the people of District 4 and Shelby County only.

I promise if I am re-elected I will serve the people to the best of my ability as I have done in the past. I am not running against my opponent. I am running for the job to serve the people. I will be a full time Commissioner and I will not be off on another job and can be reached any time.

YOUR VOTE AND INFLUENCE WILL BE APPRECIATED.

Thanks

Attention Shelby County Voters vote for

C. P. (Red) Walker

because:

1. In the past when the Shelby County Coroner was needed, he couldn't be found. Sometimes it took several hours to locate him.
2. On death certificates favors were done for some and not for others. This is being partial and not equal treatment. Fact not fiction.
3. Being Coroner does not in itself qualify an individual for the highly important position of Shelby County Sheriff. It takes a lot more and first of all being on the job when needed is very important.
4. C. P. (Red) Walker has done the best all around job of Sheriff for Shelby County for as long as we can remember. Now, when a man is doing a good job there is no need for a change just for changes sake.
5. The drug problem in Shelby County would be much worse than it is today had it not been for Red Walker and his fine force of men. His efficient "Modus Operandi" has chased the pushers and peddlers out of Shelby County and kept our children and schools relatively free of drugs. For this we should all be more than grateful.
6. Residents of Shelby County better look long and hard before they vote "Red Walker" out of office as Shelby County Sheriff.
7. If the lever is pulled in the other direction we are all in for some very serious trouble in so far as law enforcement is concerned. Experience is invaluable.
8. We all tend to agree with other citizens from the county that when all the power is relegated to one individual the people begin to suffer and are in deep and serious trouble. The checks and balances are not there and the power becomes top heavy and one sided. Then the average tax paying citizen is the one that gets hurt.
9. People of Shelby County: Wake up before it's too late and vote for "Red Walker" for continued outstanding service to the people of Shelby County and the State of Alabama. We need his experience and most certainly his balance of power.

Governor Wallace appointed McMillan Lane Commissioner of Agriculture because he's the best man for the job.

Following the death of Commissioner Pete Gilmer, Governor George Wallace appointed McMillan Lane to fill the unexpired term. Lane was selected over several other candidates, including his present opponent. His success and experience in agriculture and business have made him an outstanding commissioner.

Now McMillan Lane is running for his first full term. We believe he is the kind of man who takes the responsibility of this important job seriously, and urge our neighbors to elect him.

NOTICE

To the Voters of District 4:

It has been a pleasure serving you and the County for the past 3 years and 4 months. I would like to have the pleasure of serving you another 4 year term at the end of this term.

I will have 37 miles of new paving and approximately 20 miles of new graded road within the next 4 years, if I am elected. I have at this writing placed pipe, chert or stone on 1291 driveways. I had bad reports that other people said that they were responsible for having your drive repaired. They did not have any authority to have any drive fixed unless I approved it. If I am re-elected, I can have every mail route and bus route paved by each mail box in District 4.

One of my opponents that was defeated, (Mr. Wayne Archer), told me the reason he could not support me was because I did approximately $300.00 worth of free work for Mr. Signal Church (it is not in my District) and that approximately $300.00 or more was done for Mt. Zion Church here at Westover. I do not belong to Mt. Zion Church. I belong to Mt. Tabor Methodist Church. I have been a member at Mt. Tabor 22 years.

I promise the people that I am not backed by any lawyers, doctors, judges or any big companies out of Shelby County. I am obligated to the people of District 4 and Shelby County only.

I promise if I am re-elected I will serve the people to the best of my ability as I have done in the past. I am not running against my opponent. I am running for the job to serve the people. I will be a full time Commissioner and I will not be off on another job and can be reached any time.

YOUR VOTE AND INFLUENCE WILL BE APPRECIATED.

Attention Shelby County Voters vote for

C. P. (Red) Walker

because:

1. In the past when the Shelby County Coroner was needed, he couldn't be found. Sometimes it took several hours to locate him.
2. On death certificates favors were done for some and not for others. This is being partial and not equal treatment. Fact not fiction.
3. Being Coroner does not in itself qualify an individual for the highly important position of Shelby County Sheriff. It takes a lot more and first of all being on the job when needed is very important.
4. C. P. (Red) Walker has done the best all around job of Sheriff for Shelby County for as long as we can remember. Now, when a man is doing a good job there is no need for a change just for changes sake.
5. The drug problem in Shelby County would be much worse than it is today had it not been for Red Walker and his fine force of men. His efficient "Modus Operandi" has chased the pushers and peddlers out of Shelby County and kept our children and schools relatively free of drugs. For this we should all be more than grateful.
6. Residents of Shelby County better look long and hard before they vote "Red Walker" out of office as Shelby County Sheriff.
7. If the lever is pulled in the other direction we are all in for some very serious trouble in so far as law enforcement is concerned. Experience is invaluable.
8. We all tend to agree with other citizens from the county that when all the power is relegated to one individual the people begin to suffer and are in deep and serious trouble. The checks and balances are not there and the power becomes top heavy and one sided. Then the average tax paying citizen is the one that gets hurt.
9. People of Shelby County: Wake up before it's too late and vote for "Red Walker" for continued outstanding service to the people of Shelby County and the State of Alabama. We need his experience and most certainly his balance of power.

Walker keeps office; Thompson delays conceding

Baxley orders charges dropped

by Marcia M. Sears
Attorney General Bill Baxley's rushed investigation into the "conspiracy to murder or maim" charges that Sheriff C. P. "Red" Walker leveled against his opponent and six others last Tuesday culminated with an extraordinary press conference called on Saturday afternoon in Baxley's Montgomery office.

Baxley announced that the evidence conclusively showed no conspiracy to murder or maim the sheriff.

He told the delegation of reporters from news services, daily newspapers, television stations, WBYE and the Shelby County Reporter that the conclusion was reached, not from any one aspect of the case. "It's the conclusion based on the total case, the only conclusion, the inescapable conclusion that these charges should not be pursued any further."

Completely exonerated of conspiracy charges by the Attorney General were Sheriff's candidate Bill Thompson, Shelby County Probate Judge Conrad Fowler, S. F. "Sonny" Dorough, Thompson's campaign manager, two Birmingham News reporters, Ron Casey and John I. Jones, Charles "Cowboy" Benson and William "Tug" Parker.

Baxley said, "The furthest thing from our minds is to get involved in a local political race. However, this is a matter that was thrown in our laps. It surpassed the mere realm of politics because it involved a very very serious charge. Because of the people involved on both sides and who they are, this was a priority matter for this office."

Baxley said that he put his very best men at work investigating the charges, and they worked "around the clock" after the investigation started Wednesday morning.

He mentioned his executive assistant Ray Acton, his chief special investigator, Assistant Attorney General, Bill McKnight who had conducted the probe of the sheriff's office in Talladega County and Chief and investigator Jack Shouse.

The Attorney General said he was under a sense of duty to make the announcement even though it saddened him to do it, because he always considered himself a personal friend of Sheriff Walker.

Baxley said he "Calls them like he sees them."

He said that both the sheriff and Shelby County District Attorney Harold Walden had requested the investigation.

Baxley pointed out that a charge of assassination against a public official is one of the most serious charges that can be made. He noted that Alabamians are particularly aware of this charge after the attempt made on the life of Governor George Wallace two years ago.

Baxley said that the evidence studied included signed statements made by Jimmy Parker and Alabaster Police officer Stanley Oliver, the tapes submitted by Sheriff Walker, polygraph (lie detector) tests made on the seven accused men and Parker

THOMPSON FACES NEWS MEDIA - Bill Thompson comes out of the Shelby County court room completely cleared, along with six others, of any plot to harm the sheriff. Media representatives from Birmingham radio, television and newspapers were on hand for the historic dismissal of charges Monday.

WALKER COMMENTS - C. P. "Red" Walker tells the media that he thought he had enough evidence to arrest the seven men on conspiracy charges and says his witnesses will talk to a grand jury.

C. P. "Red" Walker apparently won the race for sheriff of Shelby County in one of the heaviest turnouts of voters Shelby County has seen.

The tally announced in the courtroom at the end of the reporting period was 6,592 votes for Walker and 6,337 for his opponent Bill Thompson, giving Walker the edge of 255 votes in the unofficial count.

Sheriff Walker told the Reporter in a telephone interview after the election count was in, "I am very, very happy and proud of the people who worked for me. They did it. The voters showed their confidence in me that I wouldn't be beaten."

Over 1,000 people were reported to be at his residence in Alabaster congratulating him at 9:30 Tuesday night when the Reporter called.

However, Thompson said he would wait for the official count before he would be willing to concede the election. "We won't concede defeat until the official count is in," he told the Reporter.

The election climaxed a week of unsurpassed political activity in which the veteran sheriff charged his opponent and others with conspiracy to murder or maim him, the state attorney general dismissed the charges saying there was no basis for them, and the sheriff's supporters mounted a massive campaign in the closing days before the election, distributing literature to almost every home in Shelby County on Monday.

The courtroom rapidly filled with spectators after the first report came in from Columbiana. About half the spectators were Walker partisans and half were Thompson supporters.

Totals were running in favor of Thompson during most of the evening. But the big boxes from Alabaster and Walker's traditional territory were not announced until late in the evening. When they came in, the turned tide became apparent.

In the race for County Commission, District 2, Doug Ballard of Montevallo defeated L. C. "Curt" Payne of Alabaster, giving Montevallo its first Commissioner in many years.

The unofficial count was 2,447 for Ballard and 2,192 votes for Payne.

The County Commissioner from District 4 will be J. Alpha Lowe of Vincent, who defeated the incumbent, I.D. Stone of Harpersville, by a vote of 853 to 685.

In the race for the state legislature, District 17, Doug Cook led Eddie Hubert Gilmore in the Shelby County section of the district by a vote of 2,066 to 1,281.

District 17 is composed of Alabaster and the Cahaba Valley sections of the county.

For State Senate District 51, also in the same part of the county, Jake Vaughn led his opponent J. T. "Jabo" Waggoner by a vote of 1,679 to 1,426 in the Shelby County tally.

Jere Beasley won the favor of Shelby County's voters by a showing of 7,337 to Charles Woods' 5,676 for the office of lieutenant governor.

Betty Frink handily defeated Martha K. Adams for state auditor in Shelby County by a vote of 8,088 to 3,200.

McMillan Lane defeated A. W. Todd for state Agriculture Commissioner by a vote of 6,066 to 5,268 in Shelby County.

Jim Zeigler took Shelby County approval for the Public Service Commission, by a vote of 6,005 to C. C. "Jack" Owen's 5,014.

For member of the state Democratic Executive Committee from District 51, Jake Vaughn defeated Drew Redden by a vote of 1,913 to 958 in the unofficial Shelby County tally.

ATTORNEY GENERAL DISPOSES OF CASE - Bill Baxley tells an extraordinary news conference at his office in Montgomery Saturday that there is "not one shred of evidence" of a conspiracy to murder or maim Sheriff C. P. Walker of Shelby County. (Photo by Reporter photographer Jerry Hamilton)

On London radio--

Britons hear of county arrests

The British Broadcasting Company was so interested in the events of last week in Shelby County that they telephoned Radio Station WBYE in Calera and requested a report.

Following is the report written and read over the air by Ralph Sears of WBYE on Monday at 10:45 a.m. Central Standard Time. It was evening in England and the report was transmitted live to London where it was aired on BBC's "Newsbeat."

Prepared for BBC

This is an election year in Alabama and one of the hottest races for a local office is taking place in Shelby County where the incumbent Sheriff is fighting for his political life against the present County Coroner.

Campaigning was routine until last Tuesday afternoon, when Sheriff C. P. "Red" Walker suddenly began arresting people and charging them with conspiring to murder or maim him. A total of seven men were arrested including the Sheriff's opponent, Coroner Billy Thompson; the county's Probate Judge, Conrad M. Fowler, who has been described as one of the most respected grass roots officials in the United States; two reporters from a nearby metropolitan newspaper and Thompson's campaign manager.

There was an immediate air of disbelief among the citizens of the county, when Sheriff's deputies brought the seven men to county jail. Disbelief was soon accompanied by astonishment when deputies placed each of the men in cells inside the jail.

Disbelief and astonishment were joined by shock when local reporters hurried to the jail and saw candidate Thompson, Judge Fowler and the newspaper reporters being fingerprinted.

The attention of the entire state was soon focused on this central Alabama county partly because of the seriousness of the charges ... conspiracy to assassinate an elected official. After all it was only a little more than two years ago that a would-be assassin's bullets cut down Alabama's Governor George Wallace as he was

Alabaster council lets park contracts

The Alabaster city council met in its regularly scheduled meeting last Monday night.

Two representatives of the newly formed North Shelby County Welcome Wagon Club addressed the council at the opening of the meeting. The two women expressed a desire of their club to participate in civic improvement projects where needed.

Jake Vaughn, a candidate for the state House of Representatives in District 51, then spoke to the council asking for their support in the election on Tuesday.

Councilman Jim Gould reported to the body that the timbers of the bridge on Ball Park Road were unsafe to sustain heavy loads.

The council moved to place a five ton weight limit on the bridge and place signs to that effect at the crossing. The council also agreed to place signs stating "only trucks for local delivery" on the approaches to the bridge.

Gould also stated that the city street department is in the process of installing pipe to alleviate drainage problems, but wet weather has held up the work.

Councilman Wayne Lucas reported that he received a bid of $9,980 for installing a traffic light at the intersection

GETTING OUT THE VOTE - Mrs. Lida Woods of Columbiana leaves the polling station at the Shelby County Health Department building after casting her ballot in the crucial races of Tuesday's run-off election. Mrs. Woods was one of the thousands who participated in the heavy voter turn-out in Shelby County.

IT'S NOT ALL POLITICS - No, this scene is not Panama City. It's Oak Mountain State Park's new beach. Hundreds flocked to the park to bask in the sunshine and enjoy a refreshing swim Sunday, proving that not everybody was tied up in politics last week in Shelby County. (Photo by Jerry Hamilton)

WALKER CROWD LISTENS INTENTLY - People who came out to hear Sheriff C. P. "Red" Walker were polite, friendly and strongly partisan. An NBC cameraman (center) gets a photo of the crowd as one of several speakers expressed support for the sheriff.

'No crime,' says Baxley and Oliver, as well as interviews conducted in Shelby County and in his office by the investigative team.

Baxley said that the tapes themselves showed there was no crime committed.

A reporter asked, "If the sheriff is such an expert investigative officer, why couldn't he arrive at the same conclusion?"

Baxley indicated he could not answer for the sheriff.

The Shelby County Reporter asked if any local or state official had brought pressure on the attorney general to delay the investigation until after the election.

Baxley answered to the effect that his office is not subject to pressure from anyone.

Had anyone asked that he delay the investigation? Baxley did not answer the question directly, but he smiled.

Everyone passed their lie detector tests, but the attorney general said that the tests taken by the sheriff's witnesses Stanley Oliver and Jimmy Parker did show some deception. He stressed that polygraph tests are not admissible evidence in court.

Could the press hear the tapes? Baxley said they are not available to the press now, but that does not mean they would be unavailable forever.

Baxley credited the Department of Public Safety for helping his office by administering the polygraph tests. Sheriff Walker went to Montgomery Friday afternoon to take a test, but the officers said they had no questions to ask him because he said he knew nothing of the conspiracy beyond what was in the evidence he presented.

Baxley countermanded the order and asked for a test on Walker Saturday. However, the sheriff cancelled an appointment set up Saturday morning, and another set up in the afternoon, he said.

Political 'tornado' hits as predicted

Lots of people in Columbiana were apprehensive about facing May 28.

A famous Washington fortune teller had predicted that another tornado would sweep the area and that Columbiana would be hard hit. It was the subject of conversation around the coffee tables for two weeks.

But the weather on May 28 was mostly sunny, with clouds every now and then - just enough to worry those who like to worry.

Before night fell, however, the town had been hit with a blow of quite another nature - one that may take longer to recover from than a mere tornado. It affected everybody and it hurt them where it hurts most. Their trust and confidence in many people were jolted with charges that touched the very heart of their political institutions.

The shock waves spread far beyond Columbiana, stunning the entire county and causing news comment throughout the nation and even abroad.

Walker rally goes on without lights

by Marcia M. Sears

Calera was without electricity when the rally for Sheriff Red Walker was scheduled to begin last Friday night.

The crowd of about 300 mingled, chatting pleasantly outdoors for 30 minutes past starting time, hoping that the lights would come on by 8 o'clock.

When they didn't, the crowd went on into the Calera high school gymnasium by the last light of day. Rev. Jack Strickland, a former deputy and now a minister of Calera Bible Baptist Church, opened the meeting with prayer. After the prayer he gave a speech endorsing Walker. Noting there was not a big crowd, he said, "Maybe some people are afraid of what's happening." He praised Walker for showing intestinal fortitude.

Representative Tom Stubbs came to the rostrum next and, referring to the high temperature in the gym, exhorted the crowd to "Get hot for Red Walker next Tuesday."

Stubbs said he stands for truth and he knew Red Walker's campaign had been built on truth. He said, "Their campaign (the opposition's) has been based entirely on lies."

He mentioned his World War II service fighting in the "snow and ice" against dictatorship and said he is fighting it now. He vowed he was not going to let the press or other outside forces come in and run Shelby County.

He leveled a blast at Judge Conrad Fowler for not raising the salary of deputies "when he had authority to do so." Stubbs said he introduced legislation in the state legislature to pay Shelby County deputies on the same pay scale as state troopers.

Fonzie Jackson of Harpersville, Shelby County coordinator for the Wallace committee, addressed the crowd next, praising both Stubbs and Walker.

Earl Standifer of Alabaster then took the rostrum. He said he had talked with state treasurer-elect Melba Till Allen that day and she had asked him to tell the crowd she is "sticking with Red."

Charles "Sonny" Penhale, Mayor of Helena praised the sheriff for helping Helena get grants and in upgrading the Helena police department.

Larry Edmondson, a former deputy, told of an incident when the sheriff had helped him in a difficult case that had ended in a shootout. Edmondson said the sheriff was at all times helpful and concerned with the safety of his deputy. The electricity came on while Edmondson was speaking.

Earl Cunningham of Montevallo said that blacks are "100% firmly committed to vote for and support this good man."

Cunningham praised Walker for believing in "justice, equality and human dignity."

Rev. Kidd, a black leader from Vincent said, "Here's a man we can go to and talk to and not wait all day to see."

A Mr. and Mrs. Taylor of Alabaster were next on the program, enthusiastic in their support of Sheriff Walker. Taylor is an auxiliary deputy of the sheriff's department.

Rev. Deviner of Alabaster also gave an enthusiastic endorsement of Walker and reiterated, "All blacks are 100 percent for you." Deviner praised the Shelby County sheriff and his deputies for not using billy clubs as he said sheriffs in some other counties do.

When Walker walked across the gymnasium to the speaker's rostrum, the crowd gave him a standing ovation. Walker said he had thought and prayed about it before he arrested his opponent, but he thought the evidence was such that he had to go forward with the arrests.

He asked Rev. Jack Strickland to read from a paper that allegedly was submitted as evidence to issue the warrants. After Strickland read the page to himself, he addressed the crowd saying, "It is, as far as I'm concerned, it is a conspiracy to commit a crime and I don't see why warrants could not be issued on evidence like this."

Walker refuted charges made against him by The Birmingham News on the use of drugs in the jail by prisoners.

At the conclusion of his talk, which was neither rousing nor emotional, Walker said he would play portions of the tapes he had from the meeting where the alleged conspiracy plans took place.

However, it developed that Chief Deputy James "Buddy" Glasgow had left the rally early to play ball with the Camp Branch league and the tapes were in his car. Someone was dispatched to Camp Branch to pick up the tapes. About half the crowd left before the tapes arrived.

The tapes were difficult to understand, but contained a portion that allegedly had Walker's opponent Bill Thompson saying, "I'll sign over the office after four years, just so long as we get rid of Walker." Walker later had portions of the tapes made into paid political advertisements on radio station WBYE, Calera.

SHERIFF CALLS ON COSBY - Sheriff C. P. "Red" Walker speaks to the rally and asks Deputy Louie Cosby to verify some of the information Walker is presenting. The rally was held in the Calera High School gymnasium. (Reporter photos by Jerry Hamilton)

AWIC upgrades waste treatment

The Alabama Water Improvement Commission will place high priority on the upgrading of substandard waste treatment facilities during fiscal year 1975 beginning July 1, 1974, according to a plan outlined at a recent public meeting.

Ronald E. Holley, chief of AWIC's water quality planning section said substantial progress will be made toward upgrading substandard waste treatment facilities through the framework of discharge permits and municipal grants.

Walker wins

C. P. "Red" Walker was ahead of his opponent for delegate to the 1974 National Democratic Charter Conference, District 5. In Shelby County Walker had unofficial 5,837 votes to 5,070 for Bob Dickinson.

of the new road going past Thompson High School and First Avenue, west. The council decided to attempt to find a lower price for the signal.

Lucas also stated that street lights have been ordered to be installed in the Navajo Pines subdivision.

The Alabaster council then voted to add Tom French to the auxiliary Police Department.

Councilman Jack Zuiderhoek told the council that the contracts for the construction of the new city parks was to be finalized on Tuesday. Zuiderhoek reported that some of the planned park facilities had to be cut back due to increased costs. The park sites consist of fifteen acres behind Thompson High School and four acres on the Simmsville road.

Mayor Harold Davenport made a motion to adopt amendments to the Alabaster Building Code in order to update and comply with the Southern Building Code to which the city subscribes.

Councilman Dan Acker then made the motion as recommended by the Alabaster Zoning Board to rezone the property on highway 119 in Siluria between Eighth and Ninth Avenues from residential to B-1 allowing small businesses. This motion was passed by a 3-2 vote.

In other action the council voted to pay the five per cent interest on the loan of $50,000 borrowed for the park improvement.

Yes, but who paid for the coffee?

by Fred Cooper

I have been following the recent events in Shelby County with great interest and after reading and re-reading everything I could find, talking to any number of people who were familiar with the situation, and sifting through mounds upon mounds of evidence, something is still bothering me.

Who paid for that coffee Red Walker and the two Birmingham News reporters left at the Triple J?

In case anybody out there has forgotten the sequence of events, I'll refresh your memories. Sheriff Walker made an appointment to meet the two reporters at the Triple J. The get-together was to give the sheriff the opportunity to hear charges made about his jail and answer the charges prior to the News' story. Red suggested a room in the back where it was quiet. While they were in the room having coffee, he left the table for a phone call, came back, and arrested the two reporters. They were taken outside, frisked, and carried to jail.

I know all that.

What I don't know is how they got away without paying for the coffee.

Let me add very quickly here that I'm not concerned about this on behalf of the owner of the Triple J. If he's out 45 cents, that's his problem. I have a more personal reason for wanting to know how to skip out on the tab after an interview.

You see, part of my job is to get stories about my organization in the media. Mostly the stuff I bring them is of local interest and has a newsworthy angle to it. Consequently, there's no problem in getting it used.

Every now and then, however, I try to slip something by that is really not too newsworthy. This requires guile. The other day, I had one of these semi-useless items but since I'd taken the trouble to research it and write the story, I thought I'd give it a whirl.

Realizing this was going to be rougher than the average handout, I checked my guile handbook for an idea.

Under "Semi-Useless Items, Slipping In," I found the suggestion of inviting the unsuspecting reporter to have a free cup of coffee.

So I did. I called my unsuspecting reporter and suggested we get together and have a cup on me.

We met at a fairly expensive restaurant but I figured, "How much can coffee be?" This turned out to be a wasted question since we never got around to the coffee.

"I'd really rather have a beer," he told me as he eased his bulk into the chair across from me.

"A beer?" I said, shakily, mentally counting my money.

"A draft", he told me and the waitress, "And since it's on you, I'd like one of those trays of appetizers, too. I haven't had lunch yet.

"Now then," he said, turning to me after placing his order. "What did you want to see me about?"

I didn't tell him right off. I excused myself and left the table. Hiding behind a potted palm, I counted my meager funds. If I didn't get anything, maybe I could squeeze by. When I got back to the table, he was halfway through the appetizers.

"These are good," he said with his mouth full. "Try one."

I selected a pickle and nibbled it tentatively as I outlined my story. The only response I got from him were grunts and snuffling sounds until I finished.

Then there was a long silence while he wiped the plate clean with a carrot.

"Can't use it," he belched. "That's about the most useless story you've ever pushed. Hey," he yelled to the waitress, "any more of these appetizers back there? As long as it's on you," he said, turning to me, "I thought I'd have another plate."

It was right after this episode that Red and the two reporters cut out of the Triple J. I thought about calling them for suggestions but I'm afraid their method is too abrupt for me. Maybe if it ever happens again, I could just start a good fist-fight.

FRED COOPER

Voter views apathy as an indictment

Letter to Editor:

I, as a citizen of Shelby County, Alabama, U.S.A., Earth, listed in ascending order of importance, wish to express my thoughts.

At present there is a good deal of turmoil among my fellow citizens of Earth. There are educated and intelligent men who fear for the survival of mankind past the coming century. There are those equally educated and intelligent who maintain there is great hope for mankind. I personally fear that the pessimist may be right and at the same time give what support I am capable of to the optimist.

Currently the minute portion of the citizens of Earth who are qualified voters residing in Shelby County, Alabama are faced with a situation that is the direct result of their action or inaction. Certain traits that are part of the fiber of man have exposed themselves in one who holds a position of importance in my county. That he has been allowed to hold this position I consider points for the pessimist. That this exposure was brought about, in part, by other men is points for the optimist.

I consider the fact that this man is Sheriff of Shelby County and the deeds he has committed while holding this elected position as an indictment against every qualified voter of Shelby County, myself included, on a charge of indifference. Unfortunately there is no law against apathy. None the less, my plea is guilty. I will not beg for mercy, only the strength not to be guilty again.

The pleas of my fellow citizens will be entered on June 4th, 1974. Will the verdict be a victory for the pessimist or the optimist?

Respectfully,
Timothy A. Rooks.

Streaking comes in and wondering goes

by Milton Bird

Sometimes I figure wondering is a second cousin to worrying. Or it can be, if a guy'll let it. Put your paddles down and let life drift you along the first thing you know you're wondering so much it gets pretty close kin to worrying. Not kissing close, maybe, but close.

I used to be a tolerable good wonderer. Until the big wonder came along and put all the little wonders in the shade. And then that big one got settled and all the little ones just folded their tents and that was the end of it.

But we're getting the buggy ahead of the horse. And that ain't the way The Lady likes it. So I suppose we'll have to back up and get a new start.

I used to wonder when you said something why you couldn't get it back. Then I learned to just forget it. If you say something good you'll feel good and if you say something bad you'll feel bad. It's as simple as that.

I wondered if we were fast enough, and could fly, if we could catch bluebirds. But, on the other hand, I'm glad we can't. Because, man being what he is, there wouldn't be a dozen in all the world in ten years.

A lot o' guys wear those cover-all mustaches with a little hole in the middle where their mouth ought to be. And I wondered why they wanted to look like that. Until I went in the store one day and saw that tooth paste had gone up 20 percent.

And great as he was, I wondered why so many folks wanted to look like Abraham Lincoln. Since, if Abe had a fault, it must have been that he was about the ugliest guy around.

And for the life of me, ever so often, I find myself wondering if the boy or girl is driving the car ahead.

A couple got married on the river, standing hand in hand in a boat. And I looked at the picture 20 minutes wondering which was which. Until I noticed he had one hand in his pocket. I don't think I ever saw a girl with her hand in her breeches pocket.

But now I've stopped wondering. About everything. Folks are gonna be folks, the same as cats are gonna be cats, and sparrows, sparrows. And my big wonder all along was whether the long-haired kid on the campus was a mister or a miss, who told me the way to the football field when I was as lost as all get out.

You see, when this streaking thing gets going full blast who's gonna have to wonder anyhow. Even old Skillet, with his store-bought eyes, and old enough to be any one of 'ems grandpa, won't have to wonder.

Woods picked to win prior to election

by Don Wasson

The runoff primary is still to be held as this is written, already over as this is read. If things went as expected here in the capital city, Charles Woods of Dothan is the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor.

There was high optimism in the camp of the incumbent -- Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley, toward the end of the runoff campaign, quite a contrast to the glum that prevailed a week after the first primary. The Beasley people were confident that they had "turned it around" and that Beasley would win a second term nomination.

If that did happen, and Beasley is the nominee today, then it was because of an odd amalgamation of forces quite unlike anything ever put together in Alabama before. It included labor and the Farm Bureau, industry, the teachers, the blacks, the old folks, bankers, truckers, utility firms and other diverse groups.

It was inspired by the second echelon Wallace people -- brother Gerald and his cohorts -- that group of people who live on the fringes of government and included those who have some specialized interest to serve.

They banded together in the almost paranoic fear that Woods would win and the certain knowledge that woods couldn't be bought.

That isn't to say that Beasley could be bought, but it is to say that these governmental gadflies feel he can be swayed. Should he be the winner, there are many people in state government who shudder at the cost -- the "deals" that must have been made in his name.

Legislative hangers on are positive in their belief that Beasley, if nominated and elected, would be in hot water from the moment he takes office because he couldn't possibly keep all his commitments and not cross somebody.

If Woods won, and our guess is that he did, then it means that those fringe beetles don't necessarily speak for all the people they claim to speak for. Beasley was what THEY wanted, not necessarily what their people wanted.

The prediction on Woods is based on the feeling that this is exactly the case. Woods got a big "little people" vote on May 7 and it is difficult to see the operators turning a lot of people around.

If Woods won, then he too will be in hot water from the moment he takes office. Already some 21 senators are pledged to organize the body themselves, taking from the lieutenant governor the long held right to name committees and their chairman.

They could do it, because the Senate rules are whatever the Senate says they are.

And a majority of the senator-nominees are leery of Woods, afraid of his ruthlessness and autocratic ways.

Should Beasley win, there is a danger that he will look on that odd coalition of forces as another mandate to keep on doing what he's been doing. That could be a fatal mistake.

But surely Beasley must know that the coalition is not so much a pro-Beasley gathering of similar-minded people as it is a stop-Woods alliance.

Once in, Beasley would simply have to have an outstanding legislative year, a year of solid accomplishment, if he is to go on to greater glories in the 1978 gubernatorial sweepstakes.

SLA caused by prison system

WASHINGTON -- Sources close to the Symbionese Liberation Army dispute the FBI's cautious claim that the SLA has been broken up. These sources say that Donald DeFreeze, who died in the recent Los Angeles shoot-out, was only the figurehead leader. The real brains behind the SLA, they say, are white radicals with Maoist leanings.

They are now building up DeFreeze, who called himself Field Marshal Cinque, as a martyr. And they have turned the Los Angeles shoot-out, our sources say, into a heroic episode made to order for revolutionary propaganda.

They not only are recruiting new members, according to our sources, but they can be expected to pull another spectacular event to dramatize their cause.

Our sources have no idea where Patty Hearst, the kidnapped newspaper heiress, is holed up. They suggest she may have been taken to a hideout across the border. Her publicity value is too great, our sources believe, for the SLA to risk losing her.

Meanwhile, federal and local authorities have spent an estimated eight to ten million dollars chasing the SLA. If this money had been spent on prison reform, there may have been no SLA. For the SLA is an outgrowth of the California prison system.

Oil Diplomacy: The United States is negotiating a long-term military and economic agreement with Saudi Arabia. President Nixon is planning a personal visit to the oil kingdom to complete the deal. He hopes to make a dramatic announcement that he has arranged for enough Saudi oil to prevent another oil shortage in the United States.

In return, the United States will help Saudi Arabia develop new industries as an economic base in case the oil wells should ever run dry. The United States will also provide the Saudis with sophisticated weapons and military training.

The Saudis, for their part, have been the most responsible of the Middle East oil producers. They are keenly concerned about the impact of exorbitant oil prices on the world's industrial nations. They are now preparing to urge that oil prices be lowered when they meet with the other oil producers in Quito, Ecuador, on June 15th.

Hanoi Tightens Grip: Intelligence reports warn that North Vietnam is consolidating its hold on the vast areas in the South. A road network now links the Communist strongholds with North Vietnam. The Communists have also rebuilt the port of Dong Ha, a former U.S. Marine base, which is now open to Communist freighters.

By land and sea, Hanoi has been pouring supplies into the South. Intelligence reports claim that Communist armies are now deployed for a military showdown with the South Vietnam forces. The people in the Communist-controlled areas are also being instructed to develop their own food and medicine supplies so they will be independent of the South Vietnam economy during the final military struggle.

There is little doubt that the Vietnamese War will be resumed on a massive scale during the months to come. But the intelligence reports indicate that Hanoi is giving first priority to rebuilding the North. A large scale offensive, therefore, is not considered likely this year.

Instead, the Communists are expected to limit their operations for the next few months to political agitation and guerrilla attacks.

Watergate Takes Back Seat: Sentiment is building up in the backrooms of Congress to impeach President Nixon. We have spoken privately to a number of congressional leaders who say that the Watergate crimes are now secondary. The President should be impeached, they tell us, for attempting to subvert the system.

They are alarmed over his attitude that he alone has the right to decide what evidence he will give to the courts and Congress. The effect of this doctrine, if it should be allowed to stand, would be to let future presidents decide whether the courts should have jurisdiction over crimes committed in the White House and whether Congress will be permitted to impeach the President.

Congressional leaders point out that the President can determine the outcome of the Watergate trials and his own impeachment investigation by controlling the evidence he will permit the courts and the Congress to see. If he can protect his aides by withholding evidence, the courts will lose their authority over crimes committed in the White House. And if the President can determine what impeachment evidence Congress should see, he could prevent impeachment by refusing to release any incriminating evidence.

The leaders who spoke to us say that Congress must meet this constitutional challenge and impeach the President. Failure to do so, they told us, would make a monarch of Richard Nixon. And future presidents would be able to exercise sovereign powers.

Betwixt and Between: What kind of President will Gerald Ford make? This is a question that is often asked, as the impeachment of President Nixon becomes more likely.

Our investigation of the Vice President has convinced us he is an honest man. He won't accept cash campaign contributions. He has always insisted upon checks, so they can be properly recorded.

Unlike President Nixon, Ford also operates in the open. He has always been a man of his word.

But this has now caught him in a political squeeze. Sources close to the Vice President tell us he gave President Nixon a pledge of loyalty before accepting the job.

But he also promised party leaders that he would campaign for Republican candidates this year. They pointed out that President Nixon has become a millstone around the neck of the Republican party. So they begged Ford to become the rallying point for Republicans.

This explains why Ford defends the President one day and criticizes him the next. Our White House sources say the President has brought polite pressure on Ford to cut out the criticism.

The President has agreed that Ford, for the sake of his own credibility, shouldn't always toe the White House line. But the President has suggested that Ford tone down the criticism and give fewer public speeches.

But if Nixon should be removed from office, what kind of President would Ford make? He would bring many of the qualities Harry Truman brought to the office. For Gerald Ford is a common man, but a decent one.

Ceremony suggested to future newlyweds

By Herbert J. Miles, Ph.D.

A SUGGESTED MARRIAGE CEREMONY

Q. Dr. Miles, Carl and I plan a late June wedding. Since we are so inexperienced in the nature of wedding ceremonies, would you publish a suggested wedding ceremony in your column? It would be helpful to many other couples who are planning June and summer weddings. Elaine.

A. Your idea is well taken. The following ceremony is a condensed version of one sometimes used by a well known East Tennessee Clergyman: (Our personal thanks to him!)

Friends, we are gathered here in the sight of God and in the presence of this company to join together this man and this woman in Holy Matrimony. Commended by St. Paul to be honorable among all men, it is not to be entered into lightly or unadvisedly, but reverently and discreetly, and in the fear of God. Into this Holy Estate these two now come to be joined. Originated in Divine Wisdom and Goodness, designed to promote human happiness and holiness, the Rite of Marriage is the very foundation of home life and social order, and must so remain until the end of time. Sanctioned and honored by the presence and power of Jesus at the marriage in Cana of Galilee, it marked the beginning of his mighty works. Throughout the Bible marriage is pictured as being approved by God. And when the Holy Spirit, wishing to equip the Church with a fit metaphor, chose marriage as that metaphor, the Holy Rite received its highest tribute. So it is ordained that a man shall leave his father and his mother and cleave only to his wife, and they shall be one flesh, united in one hope, in one aim, and in one sentiment, until death do them part.

Who now gives this woman to be married to this man? (Father -- "I do.")

If you, then, John and Mary, have freely and deliberately chosen one another as partner in this Holy Estate, and if you know of no just cause why you should not be thus united, you will please join your right hands.

John, will you take this woman to be your wedded wife, to live together after God's Ordinance in the Holy Estate of Matrimony? Will you love her, honor and keep her, both in sickness and in health, in poverty and in wealth, keeping yourself only unto her so long as you both shall live? (Groom -- "I do.")

And Mary, will you take this man to be your wedded husband, to live together after God's Ordinance in the Holy Estate of Matrimony? Will you love him, honor and keep him, in sickness and in health, in poverty and in wealth, keeping yourself only unto him so long as you both shall live? (Bride -- "I do.")

Then you, John, shall repeat after me: "I, John, take you, Mary, to be my wedded wife: to have and to hold from this day forward, for better or worse, for richer or poorer, in sickness and in health, in poverty or in wealth, to love and to cherish 'till death do us part, according to God's Holy Ordinance; and thereto I pledge you my vows."

And you, Mary, shall also repeat after me: "I, Mary, take you, John, to be my wedded husband: to have and to hold from this day forward, for better or worse, for richer or poorer, in sickness and in health, in poverty or in wealth, to love and to cherish 'till death do us part, according to God's Holy Ordinance; and thereto I pledge you my vows."

From time immemorial the ring has been used to seal important covenants. When the race was young and parliaments yet unknown, the Seal of State was worn fixed upon a ring belonging to the reigning monarch, and its stamp on a document was the sole seal of imperial authority. From such impressive precedent the ring, the golden circle and the most prized of tokens, has come to its loftiest prestige in the symbolic office its use contributes to the marriage altar.

You, John, will repeat after me as you place this ring on your bride's hand: "With this ring I thee wed, and with all my worldly goods I thee endow, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit. Amen."

And as you, Mary, place this ring on his hand you shall repeat after me: "With this ring I thee wed, and with all my worldly goods I thee endow, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit. Amen."

Let us pray. (Clergyman's prayer.) What God has joined together, let not man put asunder. Forasmuch then, as John and Mary have united themselves in Holy Wedlock, and have testified to the same before God and those assembled here, and sealing their vows with a ring, by the authority invested in me as a Minister of the Gospel in the State of Tennessee, I do declare them to be Man and Wife, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit. Amen.

TV CAMERAS AND LIGHTS ILLUMINATE THE CROWD - Network and local TV stations covered the two major political rallies Friday night. Lights were on the candidates most of the time, but a sweep of the crowd at the Thompson rally revealed one youthful enthusiast holding a homemade placard proclaiming "Help Thompson get the Red Out".

THE CROWD WARMS UP AS THE SUN GOES DOWN - The Brasher Brothers from Shelby and Sonny Dorrough are shown "warming up" the crowd for the Thompson political rally Friday night. Using the west wall of the courthouse as a backdrop and a flatbed trailer as a stage, Thompson supporters heard more than two dozen persons urge their fellow citizens to vote for their candidate for the office of sheriff.

Two thousand attend rally

By Ralph W. Sears

Promising that "Newsmen could come to the county without fear of being arrested" Shelby County Coroner Billy Thompson, candidate for sheriff highlighted his campaign Friday night, before some 2,000 cheering citizens.

Thompson's rally was held in the county's parking lot only a few feet from the county jail.

During the course of the evening rally jail inmates came to the third floor windows to listen to the bluegrass music played by a local four piece group "Randy Glen and the Back Way Home".

Several of the jail's inmates held coffee cups of "jail house coffee" and kept time to the music by tapping the heavy mugs on the bars of the cells.

Thompson, who was called back to the podium several times said, "If it takes going to jail to get 'The Red Out', I'm glad it happened."

Thompson referred to being jailed, along with six others Tuesday night, on conspiring to murder or maim the sheriff.

The phrase "Get the Red Out" appeared on several home-made posters that were raised during the course of the hour-and-a-half long rally.

More than a score of citizens voluntarily came to the microphone to give a testimonial in favor of their candidate, or simply to urge their fellow citizens to get out and vote for Thompson.

A former deputy sheriff, Tom Fore said "I've always worked for Red Walker, and he is one of the best hearted men I know, but I don't like his way of being sheriff... let's clean up the county and vote for Billy Thompson".

In one of his last appearances before the microphone Friday night, Thompson, dressed in a white suit and wearing a white boutonniere, introduced his parents, his wife and the wife of his campaign manager, Mrs. Sonny Dorrough.

One of the biggest rounds of applause came when Thompson introduced "my jail buddy" Judge Conrad M. Fowler.

Fowler called the crowd's attention to Thompson's military experience, and honors including a silver star and five battle stars. He also mentioned he had three and a half years duty and a military policeman.

The rally was over shortly after nine p.m. when the band played its last number.

Crowds, however, remained on the parking lot, under a partly cloudy sky for more than an hour, shaking candidate Thompson's hand, talking among themselves and wishing Mrs. Thompson success.

Conspiracy hearing

for his authority to sit as judge over the proceedings.

Ray Acton then asked the judge to dismiss the charges. He supported his request by stating that investigators from the state attorney general's office had investigated for "several hundred man hours"; that the investigation was "as thorough as we know how to be"; that they looked at all the documents and statements taken by Sheriff C. P. "Red" Walker and heard tape recordings made by "agents" (Acton specified quote marks around the word agents) of Sheriff Walker and studied the polygraph tests that were taken voluntarily by all seven accused men.

Acton said that ninety nine and nine - tenths of the talk about killing Sheriff Walker was from Walker's witnesses, not from the seven accused men.

One of his concluding remarks was, "There simply has been no conspiracy."

Then District Attorney Harold Walden addressed the judge saying, "I do not feel there are any grounds for a charge of conspiracy. I strongly urge the court at this time to dismiss the charges."

Judge Ingram made the statement, "This case is very unique indeed." Then in one move that showed both his respect for the law and the strong decisiveness that Shelby County courtroom observers have seen him demonstrate on many occasions, Judge Ingram brought down his gavel, "Charges dismissed, Court adjourned."

campaigning for the presidency of the United States. The entire nation still remembers this.

Alabamians also focused their attention on the Shelby County situation because of the persons involved... a veteran sheriff who has served for 16 years, arresting his opponent and a highly respected judge and two newspaper reporters.

The state's largest newspaper called it "the most bizarre act ever committed by an elected official in the history of Alabama."

The state's Attorney General, at the request of both the local district attorney, Sheriff Walker and those arrested, began an immediate investigation into the charges. Half a dozen top investigators worked 'round the clock.

Citizens throughout the state and indeed throughout the south and the nation waited for Attorney General Bill Baxley to complete his investigation and make his report.

After postponing several news conferences the Attorney General called an extraordinary Saturday afternoon session and told assembled representatives of newspapers, radio and television stations: (Attorney General Bill Baxley's taped remarks were then played - including his statement that there was not "one shred of evidence" to support the charges.)

It is now Monday night. There is only one more chapter left in this amazing story.

Tomorrow is election day. The polls open at 8:00 o'clock in the morning and the average American... this time the citizens of Shelby County will go to their respective voting places and have their say as to who their next sheriff will be. This is Ralph Sears, WBYE Radio, Calera, Alabama.

Mrs. Bates--

Shelby teacher retires

Mrs. Maurine Bates retired at the close of the school year after a teaching career that began in Shelby County in 1936.

Her first school was a little school at Prospect No. 2, between Shelby and Calera. It was a one teacher school and it closed that year. Mrs. Bates remembers that she taught 24 children in grades one through seven.

She then went to Shelby to teach and remained there for the rest of her career except for two years at Chelsea.

Mrs. Bates remembers that the school term lasted only six months when she began to teach. She says, "Education has come a long way since I've been teaching."

She notes especially the gradual pay raises and the great improvement in facilities over the years.

Most of her teaching was at the second grade level, but for the past few years she has taught first grade.

Her plans now are to garden and sew. She has become interested in ceramics, and she adds that she hopes to have the time to travel.

On the last week of school the first grade mothers honored her with a party at the school. She was presented with an orchid and a silver cake stand. All the first graders joined in the party.

Area band meets at Ensley rec center

The Birmingham Civic Band meets each Thursday night at the Ensley Recreation Center, Avenue K and 28th Streets. The band, under the direction of Walker College Band Director Robert W. Moore, is open to all senior high and college bandmen; as well as adults who have completed school, but wish to continue with their instruments.

The repertoire is composed of everything from jazz-rock-pop to traditional concert band literature, and should afford most any instrumentalist an enjoyable evening of rehearsing. In addition to providing a summer program for high school and college musicians, it is hoped that a lot of former bandmen will pick up their horns and become re-activated musically. The group looks forward to performing a few concerts in the parks around Birmingham during the summer season.

All persons interested may come directly to the Ensley Center on Thursday nights, or may call 425-3065 for additional information.

Writing will is problem for expert in law

"my jewelry and other personal things" to her two sisters.

But a brother promptly laid claim to her stocks, bonds, and cash, which he said were not "personal things." However, there was evidence that the woman had often spoken of the securities and the money as her "things." Accordingly, the court decided they were all included in the bequest to the sisters.

Even the plainest of words can turn out to be ambiguous when put under close scrutiny by rival claimants to an estate. Major court battles have been waged over the meaning of "house," "farm," and "barn," not to mention "if," "and," "or," "to," and even "et cetera."

True, homemade wills sometimes do work out satisfactorily. But generally speaking, disposing of an estate is no job for an amateur. The person who writes his own will won't be available when it goes into effect, to explain what he meant. Too often, that becomes the business of the courts.

Trellis of plants helps save energy

If your home has a large picture window that lets the sun shine in, you may have an unnecessary energy problem.

If the sun shines through that window you have what amounts to a "greenhouse" inside, with temperatures far higher than they need be. That means your air conditioner will be working overtime, using energy you would really rather not spare.

The American Association of Nurserymen suggests a novel remedy — a green, growing awning of leafy vines to screen out the sun's rays. The way they describe it, it sounds like a fairly simple project.

Put up a trellis, they instruct, coming out horizontally from the roof overhang above the window. Train your deciduous twining vines on that trellis, and after a couple of growing seasons you will have an attractive and highly practical addition to your home.

The nurserymen suggest you select a deciduous vine for this purpose because its leaves will fall off when winter comes to let the sun stream in through the window to save on heating energy. It's an awning that nature herself adjusts to meet your heating and cooling needs.

How were tapes made?

How were the tapes made that Sheriff C. P. Red Walker presented to the attorney general as evidence of a conspiracy to murder him?

Apparently, a microphone was strapped to the leg of Jimmy Parker. As he walked about in the front yard and in the house of Bill Thompson, his conversations were recorded on a tape recorder operated by Alabaster police officer Stanley Oliver in an automobile parked outside the Thompson home.

What was a man with a criminal record like Parker's doing in the company of such men as sheriff's candidate Bill Thompson, Probate Judge Conrad Fowler and two Birmingham News reporters?

The reporters were trying to write a story on the alleged availability of drugs in the county jail and other irregularities in the sheriff's department. To get such a story, they needed to talk with men who had been in jail. Who else could give the insight needed for a complete account of what goes on in jail than a former inmate?

Who supplied Jimmy Parker with the sophisticated recording equipment? Such equipment is expensive to obtain and takes training and skill to operate. What was his motive in taking part in the clandestine recording experiment?

At what point did he decide to give Sheriff C. P. Walker the tapes he obtained?

The answers seem obvious to many, but further testimony will be needed to clarify the situation.

MILEPOST SIGNS - Small mileposts signs, such as this one, are now being used by law enforcement officials to designate the location or direct emergency aid to an accident, and also by Highway Department personnel for locating a work area on Alabama Highways, Highway Director Ray D. Bass said today.

Mrs. Spruell retires

Mrs. Jayne Davis Spruell is retiring as a teacher at Vincent Elementary School after almost four decades of teaching. After 27 years at Vincent Mrs. Spruell plans to retire early and enjoy traveling.

She began teaching at Davis Chapel at the age of 19, where she taught sixteen pupils from ages six to eighteen. In 1935 she married Harry H. Spruell and moved to Birmingham.

The Spruells moved to Vincent in 1946, where Mrs. Spruell taught second grade. During her first nineteen years she worked under principal D.B. Smith. Since his retirement Mrs. Spruell has worked with principal Calvin Smith, son of the former principal.

Mrs. Spruell attended Jacksonville State University and the University of Montevallo. She has two sons, Stephen and Samuel, who have families of their own.

Now that she has retired, the former teacher plans to travel, beginning with a summertime trip to Nova Scotia. She is a seasoned traveler, having visited a dozen countries, including Mexico, Canada, and European countries. Mrs. Spruell adds that she has seen all of the United States as well.

MRS. JAYNE SPRUELL

At state contest--

Chicken cook wins prize

A professor at Jacksonville State University, Mrs. Elizabeth Lindsey from Jacksonville, won the Alabama Chicken Cooking Contest with her "Chicken Fun Fare" recipe.

Five district winners competed in the state finals. The Alabama Poultry and Egg Association sponsored the contest held at the Alabama Gas Corporation building in Birmingham.

First prize in the contest is an expense-paid trip for two to Winston-Salem, N.C., to compete in the National Chicken Cooking Contest on July 24-25. Mrs. Lindsey will compete with the other 40 state winners for over $25,000 in prize money. Wesley Ellis, Mobile, won a deluxe gas range for second place in the state contest.

This was Mrs. Lindsey's third time to reach the state finals. She was a finalist in 1965 and 1973.

Mrs. Lindsey won the contest with a recipe combining chicken with parmesan cheese, cornmeal, chili powder, and stuffed olives.

She has been teaching in the English Department at Jacksonville State for 16 years. Her husband, Ralph, is a professor in the Biology Department at the same university.

The other State finalists were: Mrs. Margaret Basenberg, Cullman; Mrs. Carroll Karch, Birmingham; and Mrs. Angela Dow, Auburn.

Winning recipe in 1974 Alabama Chicken Cooking Contest:

Chicken Fun Fare

- 1-2 1/2 lb. broiler fryer chicken, cut-up
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 3/4 cup flour, self-rising
- 1/2 cup yellow cornmeal, self-rising
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon Ac'cent
- 1 teaspoon chili powder
- 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1/2 cup Mazola Oil
- Stuffed olives and parsley for garnish
1. Preheat oven to 375 degrees F.
2. Rinse chicken in cold water, pat dry with paper towels.
3. Dip chicken pieces in buttermilk, then in mixture of flour, cornmeal, salt, Ac'cent, chili powder, and 1/4 cup Parmesan cheese.
4. Place Mazola Oil in a 13x8x2 inch baking dish. Add chicken, placing skin side down.
5. Bake 25 minutes. Turn chicken and bake 25 to 30 minutes longer, until brown and tender. Sprinkle remaining 1/4 cup of parmesan cheese over top.
6. Garnish with stuffed olives and parsley. Makes 4 servings.

New mileposts appear along state roads

The small green and white signs which have been appearing along Alabama roadsides are mileposts, Highway Director Ray D. Bass said today.

Bass said the signs are used by the Highway Department to locate work areas and by law enforcement officials to direct emergency help to the scene of an accident, or for use in accident reports.

The signs, Bass said begin at the west and south boundaries of the State and measure the mileage of the roadways as they extend eastward and northward.

Columbiana to open recreation center

The Columbiana Recreation Center will open Monday afternoon June 10 at 2:00 p.m. under the direction of Coach Ralph Bell and Nan Hill. A lot of work has been done on the building to make it more enjoyable for this summer. Some of the features of the recreation program this summer are the men's and women's softball leagues, the Teen Club, and a morning program for children ages three to five. The recreation center hours are 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday afternoons; and 7 p.m. until 10 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday nights. Friday nights are reserved for the Teen Club which sponsors dances, weiner roasts, swimming parties and various other entertainment for teenagers.

Registration for the morning program will begin next week during the afternoon recreation hours so children ages three to five may sign up. The recreation center is also planning to sponsor a tennis tournament for the local tennis near the end of the summer.

Future historians—take note

Historians of Shelby County, please note:

Because of the widespread interest in the events in Shelby County during the past week, there was extensive coverage in The Birmingham News and other daily newspapers in Alabama. The Shelby County Reporter has attempted in this week's edition to tell the story as thoroughly as possible, but for a complete understanding other news sources should be consulted. The Reporter, in the pressure of getting out last week's edition, erred in reporting that all seven of those charged with conspiracy were released on bond. Only six were released. Charles "Cowboy" Benson was held on a charge from another county.

Hospitals make endorsement

America's 975 Protestant and Catholic hospitals today endorsed the concept of national health insurance but warned that the quality of hospital care will be severely limited unless certain amendments are made to legislation currently before Congress.

"Religious hospitals are morally repulsed by the fact that many Americans are not receiving adequate health care," according to a statement made before the House Ways and Means Committee by L. R. Jordan, president of the Birmingham Baptist Medical Centers. Jordan is chairman of the National Protestant-Catholic Hospital Action Committee.

Jordan said that the financial resources of community hospitals have been stretched to the limit in an effort to provide hospital care for everyone, but that no one segment of society can care for all who cannot pay - thus, government assistance is needed.

But the hospital group, representing half of the nation's voluntary acute care hospital beds, warned that the House bill introduced by chairman Wilbur Mills must include provisions for helping hospitals survive the current economic crunch.

"In order to continue expanding the quality and range of health care services we provide to the community, not-for-profit hospitals must be allowed to receive some revenues in excess of costs, otherwise health care will become static," Jordan said.

The Mills bill would prevent these hospitals from receiving extra revenues, thus forcing them into a hand-to-mouth existence, Jordan said.

The hospital committee also urged the House to include an amendment protecting the right of hospital management to reduce cost as they see fit, and an amendment which would preserve the hospitals' tradition of receiving voluntary donations. In its present form, the Mills bill would not allow hospitals to exercise these rights, according to Jordan.

Lack of pennies causes problems in county stores

by Willard Harrison

A penny for your thoughts? Nowadays those pennies are hard to find. It appears that a penny shortage is upon us, and Shelby County stores can vouch for the fact that the coins are in short supply.

Food World in Pelham is being hit hard by the lack of pennies. Store manager Bob Scott told the Reporter that they can only get about $35 or $40 in pennies each week, although they could easily use that many in a day. "We can't get all we want, and we run short every day. Sometimes we ask a customer to take several pieces of penny candy when we can't give them pennies," Scott added that most of their customers understand the situation, but a few are reacting unfavorably.

Larry Smitherman of Montevallo stated that the shortage has not really affected Smitherman's Pharmacy in Montevallo, but that their drug store in Calera does receive only a limited number of pennies. He agrees that the larger stores will probably be the ones most affected by a shortage.

Other store owners around the county are noticing a drop in the number of pennies available. Several stores and supermarkets in Alabaster admit that they are feeling the effects, but that they are getting by.

The county banks are plagued by the very real shortage. Buddy Wyatt at the branch bank in Wilsonville told the Reporter that they are unable to get enough pennies since the Federal Reserve has cut back on the orders.

Ross Bob Mullins, president of First National Bank of Columbiana, says that the federal government is very concerned with getting billions of pennies back into circulation. He adds that although sixty-two billion of them were minted in the last fifty years, less than half of them are in circulation.

Mullins says that, according to government figures, if only one billion of those pennies were returned to circulation, it would save the taxpayers ten million dollars. At present the Treasury mints $35 million in pennies every day, twice the number minted last year. Yet with all these pennies made every day there is still a shortage.

The government has long studied ways of reducing the cost of minting pennies. One choice is to eliminate pennies altogether. Another is to replace them with coins worth two, two-and-a-half, or three cents. The government had also announced plans to convert to aluminum pennies, but they found that they could not save anything by doing so. Since the cost of copper has dropped, it looks as though copper pennies will continue to be minted.

There has been speculation that people are hoarding copper pennies thinking that they will be worth more money later. It appears that there is little chance of that. With so many billions minted, there is no chance that they will be sought as collectors' items. And barring a sudden and unexpected rise in the price in copper, the metal in the coins will not have any significant value.

Mullins adds that if people are hoarding coins for the copper, they may be disappointed. A federal law has been passed which makes it illegal to melt down pennies. Mullins says he thinks the penalty is a ten thousand dollar fine and a prison term.

Why are people keeping the pennies? Mullins says they are probably planning to cash them in at a bank, and are meanwhile keeping them in piggy banks, pickle jars, or cigar boxes. He adds that almost every child probably has a bank full of small change, and that many people just stash pennies away to keep from having to bother with them.

There are projects in the works to return the more than thirty billion pennies back to circulation. A bank in one part of the nation paid $1.10 for every dollar in pennies when the penny crisis hit them.

Mullins says that the federal government plans to award a certificate to every person or group bringing twenty-five dollars worth of pennies to a bank. The bank writes down the person's name and address, and the Treasury sends them a certificate.

Mullins and almost every person interviewed on the subject encouraged everyone to bring in their old pennies and to put them back into the economy. As Mullins concluded, it will save tax money, help curb inflation, and it will be a big favor to business.

Helena town council holds zoning hearing

Helena's town council met Monday night to hold a public hearing on rezoning. The town planning commission approved the rezoning on a piece of land from a single-family dwelling area to one for multi-family dwellings.

The owner of the land requested a change from the R-1 classification to an R-3. The land is located in the northeast corner of township 28 near Booth's Service Station. There were no objections to the change of classification at the hearing.

In other town council business, the town took bids on its old tractor. The high bidder was Harold Lovelady, who offered $427.50 for the machine. There were several bidders in the auction.

Town clerk Frances Parrish told the Reporter that the construction will begin in about 14 days on Helena's new municipal well. In order to begin on the sewerage system, the town first has to have an adequate water supply. While the well is not part of sewer project, Mrs. Parrish indicated that it is a step toward beginning it.

The town is still seeking bids from contractors for the building of tennis courts for the park. But like Columbiana and Calera, Helena is unable to find a contractor who will take on such a small job. With the changing scene in construction, builders are said to be afraid to offer bids since they might lose money if prices rise significantly.

Clarence Harrell now 2-1

Clarence Harrell, former Montevallo High School pitcher - turned pro, opened up with a victory in his first home game pitching for the Birmingham A's. Last Thursday night he defeated Knoxville 3-2.

Harrell was transferred to the Birmingham club three weeks ago from a Burlington, Iowa team in the class A Midwest League. At the time of the transfer, Harrell held a 2-2 record pitching for the Iowa team.

The Birmingham victory was Harrell's second win at his present club. His record stands at 2-1 after losing to Asheville. "Clarence is a real fine pitcher," commented A's manager Harry Bright. "He had a real fine spring and has seemingly conquered his control trouble." Against Knoxville Thursday night Harrell gave up only five hits, struck out seven and walked five.

The Wilton pitcher now has pitched three complete games in three appearances.

Harrell attended Montevallo High School and signed with the Oakland Athletics after graduation in 1972. He has played with three Oakland farm teams before coming to Birmingham.

"I am really glad to be back close to home," Clarence confided after the Knoxville game. "I hope that I'll be going up to the majors pretty soon, though."

Volunteer Bureau to tap resources

The Volunteer Bureau of Greater Birmingham is in the process of developing an exciting new and long over due project that will deal with the needs of the Columbiana community and the whole Shelby county area.

The goal of the project, called the Information and Referral Development Project, is to pool all human service information from Shelby, Chilton, Walker, Blount, St. Clair, and Jefferson counties into a central resource file. This information will be used to link people in need of help to the most appropriate agency or helping organization. Other uses of the information will be to assist community planners by pointing out gaps, overlaps or duplications in human services offered. The information gathered will also be available to community leaders who wish to tap this comprehensive data bank for their own purposes.

The Information and Referral Development Project is jointly funded by the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission Area Agency on Aging and the Community Chest- United Appeal of Walker, Shelby, and Jefferson Counties.

The Information and Referral project is in the development stage now, and is working towards completing the comprehensive data collection necessary to provide this service. Questionnaires are used to identify the services available in Shelby county and they are being mailed to all social service agencies, organizations, institutions, or churches that the Volunteer Bureau has previously identified. The project needs the support of all citizens in the Shelby county area. Please write the Volunteer Bureau at 3600 Eighth Avenue, South, Birmingham, Alabama, 35222, and inform them of any human services of which you think they may be unaware. The Information and Referral Project asks for support from all community leaders who receive questionnaires by encouraging them to answer and return them as quickly as possible.

Marina operators report on Lay Lake fishing scene

Fishing reports on Lay Lake were fair to good last week. Bass fishermen were meeting with general success while some action on crappie was also reported.

Reports from Armstrong's Camp on Waxahatchee Creek are that bass were being taken especially on flies. Crappie catches were also reported at night.

Bill Henke at Lacoosa Marina described last weekend's fishing activity as fair, with several strings of bass being brought in with eight to 13 fish per string. Jim Davis of Alabaster brought in the biggest bass of the weekend weighing six pounds. Several other four-pounders were reported at Lacoosa.

Henke said that crappie were deep and that bass were doing best on a twister or a wiggler. He also reported that the stripe were hitting down river on a Little George.

J. W. Carden at Spring

Creek Grocery said that the bass were biting on worms in the shallows last weekend. Carden also said that several fishermen caught the limit of crappie at night fishing six to seven feet deep.

Benny Rainey of Shelby caught a six pound bass last Thursday while fishing from the causeway on county road 71 south of Spring Creek. Rainey caught his prize on a black worm.

J. T. Boykin at Bozos Camp told the Reporter that bass were being caught in the holes on plastic worms. Bass were also being taken in the weeds early in the morning and late at night. Boykin also reported that night fishermen were catching crappie.

Steve Collins of Alabaster and a friend caught 20 bass last Sunday while fishing out of Bozos.

Jerry Whooten at Camp Okomo cited that quite a few bass were being caught in the weeds early and late in the day moving to a depth of five to eight feet during the day. The crappie were scattered. Two to three willowfly hatches should be news to fly fishermen.

Dennis Wesson and Bob Hamilton who live at Okomo took third place in the J & M Marina bass tourney last weekend.

According to board member Louie Wilson, about 130 notices were sent out to property owners, notifying them of increases in their taxes. The board received protests from "not over 15 persons".

Most of the persons who had tax increases were those who had built a new house on their property but had not assessed the new house.

Gallup Poll checks ideas about minimum wages

by Mildred White Wallace

For practically 40 years, the Gallup Poll has conducted a survey which periodically checks on the inflation problem. The question asked is: "What is the smallest amount of money a family of four (husband, wife and two children) needs each week to get along in this community?"

The latest survey showed the median dollar income suggested by those responding to the question to be $152 per week. Taking a backward look for instance, in 1937 -- the figure was $30. To further fill in the pictorial comparison between then and now -- in 1947, the amount per week was $43, in 1957 it was $72 and in 1967 it reached $101.

If this up-and-away procedure continues, the public's estimate of the minimum monthly salary required for a family of four should hit the $800 or more in the next few years.

The comment on the above facts and figures: "If the government decides to guarantee this level of income, a lot more of us can quit work and go fishing!"

Columbiana says 'welcome' to Davises

The North Alabama Conference convenes in the Magic City this week at Birmingham Southern College. We are numbered among the friends and United Methodist Church members, who are looking forward to having the privilege of welcoming Rev. and Mrs. Lamar Davis and family back to Columbiana for many years to come. The writer has not had the pleasure of being with these personable people as much as she would have liked -- but even the brief time we have spent with them warrants our wish that the Bishop will not take them away from us. All members of the family are greatly beloved and Columbiana folk would, if possible, proudly adopt them "for keeps".

It is good not to have to be "wondering-if" about Merrell, Richey and Crim. They belong to us!

Summertime brings back warm memories

The official beginning of summer will take place June 21. It will be a time possibly to grow a bit nostalgic as we remember erstwhile more tranquil times. For instance, when Watergate was just another building and inflation was something you needed to keep your tires turning. It will make a time to weave pleasant memories into the tapestry of life -- let's not waste a single thread.

Why is your A.D. Pharmacist called "personal"?

Because he's always available for personal consultation. He makes sure you understand your doctor's instructions, for instance.

It's a very good idea to check with him on non-prescriptions too. The fifth largest cause of hospital admissions is drug misuse resulting from self-medication. Be sure. Be safe. Ask your A.D. Personal Pharmacist.

MR. AND MRS. A. C. GALLOWAY

Galloways honored on anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. A.C. Galloway of Montevallo were honored June 2 with a reception at their home hosted by their children Jack, Buddy, Larry, Olen, Rance and Mrs. Rylene Thames in observance of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Galloway were married June 1, 1924 at Siluria. They have been residents of Shelby County since that time and have a host of friends and relatives who took this opportunity to visit with them during the party hours.

Among the distinguished guests were Zelma P. Simpson and Iris P. Goss, two classmates of Mrs. Galloway's whom she had not seen for fifty years.

In addition to their six children, there were six grandchildren and two great grandchildren present who shared in the joyous occasion.

Mr. Galloway is a retired employee of the Martin Marietta Co., near Montevallo.

Marsha Lefkovits to attend Girls State

Marsha Lefkovits, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lefkovits, has been chosen to represent Shelby County High School at the 1974 session of Girls State which is being held in Montgomery this week at Huntingdon College.

Miss Lefkovits is sponsored by the Novella Club. She was recently elected president of the SCHS student body. She has been a member of 4-H clubs for nine years and will, during her stay in Montgomery, be a candidate for Commissioner of Agriculture. Upon her return to Columbiana, she will address various clubs in the county.

Miss Stricklin to graduate

Deborah Kay Stricklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd E. Stricklin of Shelby will graduate from St. Vincent's School of Nursing on June 7. Graduation will be at St. Paul's Cathedral. Miss Stricklin entered the school of nursing following her graduation from Shelby County High School.

This morning, in a curb-stone interview with Buck Falkner, in charge of Columbiana's many projects for improvement, we asked him what progress had been made in procuring labor to construct the tennis courts recently approved by the Mayor and councilmen. Falkner stated that two men had promised to come and look over the field this week. Hopefully they would be able to do the work so that the summer would not be gone before devotees of Tennis had the pleasure of enjoying the game.

Judging from what we can learn, skilled labor is badly needed in many construction jobs where "specially trained personnel" is essential. One man suggested that if young graduates would forget about college degrees and learn a trade it might be far more "cents-a-ble".

The evening worship hour Sunday was devoted to the presentation of Tom Stoker's Young Musicians in their interpretation of Coleman's Drama-Musical titled: The Boy Who Caught a Fish. Featured soloists were: Scott Owen, Jeff Stroud and Danny King. Clay Owen was narrator. All were admirably cast and the choral work was exceptionally well blended. Karen Holcombe, pianist, accompanied the group.

Some few months ago, Jean Roberts (Mrs. Tommy) of Alabaster, accepted a secretarial position in the Tax Assessor's office. Last Thursday May 30, Jean returned to her home in Alabaster and friends expressed regrets that she would not be in the office during the summer months -- but - they were delighted to learn she would return in September to resume the work she has so efficiently performed since joining Snowden's official staff.

Mr. and Mrs. M.C. Scales of Tallahassee, Fla., spent the weekend in Columbiana as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Walton.

Mrs. Henry White of Birmingham was guest speaker Monday afternoon in the auditorium of First Baptist.

Shopping around one afternoon last week for a few groceries we were reminded of how high speeded we Americans are. The line at the checker's stand was rather long and impatient housewives did not like the idea of waiting. However, according to a news article we read today, they are far better off than, for instance, a Polish housewife. This article reported that frequently the family purchaser spends 6.5 hours a week standing in line for one thing or another. Here is a list of the average "waits": a piece of meat 40 to 45 minutes; to reach the fruit and vegetable counter, 15 minutes. The annual total for the country is 2.5 billion man-hours enough to increase Poland's gross national product by 20 percent.

All that waiting around would not be tolerated in America, where people -- some folk -- get so impatient they honk at the car ahead of them. The moment the traffic light turns green.

Prices for sandwiches, salads, short orders etc. should be posted in clear view of patrons. If this were done much confusion would be avoided -- and embarrassment, in some cases, to the customer would not happen. The right to have this information is a courtesy to which the patrons are entitled where no menus are provided.

Our local merchants have returned to the Main Drag after spending last week purchasing fall merchandise. Watch for the date of prospective sales soon to appear. The Leon Wallaces spent last week in Atlanta; Sonya Lefkovits and Norman tell me the fall colors are beautiful and they bought merchandise for the whole family; and Jim Strickland says he has tried to purchase goods and ready-to- wear to appeal to all his customers and friends. So - no need to worry about leaving town to purchase your fall and winter wardrobe.

We had the pleasure of a personal call Thursday from Rev. Wayne Osment, pastor of First Baptist Church of Wilsonville about whom we had heard many good things since he and his lovely family moved to our neighboring town about three months ago. The young and enthusiastic minister expressed his appreciation for the people in Wilsonville, and their thoughtfulness of him and his family. Having heard from many of our good friends up Wilsonville way even more good things about him and his ministry -- there was only one conclusion: "everybody happy about the whole thing" -- which is as it should be.

Les Brown Jr., had his plans to enter the Navy interrupted after taking a physical last week. The doctor decided he must take a trip to the hospital instead. Friends of the popular young fellow may contact him in Shelby Memorial.

Clyde Wyatt of Harpersville visited our office Thursday and states that "crops are excellent" up his way. He sees no immediate danger of starvation invading Shelby County any time soon.

Mrs. Frank Hill of Charlotte, N.C. and her daughter Kathy are the guests of her mother Mrs. J.L. Elliott and Mr. Elliott this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wallace and their newly arrived daughter, April, of Florence, are the guests of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wallace.

The inoculation against rabies for dogs program ended Saturday in Columbiana. It is reported that many dogs in the county have not yet been immunized against rabies. For the sake of your family and your neighbors, don't you think it would be wise to get in touch with the proper authorities and get this preventive shot for Fido?

Allen knocks lax Congress

"Congress has become so deeply involved in the politics of impeachment that important legislation is being neglected," Senator Jim Allen said recently. Criticizing the inactivity of Congress, Senator Allen pointed out, "There are 13 major appropriation bills that should be passed before the new fiscal year begins on July 1st, but there is little chance that any will make it."

Asserting that the problems of Watergate are no excuse for Congress' present inactivity, Senator Allen declared, "Congress should operate on a long work week and for long hours in an effort to help solve our national problems."

CHARTER SERVICE - The area's newest Methodist church held its charter service recently. Christ Church, United Methodist held the special service at the mobile church building on Caldwell Mill Road near Valleydale. Participating in the service were (l to r) Rev. Lawrence Dill III, Bishop Carl J. Sanders, and Dr. Paul L. Clem, Birmingham District Superintendent.

Methodist church chartered Sunday

The area's newest Methodist church, Christ Church United Methodist, was chartered in a special service on Sunday, May 19. Dr. Paul Clem, Birmingham district superintendent, formally constituted the church and the nearly 100 persons who have joined the church since the first service in mid-December.

The church began less than a year ago when Larry Dill was appointed pastor of the yet-to-be congregation on July 1, 1973. After months of planning, surveys, and visits, the church has grown to the point of being officially chartered.

Giving the morning message for the service was Dr. Carl J. Sanders, resident bishop of the Birmingham area. The bishop told the congregation, "You have brought together a fellowship not only for people now, but for people for a long time to come to meet God."

Located on Caldwell Mill Road, the church is presently housed in two portable units bought by the North Alabama Conference and built to its specifications as a place of worship. Later, when the new congregation has moved into a permanent church building on the same acreage.

Church school for all ages begins at 9:15 a.m. each Sunday, followed by morning worship at 10:30. Evening activities—United Methodist Youth at 5:00 p.m. and a period of informal study and discussion at 6:30 p.m.

The parish area of Christ Church, United Methodist includes the Cahaba Valley portion of south Jefferson and north Shelby Counties, lying between Highway 280 and Highway 31 South.

Penhale gets square nail

by Willard Harrison
Shelby County Historical Society president Kenneth Penhale received "the square nail" at the society's monthly meeting last Friday night. Presented by Jim Walker, president of the West Jefferson Historical Society, the hand-made nail is a symbol of history and preservation which one society presents to another.

In his talk to the group, Walker discussed the priorities of a historical group, and the areas of interest for Shelby County's group. He pointed out that the group need not limit itself to people and old buildings, but it should also explore the natural history of the county. Walker noted that the county has over 200 varieties of ferns, and fossils of everything from seashells to dinosaurs.

Jim Walker touched on various parts of the county's virtually unwritten history, ranging from the two hundred coal mining operations in the 1850's to the many doctors, outlaws, and innkeepers of Shelby County's past.

Walker stressed the need for a museum or compository in which to display relics of the county's history, and in which to preserve valuable documents. He quoted figures released by the state chamber of commerce stating that the average tourist spends $30 per day for each person, adding that the same agency had found that the state's biggest tourist attractions were not recreation areas, but museums and places of historical interest. He furthermore suggested that the society take as a project the preservation and renovation of an historic building in the county.

The museum, explained Walker would help to educate the public, which he stated was half of the society's work.

Pine beetle on increase, says county forester

Shelby County Forester David L. Duckett recently reported that Southern Pine Beetle activity was on the increase in the county. The main infestation seems to be in the Southern half of the county, the forester reports. The Southern Pine Beetle is considered the most destructive forest insect in the South. Trees of all sizes are attacked, but usually those larger than six inches are infested first.

The first indication of attack is usually the yellowing or browning of the needles. Examination of the trunk of the tree will usually reveal white, yellow, or sometimes red-brown pitch tubes, about as large as a wad of gum. Examination of infested trees by the removal of the bark will show a distinctive winding "S" shaped gallery pattern. Active spots or patches of infestation are distinctive also in that the center trees have dark reddish-brown foliage gradually changing until those on the edge have light greenish or yellowish-green foliage.

Individuals who think they have trees which have been infested by the insect pest should contact their county forester for information concerning control procedures. The County Forester may be telephoned at 669-7605, or he may be visited in his office on McDow Road in Columbiana.

Groucho Marx: The other day when one pretty young nurse came to take my pulse in the hospital I managed to get her to hold my hand while she made the check. Afterward I gave her a wink and said, "What was it?" "Eighty," she said. "But that's above normal, isn't it?" I protested. She smiled and said in a sympathetic tone, "Not when I'm holding your hand it isn't."

OUR 1974 DODGE COLT GOT 33.7 MILES PER GALLON IN THE USAC "MILES-PER-GALLON SHOWDOWN"!
(COLT BEAT VEGA & MUSTANG II.)

In the recent USAC "Miles-Per-Gallon Showdown," a 1974 Dodge Colt got 33.7 miles per gallon. The Colt was equipped with the standard overhead-cam 1600 cc. four-cylinder engine and four-speed manual transmission. The mileage test, conducted in the Arizona-Southern California area, covered a distance of 972 miles at an average speed of 53 mph.

Also included in the "MPG Showdown" were a Chevrolet Vega and a Ford Mustang II (also equipped with four-cylinder engines and manual transmissions). Dodge Colt got substantially better gasoline mileage than either the Vega or Mustang II. All of the cars were driven by non-professional drivers. Of course, the mileage you get depends on many factors including how and where you drive and the condition of your vehicle. See your nearby Atlanta Dodge Colt Dealer for complete details on the results of the USAC "Miles-Per-Gallon Showdown."

CAUGHT IN MID AIR -- Shelby County Reporter news photographer Jerry Hamilton shot this photograph last Sunday afternoon at the opening of the new Lakeside moto-cross race track located south of Alabaster. An estimated crowd of 500 people were on hand to watch as 164 drivers compete in seven different classes. See the story in the sports section.

In county--

Medical services growing

Even though doctors are in short supply in Shelby County, the medical scene is far from being stagnant. New developments are occurring at the hospital, nursing home, and at medical offices, and rumors are currently circulating about even more changes.

Despite appearances, Briarcliff Nursing Home is not in a new phase of construction, according to the administrator Hyche. Bulldozers have recently been clearing away a large area of dirt adjoining the nursing home, leading passersby to believe that the home is undergoing a new construction phase.

"We have no foreseeable plans to expand," explained Hyche. "We just had the opportunity to move the dirt without paying any money. Of course we may announce plans for an expansion sometime in the near future, but there are no new additions being considered." Hyche told the Reporter that the nursing home is still expanding into a new portion built a few months ago.

Shelby Memorial Hospital is on schedule with its multi-million dollar construction. Hospital director Chester Black said that they are still hoping to move into the new business, X-ray, and surgery quarters in the new wing by the first week of August. He added that a further progress report is upcoming after the subcontractors and the hospital's building committee hold their meetings this week.

Exterior work on the hospital is quite apparent. Travelers on Highway 31 have been watching the rise of the new wing over the past few months. The new construction is expected to extend into next year, although much of that time will be spent in renovating parts of the original building. The hospital is still handicapped by a reduced number of beds caused by the needs of the construction crew.

Speculation has been rife about new doctors supposedly coming to the county to practice. Nothing new has developed in Calera, and no doctor has come to replace Dr. Connie Chandler in Alabaster. Dr. Abernathy is presently being assisted on a part-time basis by a local medical student, although nothing is definite about who will share the office.

County receives $181,000 grant

Motorists driving along Shelby County roads will be pleased to find over 400 miles of well marked thoroughfares in the near future. It was announced at the Shelby County Commissioner's meeting last Monday that the county has received a federal grant under the Safe Roads Act totaling $181,000 for establishing uniform center line and side striping on county roads.

This action will bring the marking of county highways in line with national standards.

The establishment of a proposed county dog pound was also a topic for discussion at Monday's Commission meeting. Alabaster Mayor Harold Davenport, Pelham Mayor Paul Yeager and Helena Mayor pro tem K. L. Mullins appeared before the commission on the issue. The issue also brought a group from the North Shelby Welcome Wagon led by Marna Steger and Kelley Hall of Pelham.

The delegation asked the council to set up a pound for stray animals to allow the cities to enforce animal control ordinances. The commission agreed to study the matter and hear a report at the next meeting.

Blasts 'smear' tactics--

Judge Fowler to file legal suit against Sheriff Red Walker

Shelby County Probate Judge Conrad M. Fowler announced this week that he will file a lawsuit against Sheriff C. P. "Red" Walker.

The suit stems from the actions of the sheriff in arresting Judge Fowler and six other men a week before the June 4 election on conspiracy charges.

The charges were investigated by the state attorney general who found them to have no basis. They were dismissed in Circuit Court.

The incident was so unusual it attracted attention around the world.

Fowler charges that the sheriff based his arrest on unsworn statements by witnesses who later denied to the attorney general that they had been responsible for wording the statements.

Fowler calls the county wide distribution of the statements on the day before the election a "Big Smear."

His full statement reads as follows:

"For the first time in modern times, Shelby County voters were exposed to the 'big lie' and the last minute 'smear sheet' in a political campaign. The big lie was the arrest and jailing of seven people on the affidavit of C.P. Walker and the big smear was the distribution just before the election by C. P. Walker of two unsworn statements made by Stanley Oliver and Jim Parker.

The Attorney General and his staff of six examined all the evidence and said that there was not a shred of evidence to support the affidavit of C.P. Walker. In fact, they found that the only words spoken by any person having to do with bodily harm to Walker were spoken by Walker's own witness who was wired for sound and sought to get another to agree that the way to settle the race was to eliminate Walker, but on each occasion the other person replied to Walker's witness that he was out of his mind to suggest such a thing. Walker failed to set up the frame-up that he sought but went on to charge that seven people met and agreed to seek to have him eliminated for $8,000 anyway. This just did not happen. At no time did the seven people even meet together, much less plan his elimination.

"Walker claimed that he had sworn statements upon which he relied for information so that he could swear to the affidavit in order to get Circuit Clerk Kyle Lansford to issue warrants; Walker claimed that a representative of the F.B.I. and also Circuit Judge James H. Sharbutt assured him that he had sufficient evidence to make the affidavits and obtain the warrants. These claims are totally false. The statements of his witnesses were unsworn. The officer in charge of the Birmingham F.B.I. office has said that they had not advised Walker as to the warrants; that they had merely come to his house in Alabaster at his invitation and upon being informed by Walker as to what he had in mind that they told him that the matter was not in their jurisdiction and they left. Judge Sharbutt said that he knew nothing about the whole affair until he was called about the fixing of bond for the seven people who had been arrested and jailed.

"If Walker still maintains that he has a shred of truth in the charges he will get his chance to prove it because I am suing him in a court of proper jurisdiction for that which he has done.

The last minute smear sheet circulated by Walker and his supporters was a part of the evidence submitted to the Attorney General's staff. They questioned the two people who signed the unsworn statements. These two people were also given a lie detector examination by officers of the Department of Public Safety. Both of these two people failed to pass the lie detector examination. With reference to the written statement they each signed, they said as to parts of the statement, "Now we didn't say that, Sheriff Walker put that in", or words to that effect. Yet Walker circulated the statements county-wide.

"Some 10,000 school children are enrolled in Shelby County schools where at one time or another they will study of American history and our democratic processes. It is too bad that they have seen first hand this failure of the democratic processes."

Bat boy contest begins

Imagine being able to be a bat boy or a bat girl for a professional baseball team in the Southern League! Meet players on the way up the major leagues -- the ones everybody will be talking about in a few years. How would it be to tell your friends about being under the big lights of Rickwood Field. Or think of sitting in the grandstands holding a hotdog covered with mustard and cheering for the home team.

These need not be the idle dreams of area boys and girls this summer. The Shelby County Reporter and the Childersburg Star will be promoting a contest naming nine lucky boys or girls to be a bat boy or bat girl for the Birmingham A's baseball team this summer. All others who enter the contest will have the opportunity of attending an A's game with their parents FREE.

Here is how the contest works: The Reporter - Star organization and the A's have divided the A's home games into nine different groups ranging from three to five games. Entry forms will be printed in the Shelby County Reporter and the Childersburg Star throughout the summer. All you have to do is to fill out a form and mail it in.

A drawing will be held to determine the winner of each group.

At Oak Mountain Park--

Summer visitors pour in Summertime is here in Shelby County and our biggest tourist attraction is fulfilling its promise. Oak Mountain State has been virtually swamped with humanity since its opening in mid-April.

Weekend visitors have averaged well into the thousands, with large crowds even on the weekdays. Park officials say that it seems that every business and club in the Birmingham area is having a summer picnic or get-together at the park. And one day last week it seemed that every school child from miles around had gathered at the park for a "school's out" celebration.

It's no wonder that Oak

Mountain is attracting such crowds. The park has literally something for everyone from pre-schoolers to retirees, from beach bums to hikers, from Sunday golfers to horsemen. Fishermen can cast their lines into Lunken Lake or Beaver Lake. Swimmers and boating enthusiasts can enjoy Double Oak Lake. And there's even Tranquility Lake left for campers and cabin renters.

Horseback riding is catching on at the park now that the riding stable has opened. Riders can rent a horse for $3.50 per hour and take to the trails for a special view of nature. Children are already enjoying the pony ride at the demonstration farm.

The farm is enjoying its own special crowd on patrons, the pre-schoolers and elementary school children. Baby animals are on hand for cuddling and petting, and the kids can watch baby chicks hatch. The farm area is highlighted with old farm implements around the red buildings and silo.

Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts are also finding fun at the primitive camping area near Tranquility Lake. Several weeks ago this area resembled walk-to-wall campers when 530 scouts held a campfire at the park.

Columbiana files for sewer money

The City of Columbiana has recently made an application for a step one grant for the sewage system to the Alabama Water Improvement Commission and the Environmental Protection Agency.

In accordance with the current guidelines from the two regulating agencies, the purpose of this grant is for preliminary planning, evaluation of existing sewer lines, existing sewage lagoon, and the addition of sewage service to presently unsewered areas of the City.

The grant will be made on the basis of 75 percent Federal participation and 25 percent City participation. Columbiana is presently on the State's priority list and approval is expected to be within two to four months. This grant is to provide local municipalities with the facilities of providing proper short and long-term planning to meet their sewer needs.

Engineering and planning will begin immediately upon approval of the grant. Subsequent applications will also be made upon completion of this phase of the project for preparation of detailed plans and specifications and construction of the proposed facilities.

The anticipated time required until construction can begin will be from 18 months to two years.

Commission

Continued from page 1 on Aging appeared before the council and gave a report on the free meal program in Shelby County.

Several residents in county subdivisions outside the corporate limits of any town have asked the commission to install speed breakers on their streets. An opinion filed with the commission on Monday by county attorneys stated that county employees designing and constructing such speed breakers could be liable for a law suit if the breakers were built.

The commission also voted to accept a bid of $25,880 for a new county truck. The vehicle will be purchased from the Birmingham Mac Truck Company.

Two spend night lost in woods

Richard Robinson left to pick blackberries with his little three year old daughter, Dottie, last Friday morning and wasn't heard from again until Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Harpersville Rescue Squad searched the woods Friday night and Saturday morning. Then a report came from his mother's home in Jacksonville, Florida that he had been there.

The family misunderstood the message and the search was called off. However, he had been in Jacksonville a week earlier, and his mother's report that he had been there and was all right referred to that visit.

On Sunday the family straightened it out and then were again plunged into worry as to where Robinson and Dottie had gone.

Robinson said that he apparently went around in circles after leaving his home on a paved road near the Egg and Butter Road near Columbiana. They slept on the ground Friday and Saturday nights and had only blackberries to eat. Finally he found a logging road and followed it until he came out on the Egg and Butter Road, Sunday afternoon.

Grants

Wilsonville received $3,527 for libraries.

Wilton's $6,631 will be divided with $6,299.45 going for multipurpose and general government and the remaining $331.55 for operating maintenance.

Harpersville's revenue sharing payment will total $6,879. $3,000 will be spent on recreation with $3,879 on repairing the city hall.

B'ham Southern may locate here

It may be six months before Birmingham-Southern College's Board of Trustees is ready to announce the location for their proposed new campus.

The college owns 180 acres of land in Shelby County on Cahaba Valley Road near Highway 280.

John C. Evins, spokesman for the college, told the Reporter that the decision to build a new campus is contingent on Miles College purchasing the present campus west of downtown Birmingham.

Plans for the transfer of ownership have been underway for several months.

Evins said that the board feels the college should locate south of downtown Birmingham, and is seeking a site of 250 acres, in Jefferson or in Shelby County.

He said "it should be firmed up within the next six months."

'Columbiana crowd' takeover proves to be mere scare talk

by Marcia M. Sears
Editor, Shelby County Reporter

Columbiana about to take over the county? Forget it. Mark it off as election scare talk -- or a holdover from the pre-paved road days.

Everybody likes to play up the "Columbiana Courthouse Crowd" like the villain in a mystery, plotting and scheming to do the rest of the county out of their just desserts.

But people who still go for that line haven't taken a good look around the courthouse for a while. On any given day there aren't enough old time Columbiana types around to get up a good bridge game.

But if somebody yelled, "Bus leaving for Alabaster," they'd be flattened like a pancake in the rush for the door. Ditto for Wilsonville.

We haven't actually counted noses, but wherever you go in Shelby County on Saturday or Sunday, you run into someone you see during the week in the "courthouse crowd".

Alabaster has contributed several major elected office holders, and unknown numbers of other county workers drive into Columbiana from there daily.

Vincent, which often feels left out, is represented by no less than a circuit judge and a chief clerk.

The education office could be accused of being a hotbed for Calera activism if anybody wanted to carry this to an extreme. But the two office workers who commute daily from Calera are offset by a pair of big operators from Wilsonville, one from Harpersville and another from somewhere around Pelham -- not to mention Montevallo, Shelby, and Alabaster -- again.

The staff of the Department of Pensions and Security comes from so many varied places in the county they could probably set up a little legislature.

The health department nurses, the deputies, the highway department staff -- live wherever they want to and wheel into town in not more than 30 minutes from anywhere in the county. Well, 40 minutes, maybe, what with the new speed limit.

Another way you can tell is by the lunch hour shuffle.

If you live in Columbiana, you'd go home for lunch, right?

Well, at high noon, every courthouse office looks like a restaurant, with the out of town workers eating lunch they brought from home, or eating out of the styrofoam plates from the delicatessen, or the bags of barbecues from down the street.

In fact, there are so many coffee pots and jars of Coffee-Mate and Instant Maxwell House sitting around it's surprising a grand jury hasn't investigated to see if someone is running a store.

As for the City of Columbiana -- don't worry. City Clerk Kathryn Franks keeps it all together. The water runs whenever you want it, the natural gas heats the office when you want it, the trash is always picked up -- and Main Street is always clean.

Does this mean the top brass of the city spends its free time plotting the takeover of Montevallo and Pea Ridge? Not on your life.

According to what you read in the sports pages, everybody who is even remotely a part of the "Columbiana Establishment" is not in Columbiana at all.

They're down on the river reeling in five pound crappies -- and they aren't planning anything more sinister than how to lure the big one over to their line.

Dear old Dad gets his due on Father's Day this Sunday

by Fred Cooper

It really doesn't seem like that long ago that Judy Gibbs and I were driving back from Montgomery after visiting my parents and she said, "You know, you ought to write a column about that visit."

I guess maybe I should, at that.

This was the trip that we learned, among other things, that my mother had become the hit of her garden club meeting when in the middle of the session she exploded the tear gas pen my father had given her. She exploded it mostly because he had forgotten to tell her he had put it in her purse, cocked, all set to fire the .22 caliber shell that released the gas.

Needless to say, she was an immediate sensation and when the air had finally cleared and everybody could breathe again, the women told her how funny it was, those that were still speaking to her.

My mother doesn't think this story is as amusing as my father does.

As a matter of fact, it was on this particular visit that she chose to mention it to him.

"Dear," I believe are the words that she selected, "I wish you'd stop telling that! I'm tired of hearing about it!"

"Oh, Fred and Judy know you and think it's a cute story," he countered.

"The waiter at the restaurant where we ate last night didn't know me," she reminded me. "And that didn't stop you from telling him AND the cashier."

This sounds like my father.

He has always had a curious sense of humor and an even curiouseer way of approaching things. I suppose that's where I come by my somewhat erratic way of life.

This is to say, I've learned a lot from my father. A few weeks ago, I mentioned how I sort of took apart and then put back together a shower unit with a hammer. My father is the only man I know who ever put a fuel pump on a car with a hammer. It seemed to be a logical approach at the time.

I guess everybody had learned some little lesson of life from his father. I remember Huffstutler relating to me an incident involving a failing math grade when he was a senior at Phillips High School. The grade was bothering him because if he didn't pass, he didn't graduate. Finally, he did what every young man does when he has an insurmountable problem at that stage in life. He turned to his dad.

After explaining his plight and showing his father the offending math book, he stood by, ready for his dad to take hold of the situation and straighten it out for him.

Father Huffstutler was silent for a moment, then, sensing the immense feeling in the air, laid a hand on young Steve's shoulder and said, "You just gotta get in there and get it, son."

"I never thought of that," Huffstutler told me many years later. "I wish I'd been able to do it."

All of this has a point. The point is, Sunday is Father's Day. It's sort of a tacked-on day because Mother's Day got so much play when it was set aside, folks in Washington felt like pops deserved something.

A friend of mine once said that it takes a man ten years to become a husband and a woman ten seconds to become a wife. I think the same may be true about fathers. They work, they pray, they hope that they're doing the right thing and wish that they had some instinct to go on and most of the time, they think they're wrong but have to go ahead anyway because there's no other direction. And generally, they don't know if their methods have been right or not until it's too late to either change them or take credit for them.

I learned a lot from my dad. He taught me things that I will always use and remember. The one thing that he didn't teach me though was to sing. I don't regret this, Judy does. On this same trip back from Montgomery, we were too far from any city to pick up a radio station so I started to sing.

"Fred," she asked sweetly, "would you sing 'Gentle on my Mind'?"

Please, I did so. And having finished my solo rendition, I asked her if she really liked the way I sang it.

"No," she said, "but it's the only song you know the words to."

GATEWAY TO WONDER -- Fred Layton, the owner of Kymulga Onyx Cave near Childersburg, conducts visitors down the entranceway stairsteps into the heart of the cavern. Lower Wallacites join Beasley camp

by Don Wasson

Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley really "turned it around" in the June 4 runoff, putting together one of the strangest coalition of forces ever to work together behind one candidate, and won the Democratic nomination for a second term.

Capital observers are classifying it as a win for "Little Brother over Taylor" which interprets as a victory for Gerald Wallace, brother of Gov. George Wallace, over Mental Health Commissioner and former finance director Taylor Hardin.

The younger Wallace and a number of the leaders of various special interest groups got behind Beasley and reversed the first primary victory of Dothanite Charles Woods. The badly scared millionaire led the first primary by 2,000 votes.

Beasley said on the night of the runoff that trailing in the first primary "could have been the best thing that ever happened to me" and well it might.

He said that in the context of the campaign effort -- it made him really get to work in the runoff and brought a lot of people out to work for him.

Indeed they turned out. There were the leaders of the teachers, the blacks, the labor chieftains, the big utilities, the truckers, and a whole host of second and third echelon Wallace administration people.

Brother Gerald had been working for Beasley all along -- in the first primary campaign and he and some of the other power brokers, five per centers and influence peddlers were simply looking on down the road to 1978 when the Wallace dynasty ends and they would otherwise have to start working for a living.

With Woods, they figured they would have no influence at all.

As for the special interest folks, they also figure Woods as an intractable, immovable object, totally unpredictable, and the special interests don't like somebody they can't figure out.

So it all went for Beasley and if he is an intelligent as he seems to be, then the first primary second place finish should have taught him something else other than the proper runoff campaign attitude.

Hopefully, he learned that the public doesn't want a fulltime lieutenant governor and that they will rebuke him again in 1978 if the next four years produces the same kind of legislative in-fighting he inspired in 1971 and 1973.

The new State Senate holds promise despite, or perhaps because of the large turnover. There is just enough experience coming back to give the body stability and enough new faces to give the body a shot of adrenalin it so badly needs.

One thing ought to be abundantly clear -- the public expects this next legislature to get down to work, to quit playing games and especially to modify its filibustering tactics.

Beasley simply must have a good legislative year if he is to remain viable as a gubernatorial candidate and hopefully, again, the public will benefit.

Can he, and will he work with Wallace?

There doesn't seem to be much doubt about that. If he can withstand the Republican challenge in the fall, Jere Beasley should be the very model of a Wallace subaltern, almost falling over himself to do the governor's bidding. After all, both he and Woods fought for the title of the one who worked the closest with Wallace. Beasley apparently won that crown and he wants to keep it.

County seat cited as desirable town

Letter to Editor:

I really do not know how to explain what I am about to say and I hope I am not misunderstood. I do feel that it is necessary. I am serving as a Juror at the Court house and recently I have had the opportunity to observe Columbiana and the business activity very closely. Columbiana is one of the few cities left in this nation that enjoys the tranquility and informality of the true south. Many people accept this as a way of life that will never change. This is not true in fact. Money and ambitious people of bad faith will eventually change this atmosphere if it is not protected. Everyone that loves Shelby County should go to Columbiana during the week and walk through the town, look at the houses, visit the shops, watch the children, the Old people, hear the bell toll at the court house, sit under the trees and observe every sound and action. I have done this and for one that has been in many places around the world this experience is not one that I will easily forget.

Sincerely yours,
James O. Bonner, Jr.
Rt. 1

Congress continuing at snail's pace

by Senator Jim Allen

Far from acting with any sense of urgency about clearing the decks to meet any possible contingency or crisis with which it might be faced later this year, Congress is moving at the same leisurely pace at which it usually travels.

The Senate and the House face a staggering backlog of contro- versial issues relating to defense, taxes, energy, budget controls, election reform, trade, health, veterans, deficit spending, the economy and a host of other legislation affecting all Americans.

The new Federal fiscal year starts on July 1, and there are 13 major appropriation bills that should be passed before then, but there is little chance that any will be passed. In fact, not a single appropriation bill has yet come over to the Senate from the House where by custom they originate.

Some 23 pieces of legislation are now in the hands of Senate and House Conference Committees, and some of these have been tied up for more than a year. This list includes such important measures as Rural Environmental Assistance, Separation of Federal Powers, Social Security Amendments, Pension Reform, Congressional Office of the Budget, Aircraft Piracy Prevention, Military Procurement Authorization, Energy Resources, School Lunch Program, National Cancer Research Authorization. Senate and House conferees are also at loggerheads over anti- busing provisions on the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

Much needed election reform legislation remains hung-up by liberal insistence on taxpayer financing of political campaigns, and such important legislation as creation of deep water ports to help with the nation's energy problem -- and which could be of great economic importance to Alabama -- has yet to be acted upon by either house.

The list of such legislation goes on and on, but Congress continues to fiddle while the crises mount.

Even as the legislative logjam gets higher and higher, the House and Senate continue taking long week-ends, extended recesses for minor holidays, short work days and abbreviated work weeks.

This is of great concern to me. I believe that Congress should operate on the basis of a long week and for long hours in an effort to help solve our national problems. Congress should not use the problems of Watergate as a crutch or excuse for not doing our jobs.

These critical times demand the best efforts of every member of Congress, and I pledge my best efforts.

Love and faith make family outing

by Milton Bird

Leona and I had been swimming in Walksie. We do this once in a while when the temperature is around 90 and the dust outside thick enough to slice with a knife. You can go from 90 to 70 in a matter of minutes, under the shade of the big beech trees, with the cold water covering you from head to toe. We came back the long way and crossed Town Branch at the high trestle.

Doc Armstrong was standing on the bank below the road bridge. He was having the time of his life, just standing there doing nothing. Sometimes you don't have to do anything, except look with your eyes and feel with your heart and what you wish for will come along, the same as the breeze comes on a hot summer day.

In the cool water, splashing about like two tiny mermaids, Peggy and Shirley Armstrong were having the time of their lives too. Two little girls, about seven and eight, and their Pop, sharing a summer afternoon together.

I guess if I had looked I could have found bluebirds in the trees along the bank, and wild flowers nodding in the breeze, but I didn't look. Enough, that on this golden afternoon, there was a man and his two little girls, and love and faith that rubbed off on a guy.

Without love, Doc would have been reading a book or gassing with the boys. And, without faith, Peggy and Shirley would have been afraid of the water. Maybe we should thank God for every little bit of love and faith we find along the way. I guess so long as there's enough of it, He'll tolerate the greed and hate and terror our world is full of.

Volunteers lauded for aiding drive

To the People of Shelby County:

On behalf of the American Cancer Society, I wish to thank all volunteers from Shelby County who, through their support, made the Pap Test Clinics such a success.

I wish it were possible to thank every person who helped with the clinics but since that is not possible, I would like to thank the Shelby County Health Department, nurses and personnel; Mrs. Ava Rozelle, Coordinator of Pap Test Clinics, Shelby County; Shelby County Health Department, nurses and personnel; Drs. Leslie H. Hubbard and Lewis E. Kirkland, Montealvo; Dr. Lawrence Farris, Jr., Helena; nurses and personnel at the Harpersville Clinic; Dr. C. B. Crowe and Dr. Joseph Connor; Drs. Hall and Phillips, Columbiana, and the volunteers from the Shelby County Unit of the American Cancer Society; also all volunteers and Deputies of the Shelby County Sheriff's Department.

We are most proud to announce that there were 422 Pap Tests in Shelby County on May 19th and 26th. There was a total of 18,000 Pap Tests given on May 19th and 26th in the State of Alabama.

Thank you for helping us wipe out cancer in our lifetime.

Benefit to raise funds for underpriveledged youth

Letter to Editor:

John Croyle, star defensive end for the University of Alabama, has dedicated his life to the underprivileged boys and girls of Alabama. He is in the process of raising money to build the John Croyle Big Oak Ranch in Northeast Alabama. One of the projects to raise money is a big outdoor gospel singing to be held Friday night, June 21st, beginning at sundown at the Etowah County High School football stadium, in Attalla. Five of the nations' Gospel groups will be singing.

We will appreciate all publicity you can give us on this.

Few foreign loans repaid

by Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- It is a painful time to be an American. Domestic scandal abounds. Yesterday's absurdities are today's realities. To the North, our Canadian friends complain they are being "Americanized." To the South, the Latins whimper that we never help them enough. Our European allies accuse us of trying to dictate policy for them.

Perhaps this is a good time to remind the world how magnanimous we really are. A State Department document reveals that since 1946 we have given or loaned nations of the world nearly $164 billion. This is a truly mind-boggling figure. Most of it -- $126 billion -- has been an outright gift. The remaining $38 billion has been loaned, but less than half -- only $15 billion -- has even been repaid.

Our Latin American friends have received $13 billion. They have borrowed $6 billion but repaid only a little over $1 billion.

How about the Arabs, who think we spend all our money on Israel? Egypt has received $867 million. The Iraqis, those bitter American-haters, have been given $93 million. Lebanon has received $146 million. Oil-rich Saudi Arabia has gotten $327 million and the Saudis still owe us $51 million in loans. Syria has received $61 million.

And Europe? The French, eternally looking down their noses at us, have been assisted with over $8 billion; they have, to their credit, repaid their loans, with interest. England has received nearly $9 billion and they still owe us $1.6 billion in loans.

Maybe we're not such bad guys after all.

Down, Down, Down: An embattled President Nixon has been promising an economic recovery. The sluggish economy will pick up this summer, he has said.

Economists eagerly awaited the April Economy Index for the first sign of recovery. This is the government's gauge of economic indicators. It was supposed to go up, as a signal that the economy was improving. Instead, it went down.

Many economists are now convinced that the nation is slipping into a serious recession. The purchasing power of the average worker has dropped an alarming seven per cent in the past 20 months. His wages simply haven't kept up with prices. This means he can no longer purchase as much as he used to.

This bursting inflation worries economists the most. Some fear it could erode the very foundations of our economic system.

President Nixon recently told the nation that he had inflation under control. But the next day, the respected Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns warned that the gravity of inflation could hardly be overestimated.

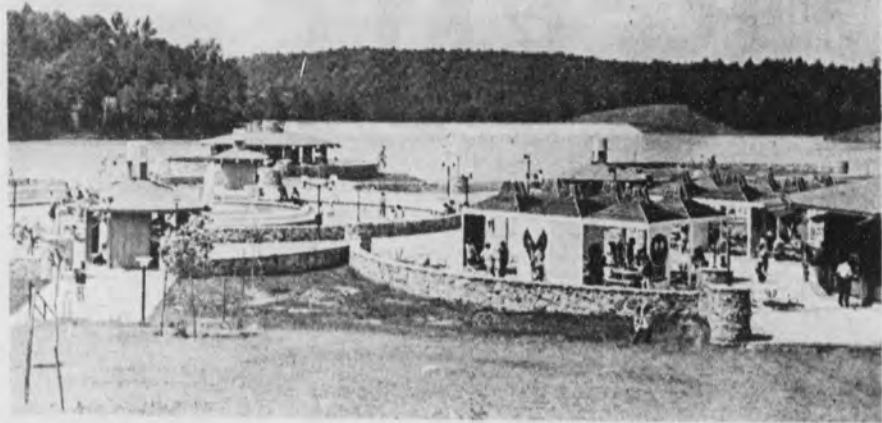

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler was asked about this discrepancy. He retorted sharply: "The President is right and Burns is wrong."

Well, Burns is an economist and the President is a politician. Increasingly, the economists, not the politicians, fear hard times are ahead.

BEACHSIDE COMPLEX - This recreation area located beside the new Oak Mountain Lake now offers swimming. Visitors to the area will also find boat rental, a skating rink, picnic pavilions, a short order restaurant and an air conditioned recreation building.

SKATING 'ROUND THE FOUNTAIN - An outdoor skating is included in the new beach area at Oak Mountain State Park. Park goers may rent skates at the rink. Skaters may catch their breath lounging beside a large fountain that adorns the center of the rink.

Visitors flock to Oak Mountain State Park civilized facilities, the camping area near Beaver Lake offers picnic tables, gas cooking outlets, a store, a laundromat, and rest stations. For a cabin on the lake, campers can rent a fully-furnished house for $24 a night with a minimum of two nights. Visitors have a choice of ten cottages, although many are booked with reservations for months in advance.

Of course the center of activity is the beach area surrounding Double Oak Lake.

On weekends the beach is crowded with sunbathers and swimmers basking in the sunshine, while nearby at the fountain, roller-skaters spin around the concrete roller rink. The gift shop sits on a hill above the fun area, overlooking the boardwalk and the cabanas. Several picnic shelters are located on points extending out into the lake.

Around the point from the beach is the marina, another popular spot at the park. Boaters wait their turn for a chance at the sail boats, and row boats, canoes, and speed boats are also in demand at the marina.

A fishing area will be opened later at Double Oak Lake, but at present Beaver and Lunker Lake are the fisherman's paradise. Fishing boats are available for rent at the center near Beaver Lake, forty feet lower than Lunker lake at the park's northeastern corner.

Tennis players can be seen practicing their sport on the two courts located not far from the beach. Players can rent a court for one dollar per hour. The courts are quite popular, with people waiting in line even on weekdays. However, with the peacefulness of the forest, even waiting can be pleasant.

The golf course will open on the first of July, featuring an eighteen-hole course for golfers. Players will be charged $4.50 for eighteen holes, with additional charges for renting cars or pulling carts for golf bags.

Oak Mountain Park is also offering a heaping portion of nature for those who want to hike on the nature trails all around the 9,940 acre park. A trail from the picnic area leads to scenic Peavine Falls and continues along the crest of the mountain. The sturdiest hikers will want to trek to the pinnacle of Double Oak Mountain, towering 1,390 feet above the county's panorama.

Bicyclists can also tour the trails and the park area, following the nature trails wherever hikers can go. The park rents bikes by the hour, half-day, or day, and couples can even rent tandem bicycles built for two.

When mealtime comes, park visitors have quite a choice of places to eat. A food service area is located near the beach, with several concession snack spots in the vicinity. Jacques' Foothills Restaurant boasts gourmet cuisine high on Johnson Mountain above the beach area. Or for the do-it-yourselfers, picnic sites are plentiful in the park, and campsites offer tables as well.

As the largest state park in Alabama, Oak Mountain can justly state, "Welcome to the park that has it all!" With it spectrum of facilities and activities available, the park can be proud of its improvements, as well as Mother Nature's own blend of wildlife, wildflowers, and the out-of-doors.

VICTORY POEM
by Deputy Reed Smith

Now Red is a tough little guy
With determination as big as the sky.
He's a fighter and that's not all,
He has been like ole Archie carrying the ball.
He took a big sock on the chin,
His chances were like Daniel's in the lions den.
He took every punch, though some were low,
But he knew all the time his supporters would show.
The "News" came snooping and things did stir,
The peoples' vision they tried to blur.
They knocked him down and expected him to crawl,
From the Attorney General to the City Hall.
Now the election is over and he's on the trail,
Like the pony express carrying the mail.
He's still the Sheriff, but don't forget,
The price was high, he paid for it.
We thank you for your prayers and your support.
But, most of all, thank you for your VOTE.

Rabbit lover gives views

A rabbit lover we know brought this poem by the office and asked to have it published. (We'll give equal space to dog and cat lovers)

Neighbors are nice -- (They give friendly advice)
"You have nasty habits, Get rid of those rabbits!!"
We tell you now, because, somehow

Come what may You'll see the day
To have pets like us
That raise a fuss.
Our dogs run free to foul and howl
And our cats are loose
To scratch and scowl.
To own a rabbit
Is not our style --
Live like us,
A life worthwhile!"
Now, it may be better to own a setter

Or a kitty kat so sleek and fat.
But, our rabbits stay and we might say
To our neighbors true and our neighbors new:
"Our rabbits are never on the prowl
To choose your yard to dig and foul.
Our rabbits are always out of sight
Their beauty hidden - an unjust plight.
So keep your pets (if you must)
Just keep them out of sight from us!!"

Eighteen 4-Hers from all over Shelby County are busy working on foods exhibits, learning speeches, completing record books, and even barbequing chicken. The reason? The 4-H District Awards Programs scheduled to be held in Birmingham on July 11 and 12.

Having already won local and county events, these 4-H students have earned the right to participate in the district programs, says extension home agent Peggy Prucnal.

In the "breads" category, Valley student Shirley Chapman is readying a senior exhibit, and Jackie Joiner of Columbiana is preparing an exhibit for the junior division. Peggy Crim of Alabaster is planning a demonstration of baking bread, and an illustrated talk will be given by Debra Reilly of Valley School.

Louise Rooks of Chelsea will present an exhibit on dairy foods. Demonstrations on the same subject will be given by Jeannine Moore of Chelsea and Peggy Cox of Shelby.

Featured in the dress revue are Alabaster's Gwen Alexander in the senior division and Melissa McEwen of Wilsonville in the junior category.

Area students competing for honors as district champion in public speaking are Ann McEwen of Columbiana, senior, and Donna Dorrough of Chelsea, junior. In the boys' competition are county winners Steven King of Helena, senior, and junior division winner Joe Smith of Columbiana.

Chickenque contestants at the regional meet are Fourmile resident Melinda Hollis in senior competition and Steve Allison of Vincent as the county winner at the junior level.

Arrington graduates

John A. Arrington of Alabaster, a 14 year Army Veteran, has graduated from Golden Gate University in San Francisco with an A.A. degree in management.

A graduate of Prentice High School in Montevallo Arrington is stationed at Holloman Air Force Base in New Mexico, where he works with the Central Range Command Branch.

The Alabaster man is married and has two children. He is the son of Willie B. and Corene Arrington, also of Alabaster.

Dixie Rabbit Club sponsors show July 15

by Shelby Nivens

The newly formed Heart of Dixie Rabbit Club of Shelby County is sponsoring its first show this Saturday, June 15, at the Shelby County fair grounds. According to club secretary, Ann Hughes, judging of the rabbits will begin at 7:00 p.m. Club officials expect between 100 and 150 rabbits to be entered in this show by rabbit breeders from here in the county and from Birmingham and surrounding areas. The show will be a carrying cage show and is sanctioned with the American Rabbit Breeders Association.

The Heart of Dixie Rabbit Club is now a charter member of the American Rabbit Breeders Association. It was formed in February of this year and already has 27 active members, a big percentage of them being youth.

"Anyone interested in rabbits may join the club to learn more about them," says Mrs. Hughes, "You don't have lady from Chelsea became a rabbit owner because of her presence at the club's April meeting. A white New Zealand rabbit was donated to the club by Mr. Thomas Green of Harpersville to be given away at the meeting. Debbie Little of Chelsea owned no rabbit, but was visiting the club meeting with a friend. Her name was pulled from the hat, and Debbie became the proud owner of a pretty white bunny.

Debbie's rabbit is not old enough yet to be entered in Saturdays show but it will be old enough for the show the Heart of Dixie Club is planning for the fall. Mrs. Hughes says that a much larger show is planned for the fall with rabbits from several states competing.

Persons interested in the club or in entering rabbits in Saturdays show, should contact Ann Hughes at 822-3787 or club president, planned for the fall with Joe Winslett at 822-0066.

Mrs. Smith elected-- Farm group holds meeting

The Shelby County Farm Bureau held their quarterly directors meeting on June 3 at the county Farm Bureau Building. At the meeting Mrs. Claude Smith of Westover was elected as temporary chairman of the bureau women's committee.

Presided over by W. Royce Morris, the bureau enjoyed a covered dish supper at the meeting. The directors decided to set the Farm Bureau's annual meeting for August 5, 1974. Present at the directors meeting were the officers, directors, their wives, extension personnel, Farm Bureau Insurance agents and their wives, and the district field representative.

As the new chairman of the women's committee, Mrs. Smith will be promoting several new programs. She is planning a cotton fashion sewing show for county Farm Bureau women. Women who sew may enter by being a Farm Bureau member and over eighteen years of age. Several categories will be open for articles made of all-cotton or cotton blends.

County sewing winners will be judged and may enter the state contest on December 1 through 4 in Mobile. Prizes will be awarded in county and state contests. For further information on the Cotton Fashion Sewing Show contact Mrs. Claude Smith at 678-6994.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Mrs. Earl Childs wishes to express their deep gratitude to each friend, neighbor and loved one who extended countless acts of kindness to us during our recent bereavement.

We offer special thanks to Rev. Charles Stroud, pastor of First Baptist Church and to Tom Stoker, minister of music of the church for their sympathetic understanding expressed in words and music.

We shall always remain grateful.
Abe Childs, Earl and Don Gibson; Dwight, Dutch and Bryan McDonald; Myrtle Warren and Doris Rasco.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

As of this date I, Marvin R. Crowson and wife, Lyndol C. Crowson are no longer affiliated with Calera Bible Baptist Church and Christian School and are not liable for any of the debts made by church or school.

We have faith and fully believe in Evangelist Billy Graham.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our Father and Husband on Father's Day - June 16, 1974: James H. Barefield. God watched you as you suffered. He knew you had had your share. He gently closed your weary eyes and took you in His care. When the days are dark and lonely
Everything seems to go wrong
We seem to hear you whisper
Cheer up and carry on.
Each time we look at your picture
You seem to smile and say,
Don't grieve, I'm only sleeping
We'll meet again some day.

Sadly missed by his wife Mary Lou Barefield and daughters Janice Bowdon, Rhonda Sue Vaughan and Mary Kay Bailey.

Anglers active on Lay and Purdy

Weekend anglers met with general success last week in Shelby County. Forecasts of rain kept some from the water, but those who went to the water anyway found dry weather and good fishing.

Waxahatchee Creek

Ernest Armstrong at Armstrong's Camp reported that last Saturday was a good day for bass fishermen who caught many bass of the two to five pound size. Bass were being caught in the sloughs and deep points on artificial worms.

Armstrong continued that crappie fishing had been slow and that bream fishermen were meeting with fair success. Popping bugs were bringing the best results for bream.

Lake Shore

Bill Henke of LaCoosa Marina told the Reporter that several limit strings of bass were brought in over the weekend. The strings were comprised of bass of the small to medium size ranging to three and a half to four and a half pounds. Worms were bringing in the bass in the early morning. During the day they are moving to the deep holes. Some have been caught as deep as 25-30 feet.

A willowfly hatch helped bream fishermen over the weekend, according to Henke. The bream were hitting the top water on popping bug baits.

The report from Bozos camp is much the same as everywhere else. Small bass were doing well on worms. Stripe and crappie were being caught at night. Crappie were being caught in a depth of 12-18 feet of water. Bass are being caught in the weeds in the morning and off the points during the day.

The reports from Spring Creek and Camp Okomo were that several large strings of medium sized bass were brought in over the weekend.

Lake Purdy

The fishing scene at Lake Purdy in northern Shelby County has been good lately according to local anglers. Lake Purdy fishermen have been reporting that they have been successful in catching bass bream and crappie.

The bass are hitting well on the points. These fish have been doing best on plastic worms and water plugs during the daytime and at night on a jitterbug.

New moto cross brings thrills, spills

MOTO CROSS - These youthful motorcycle rider roar around the new Lakeside Moto Cross track last Sunday. The new Lakeside track is located in Shelby County just off of Interstate 65 at the Airport exit. A large crowd of spectators were on hand as the riders competed on the tortuous .7 mile track designed to test a rider's skill as well as his machine's speed. (Photos by Jerry Hamilton)

Moto-cross racing came to Shelby County last Sunday afternoon with the opening of the Lakeside moto-cross track south of Alabaster.

Moto-cross racing, a form of motorcycle racing where riders compete against each other on a tortuous winding course. Moto-cross racing is currently the biggest spectator sport in Europe. Crowds exceeding 100,000 are not uncommon on the European tracks. In recent years the sport has been gaining popularity in America.

Carman Crim, one of the developers of the track told the Reporter Thursday before the race that the new track is designed to test the skill of the riders and not just the speed of their machines.

The Lakeside track is approximately .7 of a mile. To use an old expression, the builders appear to have followed a snake through the grass when laying out the course. Along the circuit riders will encounter three jumps, one of them a cammel back or double jump. Other obstacles include off canter curves, a sand trap on a S-curve, a mud trap and a series of whoop-dee-doo's, or a series of parallel six-inch ditches.

Crim anticipates to have riders form several states running in the moto-cross events at Lakeside. He has scheduled to run races there every other Sunday.

The track is located just off I-65 at the airport exit south of Alabaster.

Florida camp hosts Little League boys

The Little League baseball organization reminds all boys who enjoy playing baseball that they may participate in the seventh annual Little League summer camp program.

The second session begins on June 30th and the final session on July 14th. Applications are still being accepted for all three sessions, according to Arnold S. White, Southern Regional Director.

Although baseball is emphasized, many other sports and other recreational activities are included in the daily schedule, including swimming, basketball, badminton, softball, etc. Instructors, working under Camp Director Walter Bowman, use all of the approved methods of teaching the skills of baseball. Pitching machines, pitching guides, batting tees, and areas designed to teach proper methods for sliding, running and throwing are used regularly. Every boy plays in a baseball game each day.

DWI drive continues

"A strong enforcement program against drinking drivers has figured significantly in a continuing decline in traffic deaths on Alabama highways during the first five months of this year", declared State Public Safety Director, Colonel E. C. Dothard.

Arrests by Troopers for Driving While Intoxicated have increased more than thirty percent over the same period last year, while traffic deaths have dropped from 341 last year to 281, injuries declined from 3,932 to 3,172, and accidents from 9,656 to 7,354. "We feel that the increased arrests have been an important factor in this reduction", Colonel Dothard said, "and I have instructed all Troopers to continue to take whatever action is necessary to remove the drinking driver from our highways."

"No enforcement program, however, can be any more effective", he continued, "than the support received from the courts, and I am again appealing to all court officials to carefully weigh these factors and refrain from reducing Driving While Intoxicated charges to lesser offenses."

Current state-wide figures show that less than sixty percent of those arrested for Driving While Intoxicated are convicted of the same charge, and in some courts, the conviction rate runs as low as 14%.

The Director said, "With our continued enforcement activities, and if the courts will support us by meting out strong penalties for those guilty of Driving While Intoxicated, we can experience a dramatic savings in life and human suffering by the end of the year."

McCarter named MV for UAB basketball

Alabaster basketball player Edward McCarter has been named by the University of Alabama in Birmingham as the most valuable basketball player of the 1973-74 season.

The five foot nine inch McCarter is a graduate of Thompson High School where he was named outstanding player. He attended the University of Montevallo during his first two years of college and then transferred to UAB in 1973 as a junior majoring in physical education. Last year he joined the UAB basketball team playing without a scholarship. During the 1973-74 season, McCarter was named permanent captain of the "Vulcans."

During his junior year, McCarter scored a total of 454 points or an average of 20.2 points per game. McCarter's highest scoring game was 31 points against Brewton Parker of Georgia.

Coach Bill Truss of the Vulcans had this to say about McCarter.

"McCarter showed a great deal of interest and desire to play ball. He was very emotional and felt the game as well as played it. He would be an asset to any team. He is a gentleman and a respectful player."

Coach Truss also named 1973-74 UAB player Michael Marcus also of Alabaster. Marcus played forward and guard and helped spark the team through some key situations during the season, Truss said.

Buxahatchee Club hosting beginners tournament

The Buxahatchee Country Club will be holding a beginners golf tournament Saturday, June 15, at 1 p.m. The club goal is to involve at least 25 new golfers in the tournament.

Novice golfers interested in participating in the tournament may call the club at 668-1845.

Free swimming and tennis facilities will be provided to the new golfers' families during the afternoon of the 15th.

MRS. WILLIAM DOUGLAS TROTTER
... formerly Judy Carol Nordan

Nordan, Trotter vows said

Judy Carol Nordan and William Douglas Trotter were married Saturday afternoon, June 1, at the Montevallo Presbyterian Church with Rev. John Sims officiating at the 2 o'clock ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Oscar Nordan, of Montevallo, and Mr. and Mrs. William Earl Trotter, of Eufaula.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an old-fashioned gown of ivory silk crepe. Tiny tucks and a wide ruffle enhanced the bodice, which had a wedding band collar and long bishop sleeves with fitted cuffs. A silk tapestry cummerbund adorned the natural waistline. The controlled skirt fell into a chapel length train. She wore a garland of fresh pink rosebuds and baby's breath in her hair and she carried pink rosebuds, daisies and baby's breath.

Mary Johnston, of Auburn and Montevallo, was maid of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. W. M. Perry, Carol Jones, both of Birmingham; Ann Nathews, Mrs. David Watson, Jane Watson and Judy Lien, all of Montevallo. They wore floor length gowns of pink floral embossed voile over pink taffeta and carried bouquets of white daisies intermingled with pink ribbons.

Mr. Trotter was his son's best man. Groomsmen were Dennis Trotter, of Eufaula; Clay Nordan, Michael Mayhall, and Gary Fuller, all of Montevallo; Michael Platt of Sylacauga, and Carmon Love, of Birmingham.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length gown of pink chiffon over taffets. The groom's mother was dressed in a pale green floor length gown with a pleated hand-painted skirt. Their flowers were matching cymbidium orchids.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Forbes House. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Art. Solomon, of Dothan, Mrs. Raymond Sykes, Jr., Birmingham, Billie Nordan, Abbeville, all cousins of the bride; Mrs. Lorraine Byrd, Mrs. James R. Edwards, Sally Sears, Kathy Brown, Debbie Pendleton, Courtney Parker, Laurie Jean Orr, all of Montevallo. Mrs. James Hyche, of Montevallo kept the bride's book.

After a wedding trip, the couple will reside in Montevallo.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Pruitt of Rainesville, Ala., announce the arrival of a son born May 30. Young Jeremy Edward Pruitt weighed in at seven pounds and 15 ounces. His proud grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. Bob Pruitt, former residents of Four Mile, are sharing the joy a new baby brings into the family circle. Mr. Pruitt will be remembered as the beloved pastor of the Four Mile Baptist Church during their residence in Shelby County.

The First Baptist Church in Columbiana is about the busiest place we have heard anything about. An interesting brochure has been compiled by Rev. Charles Stroud and Tom Stoker listing the diversified program of activities now available at the "Good News Church". Bible study is on the agenda and recreational advantages are also available.

The Vacation Bible School closed Friday. Preceding the morning worship hour, the students presented a program and parents and friends had the opportunity of viewing the many handmade articles the children had on display and of hearing the result of the instruction given. Over 200 children were registered during the five day period.

The Bus Ministry, under the direction of Kenneth Walton, swung into action Sunday morning. There are three busses involved in this transportation program leaving no problem as far as getting to the church is concerned. A copy of the New Testament is given all who have no Bibles so that participation by everyone is possible.

A joint service will be held on the evening of June 16 at 7 p.m. at which time the Methodist and Nazarenes will join the Baptists in a song-fest. A program of selected gospel hymns will be presented by the Sanctuary Choir, directed by Tom Stoker, in addition to congregational participation.

A trip to Six Flags is scheduled for June 17. Over 60 young people have signed up for this one day cross country jaunt.

Should you be travelling through the Talladega National Park on June 20-22, you will likely meet many girls in grades 4-6 from the Good News Church enjoying a two day camp. If you are interested in a reservation for this event - contact Freida Holcombe.

The highlight of the evening of June 23 will be hearing my good friend - Morgan Brian, prominent attorney from New Orleans speak in the church at the 7 o'clock worship hour.

Mrs. Clyde Aycock and her daughter Mary, have left Columbiana to join Mr. Aycock in Springfield Illinois where he is engaged in construction work. The Aycocks have a beautiful home on the River near Shelby. They will return in September when school bells ring so that Mary may re-enter SCHS.

Wave the flag on Flag Day, June 14

by Mildred White Wallace

Millions revere our banner of red, white and blue. Many have died to preserve that for which it stands, freedom and justice. To those who love life and covet the opportunity to carve their own destiny, our Flag offers a representative form of government based on the dignity of the individual. To the dictator, it is an unbearable thorn in his side. Putting it in plain English it is the unconquered, flag of the United States of America.

Friday, June 14, we Americans will have a chance to show our appreciation of the "Stars and Stripes" and all it stands for by displaying it from our homes and businesses and along our highways.

The nation behind this flag is not without its share of problems. But the U.S. has held and still maintains a status of world leadership, enhanced by the highest of living standards, without resorting to dictatorial measures. Basic to America's success has always been the undercurrent of her compassion and goodwill for other people in many parts of the world. The kind of spirit that brings, sometimes a tear to the eye, when we hear our little Kindergarten friends lip their way through the Pledge of Allegiance, or watch our flag gently ripple against a cerulean blue sky. If this spirit could just be harnessed and directed into proper channels on a global basis, mankind would never again have cause to fear what future years might bring.

Unfurl it proudly - Long may it wave!

JENNIFER LYNN CRADER
...engaged to Harvey Prater, Jr.

Miss Jennifer Crader to wed Mr. Prater

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Crader of Columbiana announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Jennifer Lynn to Harvey Prater Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Prater also of Columbiana.

Grandparents of the bride-elect are Mr. and Mrs. Newman Stone of Columbiana and C. L. Terry and the late Mrs. C. L. Terry of Sheridan, Ark.

The prospective bridegroom is the grandson of Mrs. Fred Prater and the late Mr. Prater of Fenton, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. John Jackson of Hamilton.

The wedding will be solemnized on the evening of June 28 at seven-thirty o'clock in the Mountain View Baptist Church.

A reception will follow in the church parlors.

All friends and relatives are requested to be present.

Your friends and mine

by Mildred White Wallace
Mamye Miller Horn, organist, and Mary Mims Curtis, vocal soloist, honored local composers Mildred White Wallace and Clarice White Luck Sunday morning at the eleven o'clock worship hour in the United Methodist Church when they presented their sacred number titled: "Thy Will Be Done" now in its second printing according to news received from their publisher.

Mrs. Warren Duke (Pat Brown) continues ill at Carraway Hospital in Birmingham but is reported to be somewhat improved after undergoing surgery.

Friends of James Moore will regret to learn that he has been painfully injured while working at his job in Bessemer. He is suffering from painful burns he received from a live wire and is hospitalized in Carraway General Hospital in Bessemer.

Mr. and Mrs. Sims (Cindy Robertson) and their little daughter of Guntersville, were week end guests of the Sims-Robertson families during the past week end. We had the pleasure of a curbside chat with Cindy and she brightened our day by stating that although they had moved to Guntersville, they "knew exactly what was going on in Shelby County" as they read the Reporter each week "from cover to cover".

It is good to have our collegiates home for the summer. Had the pleasure of a chat with Jim Davis Jr. today. He will spend the summer months with us and return to Auburn University in Sept.

Glad to report to the friends of Mrs. Lessie Nivens that she returned from several weeks stay in Shelby Memorial last Sunday. She is convalescing satisfactorily in her home in Columbiana.

Two pretty and efficient secretaries have been added to Tommy Snowden's clerical staff for the summer. They are Kitty Gill of Harpersville and Gay Humphries of Vincent.

If you are looking for Keith Franks or Dickey Porter this week, you will have to go to Troy where they are our representatives at Boys State.

Mr. and Mrs. Guerdon Whims (Dorothy Mott) and their children, Debbie and Dean of Detroit, are the guests of Judge and Mrs. Conrad M. Fowler.

Dr. and Mrs. John Martin and family of Auburn were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Elliott. Mrs. Martin will be remembered as June Luttrell, and her friends will recall that she and John were the first couple to be married in the United Methodist Church after it was moved to its present location.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Parrish are enjoying a cross-country vacation extending through Tennessee and Kentucky.

Phone call just in: "Any news from those Tennis Courts that received approval last year?" Calera, Montevallo and Helena, I understand have completed their courts and are enjoying them." - Members of the Young Men's Club tell me they have offered to pay for the wire fence enclosure - and are still hoping for action from the powers that be.

Our comment is that unless we get busy and provide adequate recreation facilities for our people - we can't expect them to remain here.

Everybody knows: "All work and no play will make Jack a dull boy. Let's not drag along further on this project which should have been completed months ago - before the material went up. Money could possibly have been saved had prompt action been taken on this project.

Columbiana truly needs these young and progressive citizens and certainly no further delay on an approved project should go unexplained.

Procrastination can sometimes prove more costly than prompt action. M.W.W.

Correct. Insurance to protect furs, jewelry, coin and stamp collections, artworks and sporting goods usually costs considerably less than 1% of value. Such "floaters policies" cover loss, theft or accidental damage, both on and off the premises.

Wording gives wrong idea

A matter of wording in last week's Reporter gave the wrong impression, according to Tom Fore of Columbiana. Fore was a speaker at the rally for candidate Bill Thompson. The Reporter said he had always worked for Red Walker. Fore says that what he really meant was that he had worked for Red Walker as a deputy for only a short time.

News--25 years ago

by Mildred White Wallace
Exactly 25 years ago, June 14, 1949, at the Twilight Hour -- Chimes rang in Columbiana from the dome of the courthouse. While looking for and compiling material concerning events which occurred a quarter of a century ago, we found a very beautiful penpoint picture of Columbiana on this date written by Clarice White Luck in recognition and appreciation for this historic event.

The first Twilight Concert ever presented in Columbiana was made possible by the installation of chimes in the courthouse dome. Mrs. Luck wrote up the event and allowed us to publish it. We do not--as a rule--waste much time attempting to turn back the clock to the Land of Used-To-Be However, after re-reading this article, we found in our files, we thought it just might be a good idea to bring back one Yesterday. The day the Chimes Rang in Columbiana as Mrs. Luck visualized it.

At the time Mrs. Luck wrote this article, she had concluded her secretarial duties in her husband's law office and was homeward bound. We reprint the story, "When the Chimes Rang in Columbiana" for those of you who often speak of the "good old days" and find it difficult to adjust to the accelerated tempo of these more turbulent times, hoping you will enjoy the memorial flashback into the "days that were".

M.W.W.

When the chimes rang in Columbiana

by Clarice White Luck
On June 14, 1949, at Twilight Time like a peaceful benediction there came floating from the dome of our courthouse the heavenly melody and words of The Lord's Prayer. This contribution to the religious, cultural, and social life marked a new order for Columbiana -- our home town!

No, there is nothing unique or startling concerning mechanical devices as a channel for music and words. Nothing is surprising about radio, television -- not now -- not in 1949. But there is something unusual about the Twilight Hour of Tuesday, June 14. In Columbiana on this day the Chimes rang.

As we walked from the friendly little grocery store, after performing the routine household duties in that part of town, chatting casually with friends, one among them who had brought us pink silk parasols when we were in the far away little girl stage of existence -- and on through the intervening years had continued to bring the sunshine of his loyal friendship -- even to the third generation. Certainly we could not pass this kindly gentleman by without a chat. Standing with this cherished friend, at this very moment, the Chimes filled the air with the immortal: "Our Father Who Art in Heaven" hushed was the chatter. On down the street the people walked, then stopped, and with heads bowed in reverence listened as the singer continued: "Thy Kingdom Come, Thy Will Be Done", etc.

Groups of men stood in silence. Business men, professional men paused along their busy ways. One listener remarked, "It is beautiful, isn't it?" Two little boys forgot their play and ran eagerly toward the courthouse fascinated with the message of song. Tired, hot and laboring men paused to come up the long winding stairway in the courthouse that led on and upward toward the source of the refreshing restfulness of reassurance in song. One man lingered at our office door and said, "No, I don't go to Sunday School and church much. I am usually out late and am not up early enough on Sunday morning to go", etc. His explanations ending in a somewhat remorseful sigh.

A lawyer bending over his law books deep in study and contemplation seemed to receive a new calm, hopeful spirit of the solution of all earthly problems enfolded in the dynamic, "Thine is the Kingdom and the Power and the Glory Forever."

Various citizens stopped to shake hands with the far sighted Mayor and Jimmy Harrison and Olen Jackson and their co-workers who had labored many hours in the heat of the courthouse balcony in installing the chimes. They were happy in the result of their work and after the last strains died away, one little miss said, "I have never felt as I did this afternoon. Mother and I just sat still and listened. I was sorry when they stopped playing."

Our colored friends living near the Southern Depot told us that their children stopped from their play and ran into their homes and said, "Come out here with us where the angels are singing."

What had happened? Someone said, "I wondered why I was so affected, and then, all at once, I knew. We, all of us, every single one of us, at The Twilight Hour in our beloved Columbiana were saying TOGETHER, "OUR FATHER".

READY TO BUILD 58 NEW HOMES - Paving machinery completes the paving project in the new sector of Chandalar South in Pelham, as 58 lots are opened for building new houses. The new area will include recreational facilities for its residents. (Reporter photo by Rick Moore)

At Chandalar South--

New homes are a-building

New housing starts seem to be down across the nation, but Shelby County is once again bucking a national trend.

Among the new housing developments that are forging ahead is the Chandalar South development in Pelham.

Developer W.M. Humphries is opening up the second sector of Chandalar South, completing the street paving this week.

The development is now ready for homebuilders to start to work. Development cost for the second sector is approximately $150,000, according to Humphries' spokesmen.

In addition to houses in the development, there will be recreational facilities including a large pool with covered cabana, two lighted tennis courts, a badminton court, a basketball goal and a putting green.

The recreation facilities will cost about $60,000 to install.

The first sector of Chandalar South has 71 lots, and virtually all of them have been developed. The second sector has 58 lots, varying in size. They are about 100' by 140' to 100' by 150'.

The controls on building are very strict in the development and the homes in the new sector will be the same type construction as in the first sector. Rustic and contemporary design, featuring wood, cedar board, moss rock and glass, are among the favorite building materials.

The Humphries Parade Home will be built in the new sector and will be open for the annual Parade in August. The Parade is sponsored by the Birmingham Association of Homebuilders.

PATRON'S PLAQUE - W.M. Humphries of Pelham receives a patron's plaque for his contributions to the Shelby County YMCA 1974 membership drive.

County treasure hunters are finding 'pot of gold'

by Willard Harrison

Gold bullion in Valleydale? Buried treasure in Pea Ridge? Confederate cannon in Alabaster? Hard as this is to believe, Shelby County is loaded with treasure and historic artifacts, according to the owner of the county's and state's only metal detector sales company.

"Shelby County has more buried treasure, coins, and Civil War hardware than any county in the state," claims Glen Wade, owner of G and B Detector Sales in Alabaster. "And Alabama was the richest state in the Confederacy. As the last state to fall to the Union, Alabama is the final resting place of many a Confederate family's possessions."

Wade's detector sales company has only been operating for a month, but Wade says that in that time the shop has been a gathering place for treasure enthusiasts. One of his frequent visitors is Sam Ellis, a school teacher who has only been a metal hunter for two months. Ellis told the Reporter that in that time he has found 1,600 coins in the county, not counting foreign coins and jewelry items. Ellis is anxious to dig up more valuables now that school is out, allowing him to spend more time than weekends at his hobby.

"Treasure hunting," says Wade, "is the fastest-growing hobby around. And it gives a return in money as well as in health, since it is an outdoor activity." He points out the growing number of treasure magazines crowding the news stands, plus the fact that even the biggest mail order companies are selling metal detectors. Retail stores all over the country are adding various models to their lines of merchandise.

Treasure hunting is also a growing hobby in this area. Not only is there a store to prove it, but there is also an area-wide treasure club forming in Birmingham. Wade notes that the enthusiasts are not primarily in the hobby for financial gain, but for the excitement of digging up and owning a piece of history. "The lure of buried treasure," he adds, "brings with it a love for one's heritage."

Although detection and sale of old coins is the mainstay of the hobby, serious treasure hunters are after a more specific link with the county's past. Many of the hobbyists specialize in Civil War history and the events that occurred in Shelby County. Some people focus on antebellum days for their "finds," and others learn their history from whatever artifact they dig up.

History is truly a part of the hobby, according to Wade. Some people buy detectors and find nothing, since they have no idea where to look. He explains, "For every hour we spend in the field hunting for metal, it takes four hours in the library researching a location." Wade adds that a serious treasure hunter combs libraries, local records, and state archives for clues about where to find coins, family jackpots, and relics.

The War Between the States left an indelible mark on Shelby County. The county was a major producer of iron and munitions, and coal mining was already a major industry long before the war. During the war, Wilson's raiders made their famous march through the county, looting and burning everything of strategic importance.

Wilson and the Yankee troops marched into the county, destroying the major ironworks and generally terrorizing the populace. Wade says that for two days the Yankees and the Rebels battled on the Cahaba River. The people buried their valuables, concealed their cannon, and fled in the onrush of the enemy marauders.

Many family fortunes were not recovered. Family traditions tell of lost treasures buried in back yards and on farm yards. Wade tells of Confederate cannons buried deep beneath the county landscape. He tells stories on tons of gold bullion buried near Valleydale as the Yankees marched into the county, adding that this story can be substantiated by written documents in state archives.

One begins to wonder if Shelby County is so supposedly rich in Civil War relics and buried family jackpots, why haven't they been found? Oh ho ho, but they have, according to Wade. It seems the treasure hunters are so publicity shy that they make Howard Hughes look like the town crier. In fact, if their finds were publicized, they would stand to lose all they had worked for.

Wade says that in many cases, treasure hunters work for weeks to locate something valuable, only to have someone claim it. After long and costly court battles, the finder is generally the keeper, even though he may only retain a fraction of it after court costs. Another reason for such confidentiality is that if it was known that a person had thousands of dollars worth of gold or silver in his possession, he would be the target of thieves.

This underground secrecy is best seen, or rather not seen, in the county's professional treasure hunters. Wade claims that he knows of six individuals in Shelby County who make a living by doing nothing else but locating treasure. So secret is their operations, says Wade, that most of their neighbors don't know of their activities.

He says that these professional hunters use many tricks to avoid detection. They drive the most inconspicuous trucks and run-down cars, and many live in very modest homes. They spend long hours researching a potential site, and plan for weeks before actually looking the spot over. Wade told the Reporter that these pros often work in disguises when they finally go there in person. They might be dressed as a surveyor, telephone man, a meter reader, or any other inconspicuous role.

When the professional treasure hunter recovers a jackpot or something of great value, Wade claims that they do not even leave a hole after they dig. And if they remove a board from an old house, they replace it with the original nail.

COUNTY BONANZA -- Treasure hunters around Shelby County are unearthing hundreds of rare coins. Recently these coins were discovered with a metal detector. Note the four silver dollars found in Camp Branch.

Wade affirms that if they only find two good locations, they could be financially "fixed for life." They can sell enough coins to live on, peddling them a few at a time in New Orleans, New York, or other cities.

"Only last week, a $200 penny was found in Westover," asserts Wade, "and 900 in coins was found in an old post hole in Pea Ridge." He readily admits that he cannot supply any names or photos as proof, and that treasure hunters will immediately deny that they have found anything valuable. He alludes to fabulous hoards of coins found in Montevallo, Brierfield, and many long-gone communities. But these he refused to discuss in detail, since secrecy is one of the treasure hunter's first concerns.

Where are the best places to find hidden treasure in Shelby County? Wade recommends church grounds and schoolyards, where a person with a metal detector can find enough old coins to make it worth their while. Civil War battlegrounds and old houses are always a source of interesting coins, relics, and metal jewelry. Although metal detectors cost a good bit, from $75 to $300, Wade claims they pay for themselves after a few weekends of foraging.

But treasure and valuables buried in Shelby County? If it strains the imagination, there is little wonder. Nevertheless, it is documented fact that Shelby County was deeply involved in the Civil War. There are buildings over a hundred years old still standing, and ruins of homes, schools, and industries. So if you don't believe such tall tales, we can hardly blame you. But if your next-door neighbor goes out dressed as a surveyor, now you'll know why.

A CASE OF THE PAST -- Shelby County's history is on display at G and B Detector Sales in Alabaster. From guns and rings, padlocks, Union bullets, to old bottles and cannon chains.

Littleton speaks to Rotarians

"Alabama's legislature passed more legislation during the 1973 session than any other legislature in the 50 states", State Senator Obie Littleton told members of the Montevallo Rotary Club recently.

"The 1973 legislature faced more controversial legislation than ever before, but in spite of this, it passed a record number of bills", according to the Chilton County lawmaker.

Littleton, who won renomination to the state senate in the first primary begins his second term next January. He represents Shelby, Chilton, Coosa and parts of Talladega and Jefferson counties.

In looking to the next legislature that will convene next May, Littleton predicted that the state's lawmakers will face the proposal to hold annual sessions of the legislature. Littleton indicated he would probably be in favor of such a change.

Other topics that are expected to be top issues of the 1975 sessions, according to the senator, include a toll road for the state, prison reform, changes in the ethics bill, and a proposal to abolish the filibuster.

Littleton indicated he would probably be in favor of these proposals except abolishing the filibuster.

The lawmaker stated that he is opposed to pledging state funds in support of expanding the state docks. Littleton expressed the belief that the docks should be self supporting.

Who dog-napped Bo-Bo?

by Patsy Ross

There's nothing more heart-rending than the sight of children mourning a loved, family pet. I should know; my children are mourning, and so am I. I believe we could accept the fact, if our little German Shepherd puppy, 'Bo-Bo' had gotten run over by a car, or had died suddenly from unknown reasons. But, we can't accept what really DID happen; he simply disappeared. Or, maybe it wasn't so 'simple' after all.

The fact is, the last time he was seen, he was at the end of our driveway, (on Smokey Road, near the Shelby Co. Airport), being chased by an unknown boy, and with another boy trying to coax him into his car. When my son suddenly appeared, coming home for lunch, the two boys swiftly sped away. Whether they came back later and picked up our Bo-Bo, we don't know. We only know he's gone; vanished, and he's never done that before, in his few months of life.

We had Bo-Bo with us for less than a year. He was a beautiful, brown and black puppy with a black nose. He had a cute way of crinkling up the end of his nose when you petted him, that made him look as though he were snickering.

We had him just long enough to grow to love him and need him, and it did my heart good to see him running and playing with my children, or trying to catch fire-flies at dusk. He was living up to all our expectations, and he had a great deal to live up to; he was taking the place of our last, old family pet, that died of old age and heart worms.

We started out early to make sure Bo-Bo would be healthy. I took him, just a few weeks ago, to the clinic for his distemper and rabies vaccinations and was in the process of giving him, daily, heart worm preventive medicine. The large bottle is still three-fourths full; three cans of dog food are stacked under the sink, but, where is Bo-Bo?

WHO could possibly take a loved pet from someone's yard? Did someone want him because he had no dog, or because Bo-Bo was so pretty?

Or, did someone take him 'just for a joke', just to have something to do, one dull afternoon?

Is he well fed, and watered? Or, was he dumped out beside the lonely road to starve, when the fun wore off?

If only the boys who might do such a thing would realize the heartache we've gone through. If only they could see my children and me, with drooping faces and tear-filled eyes, and hear 'Bo-Bo's' name echoing from our lips! Surely they would have a change of heart. Surely the good would outweigh the bad. Maybe they would be prompted to load him up in the car again, and bring him home to us. We'd take him! No questions asked!

Or, if by chance, he's lost, and you see a brown and black puppy who answers to the name of 'Bo-Bo', please call and tell us. We offer a reward for his return. Just call either of these numbers, PLEASE! 663-2356, or 668-0374.

You'll make a family happier than you can imagine.

OUR 1974 DODGE COLT GOT 33.7 MILES PER GALLON IN THE USAC "MILES-PER-GALLON SHOWDOWN"!
(COLT BEAT VEGA & MUSTANG II.)

In the recent USAC "Miles-Per-Gallon Showdown," a 1974 Dodge Colt got 33.7 miles per gallon. The Colt was equipped with the standard overhead-cam 1600 cc. four-cylinder engine and four-speed manual transmission. The mileage test, conducted in the Arizona-Southern California area, covered a distance of 972 miles at an average speed of 53 mph.

Also included in the "MPG Showdown" were a Chevrolet Vega and a Ford Mustang II (also equipped with four-cylinder engines and manual transmissions). Dodge Colt got substantially better gasoline mileage than either the Vega or Mustang II. All of the cars were driven by non-professional drivers. Of course, the mileage you get depends on many factors including how and where you drive and the condition of your vehicle. See your nearby Atlanta Dodge Colt Dealer for complete details on the results of the USAC "Miles-Per-Gallon Showdown."

Curfew laws upheld by court test case

Curfew laws, designed to keep youngsters off the streets at night, have been around almost 100 years. But only recently have the courts been taking a close look at their validity. Does a city have the legal authority to put limits on anybody's freedom of movement?

The basic idea has generally been approved. One youth, arrested under curfew law, challenged it as a form of discrimination against younger people. But the court pointed out that minors are lawfully singled out with regard to everything from marrying to driving, from attending school to buying liquor.

Upholding the law, the court said: "Children are under recognized disabilities in many respects. Because of their lack of mature judgment, they are subject to continuing supervision until they become of age."

Nevertheless, a curfew law may be struck down if it is too broad. Another case involved a curfew that banned all minors from the streets after 10 p.m., with almost no leeway for exceptional circumstances.

In a court test, the judge noted that this law could punish youngsters coming home from evening classes, from work at the library, from school games or dances, even from church activities.

Finding the law invalid, the court said it violated "the right of every person to enjoy and engage in lawful and innocent activity."

In one recent case, police booked the father of a 16-year-old boy for "allowing" him to be out after the curfew hour.

The court conceded that it was constitutional to punish the parent in such a situation. However, it seems the father had been told - and had honestly believed - that his son was spending the night at the home of a friend. Dismissing the charge against the father, the court said he could not have "allowed" conduct of which he was not even aware.

Man awarded store in record lawsuit

In the longest civil court case in Shelby County history, G.D. Jones of Montevallo was awarded full ownership of Whaley Furniture Company from Morris E. Padgett of 404 Poinciana Drive, Birmingham.

The case continued from June 3 to June 14 as testimony from several witnesses was heard by a jury and by Circuit Judge Kenneth I. Ingram.

G.D. Jones was on the witness stand for three full days, which county officials think is a record for a witness.

Testimony in the case showed that Jones and Padgett had entered into an agreement about 12 years ago for control of the furniture store. Jones managed the store for ten years. He testified that Padgett abruptly changed the locks on the store two years ago and took steps to foreclose a mortgage he held on the Jones home.

Jones sued Padgett on multiple counts. Jones presented his side of the testimony on the first week of the trial. The Padgett witnesses were called to testify last week. In all, about six testified for Jones, and about 10 witnesses were on call for Padgett.

Soon after Claude Morrison, an accountant, testified, steps were taken to settle the case. The matter never went to the jury, but was finally settled by agreement between the two parties, and the jury was dismissed last Friday. G.D. Jones took possession of the furniture store on the same day.

Members of the jury were Inez Eva Lee, Chelsea; Peggy Stark Wilson, Helena; T.B. Nabors, Jr., Saginaw; Dorothy Wood Hume, Columbiana; Rufus Floyd Turner, Jr., Rt. 1, Sterrett; J.O. Bonner, Jr., Rt. 1, Harpersville; Hazel Williamson, Rt. 1, Sterrett; Lloyd F. Sims, Rt. 1, Harpersville; Mrs. Troy Lawley, Rt. 1, Alabaster; Lor-

New community planned in north Shelby location

Shelby County will have an entire new town within the next seven to ten years.

Long accustomed to astonishing news stories, Shelby County residents heard another one Tuesday, with the announcement that "Riverchase" is ready for development.

Riverchase is a 3,000 acre town planned by Harbert Construction Corporation of Birmingham and the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.

More than half of the community will be located in Shelby County and the other part will be across the Cahaba River in Jefferson County. The property is located on both sides of Highway 31 and both sides of the Cahaba River.

Riverchase is a total planned community with very comprehensive covenants in the deeds, which will in effect establish zoning. Developed land will be sold to individuals for construction of homes, apartments, shopping areas, recreation and golf courses, condominiums, etc.

Provision for churches and schools is made in the total plan.

J. Henry Smith, chairman of Equitable's Board, said in announcing the project Tuesday, "Riverchase will offer its dwellers a unique opportunity; a place to live, work, shop and play - a town dedicated to the preservation of its natural surroundings."

John Harbert, president of the construction company bearing his name added, "Every dwelling and building will be carefully blended with its natural surroundings. No strip commercial property will be allowed along U.S. 31. This major road will be beautified and maintained as a tree-lined parkway, thereby enriching the lives of the people who live and work in Riverchase."

The land planner for Riverchase is Charles A. Franzman, partner of Harland Bartholomew and Associates of Atlanta. His other projects include the Princess Hotel in Acapulco, and Peachtree World of Tennis in Atlanta. The golf course is being designed by Joe Lee, who designed the golf courses at Disney World and championship courses elsewhere.

Johnson Rast & Hays Company of Birmingham has been selected as exclusive real estate agents for the new community. The land will be provided with major parkways and utilities.

Landowners within or immediately adjacent to Riverchase are South Central Bell with 57 acres, Baptist Medical Center with 41 acres, Western Electric Company with 50 acres and Harbert Construction Corporation with 60 acres.

The development will be the largest single real estate development ever undertaken in Shelby County. It is well financed and is expected to be a half-billion dollar project.

NEAR NEW TOWN - Harbert Construction Company's Shop on Valleydale Road will soon see tremendous building activity as plans get underway this week for the construction of a 3,000 acre town on adjoining property. The new town, Riverchase, is being developed by Harbert Construction Company and by Equitable Life Assurance. The darkened area of the map (below, right) shows the location and extent of Riverchase, which will be on both sides of the Cahaba River in Jefferson and Shelby Counties.

Charity collects $6,521 in county

Collections reached a total of $6,561.98 in this year's March of Dimes campaign in Shelby County.

Mrs. Jane Ann Swearingen, county campaign chairman made the announcement Friday. It is thought to be an all time high in collections.

Mrs. Swearingen said that the Mother's March was responsible for $2,792.08 of the total. Business and labor contributed $300. Schools and college contributions were $1,333.75. Teen and college drives were $535.50. The many teenagers who participated in the 15-mile Walkathon were responsible for bringing in a total of $2,024.40.

Mrs. Swearingen expressed her deep appreciation for the cooperation she received from all those who worked in the campaign. She said, "I am very grateful for all the help everyone offered in the campaign. It was through the great efforts of many, many people that this drive was such a success. I wish I could personally thank all those who gave their time to help this cause for wiping out birth defects."

TOO COLD AT THE BOTTOM - Skin diver Billy Price of the West Shelby Rescue Squad emerges from the water of a flooded lime quarry in Saginaw Monday afternoon after being forced to the surface of the lake by cold temperatures at the bottom. Price was searching for the body of Emerson Norwood who drowned while he was swimming in the quarry Monday afternoon. Price lacked a full diver's suit to insulate his body against the cold temperatures at the 100 foot depth of the quarry.

TRANQUIL LAKE MASKS GRIM DETAIL - Rescue workers conduct underwater and dragging operations in the search for the body of a drowning victim. Young Emerson Norwood drowned in the flooded lime quarry located in Saginaw east of Highway 31. Norwood was swimming with friends when the accident happened.

Youth drowns in quarry

by Rick Moore

A summer swimming trip ended in disaster for young Emerson Norwood of Harpersville last Monday afternoon. The 21 year old Norwood and his friend Ricky Cunningham of Alabaster decided to ward off the afternoon heat by going for a swim.

Cunningham said later that the two considered going to the new Oak Mountain lake but opted instead to go swimming in a closer - and dangerous - rock quarry located east of Highway 31 in Saginaw.

By mid afternoon approximately 20 youngsters were swimming in the cool waters of the flooded rock quarry. An old-fashioned rope swing offered a special thrill for those brave enough to swing out over the water and then let go of the rope.

All was tranquil at the peaceful setting of the quarry Monday afternoon. Then disaster struck.

Ricky Cunningham remembered afterward that Norwood was swimming about 60 feet from the shore when he began calling for help. At first, Cunningham said, everyone thought that Norwood was joking. By the time a swimmer came to rescue him, Norwood had disappeared below the surface of the water.

Cunningham ran a mile and a half to a nearby house and called the police.

Alabaster policeman Larry Roland received the call at 2:52 p.m. When Roland arrived on the scene, the victim had been under for 15 minutes.

Other law officers arriving on the scene were Alabaster policeman Sonny Davenport and Deputy Sheriff Louis Cosby.

The West Shelby, Harpersville and Shelco Number One rescue units were alerted to the scene. Billy Price, a diver from the West Shelby unit started an underwater search, but was unable to continue because of the cold temperature at the bottom of the quarry. Dragging operations followed and Norwood's body was recovered about 5:50 p.m.

The quarry is located on private property owned by SI Lime, formerly Longview Lime Company. A company spokesman said that repeated attempts by the company have been made over the years to close the pits to swimming, but the warnings have been ignored.

Boys found 'scared' after night ordeal

An all night search by more than half a hundred rescue squad members and volunteers ended Tuesday morning when Spivey Hope and Dewey Carden, Jr., of the newly organized Lay Lake Rescue Squad found the object of the massive search, Troy and Shawn Dennis.

The two boys, Troy, seven and Shawn ten were reported missing from their home on Pea Ridge by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R.H. Dennis at approximately 9:45 Monday night.

Shelco Unit Number One was called to aid and direct the search at 10:15. At 10:30, the recently activated Pea Ridge Fire Department joined the search. At 11 the West Shelby Rescue Unit was called out.

At midnight Monday, Montevallo Police Chief Troy Kirkland and Sgt. Mickey Kirkland on horse back began searching fire lanes in the Pea Ridge area.

The search was temporarily halted at 5 a.m. Tuesday but began again at 7 a.m. when the Harpersville Rescue Squad and the Lay Lake Rescue Squad travelled across the county to join the volunteers and other organized units.

It was 9:45 Tuesday morning, twelve hours after the boys were first reported missing, that Hope and Carden, riding in a pick-up truck, came upon Troy and Shawn. The boys were walking down a road nearly two miles north of the Boothton Ford, approximately twelve miles from their home.

When reunited with their father both boys admitted that they were "scared" after their overnight ordeal. "They were so glad to see their father, they each grabbed one of his legs and wouldn't let go for a matter of minutes," according to Doug Ballard, Jr., Chief of Shelco Unit One.

According to reports, Joe Allen, a former employee of Dennis who is in the landscape

PICKING THE DECOR - Crawford Interiors of Birmingham was chosen to do the furnishing of the new Montevallo city library. Looking over upholstery samples are (sitting, l to r) Mrs. Albert Scott and Mrs. Mary Alice Ballantine of the city library board, and Mrs. Mary Alice Baker of the state library service. Standing are Montevallo councilman J. D. Holsomback, Mrs. Cecile Leonard, county librarian, and Robert Dent of Crawford Interiors.

Library near completion

Montevallo's new library is nearer completion now that a bid has been accepted for furnishings. The city library board was awarded $6,500 by the state public library service to help complete the new library located in the depot in the city park.

The winning bid of $6,392.32 was submitted by Crawford Interiors of Birmingham. Their representative, Robert Dent estimated a delivery time of four to eight months of the shelving furniture, tables, cabinet, and other furnishings.

Present at the opening of the bids on Friday, June 14 were state, county, and city library representative. Mrs. Mary Alice Baker, business manager of the Alabama Public Library Service, was joined by Mrs. Cecile Leonard, director of the county library board. Representing the Montevallo library board were Mrs. R.E. Ballentine and Mrs. Albert Scott. City councilman J.D.

Holsomback was present, as liaison between the library board and the council.

Holsomback took the group to the depot where work is progressing well ahead of schedule. The paneling of the room is completed and the ceiling is being lowered. The Montevallo Jaycees have taken the project of installing the lights. The red and black carpet has arrived and will be put in place when more interior work is finished.

In choosing the colors of the room, the library board is leaning toward red with walnut wood accents. The board has not yet decided whether to have matching chairs for children and adults, or whether to have some with vinyl upholstery and some all wood. Holsomback said that when the depot was moved a little over a year ago, the library and recreation hall project was considered a four-year project. However with all of the progress on the outside and interior, the depot appears much closer to completion than expected. Already the portion containing recreation facilities has seen use in play productions, informal classes, and other activities.

By all indications, the library may well have seen as much use in one year more.

Sparkman sees no radical change

"I do not see any radical change in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee," Senator John Sparkman said today in response to a question about Committee operations when the Senator takes over next January.

In an interview with Phil Smith, Washington Correspondent for the Huntsville Times and the Mobile Press-Register, broadcast over Southern radio stations this weekend, Sparkman described the Members of the Committee as "individual members who have their individual views."

At the same time he paid tribute to the work of Sen. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) who will retire as Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Reportedly the two youngsters spent the night in Allen's car. Shortly after sunrise, according to reports, Allen let the boys out of the car in the general area of Boothton Ford. The two boys then began walking home and were found by Hope and Carden.

At press time no charges had been filed.

The Harpersville, West Shelby and Shelco One units joined the search for the two boys only four hours after participating in efforts to recover the body of a Harpersville man from a water filled quarry near Saginaw.

Victory Poem Phase II

Now Red IS a tough little guy,
With court cases like a Private Eye.
He marched his opponent off to jail,
but friends were there to go his bail.
But one of his victims is going to fight, to prove what he knows is right.
His spirit high, his blood pressure too, worried his job would soon be through.
He did little favors like letting people out, to win support strong and stout.
The News came to find out, what it was all about,
to show the truth with out a doubt!
They stayed with what was right and best,
even through the lie detector test.
The election is over I hate to say,
Those who were against him will have to pay.
He is still the Sheriff, you can't forget, and we will have to pay the price for it.
But don't you worry, because you see, another election there will be.

All eyes are turning to 1978 elections

by Don Wasson

Except for a Republican challenge in November which isn't expected to pull any great upsets, the elections are over.

On the Republican side, look for their lieutenant governor candidate, Birmingham attorney Don Collins, to pull a respectable vote, but far short of the margin needed to unseat Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley.

We went with Woods in the runoff, on the feeling that it was the masses of the people who had given him the first primary edge over Beasley and that it would be almost impossible to turn the people around.

But practically every special interest group in the state came to Beasley's campaign in the runoff and the victory rally here looked like a gathering of the Wallace clan. All the longtime Wallace supporters were there, some cabinet members showed up and all in all, it looked as though Alabama was off and running for another dynasty once George C. Wallace retires, goes to Washington, or whatever.

The troops came flocking to the Beasley banner because they were afraid of Woods, afraid of his truculence, his independence and his refusal to be moved, once his mind is made up. The special interests like a man presiding over the Senate who is more maneuverable, more tractable.

Right away, Beasley began sniping at Atty. Gen. Bill Baxley, accusing him of participating in the Woods campaign, which Baxley promptly denied, with feeling. So intense is the dislike these two certain opponents for the governor's chair (come 1978) that observers feel they will chop each other to bits before this term ends.

That would leave the governor's chair wide open and some of the people who could be considered as candidates are Woods, former Gov. Albert Brewer, Sen. Gene McLain of Huntsville who finished second in the Democratic primary this time, Montgomery Circuit Judge Richard Emmett, the "long and short" of Alabama politics - perennial candidates James E. "Big Jim" Folsom and Ralph "Shorty" Price, plus a few others.

It is quite possible, however, that the next governor will be someone we haven't even heard from as yet.

But there are four years between now and then and they should be fairly tumultuous years. The 1975 session of the Legislature, the first under the new reapportionment, promises to be a real sticky affair.

Organizing the body will be a real battle, with a fight for the speakership between Reps. Joe McCorquodale of Jackson and Bob Hill of Florence, with a few other wild cards in the race. McCorquodale has the edge, because he would appear to have the Wallace backing.

In the Senate, the organizational session during inauguration week will hold a clue as to what promises Beasley made to Wallace to secure all that Wallace help in the runoff. Although the governor himself did not openly endorse, it is a lead pipe cinch that many people in the Wallace camp put the word out for Beasley.

If Wallace prevailed, then Sen. Robert Wilson of Jasper might well head the Finance and Taxation Committee again and Sen. L. W. Noonan of Mobile could replace Sen. Jimmy Clark as chairman of Rules.

Sen. Joe Fine of Russellville is Beasley's choice for president pro tempore, a most important post if Wallace goes to Washington and Beasley moves up to governor.

But both the Senate and the House are full of new faces and they are going to be fiercely independent. A black minority will be wheeling and dealing in efforts to set up and control a coalition and other little power groups will be forming similar to the so-called "ad hoc" committee of the Senate in 1971 and 1975.

It promises to be a lively ball game.

Mid East peace may 'explode'

by Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The reason President Nixon made his swing through the Middle East was to bask in Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's success. The President wanted to share with Kissinger the credit for bringing peace to the Middle East.

But the strategy may backfire. For Arab leaders have made it clear to the President that they still expect Israel to withdraw from all Arab territory seized in 1967 and to establish a Palestinian state on Jordan's west bank. They are counting upon Nixon and Kissinger to persuade Israel to make these concessions.

I spoke to the top Israeli leaders during my own recent visit to the Middle East. I talked with both outgoing Prime Minister Golda Meir and incoming Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

They have absolutely no intention of giving up all the seized territory. The Israeli leaders said, in time, they might pull back to their 1967 borders. They spoke of a "piecemeal peace" withdrawing a little at a time as the Arabs demonstrated their peaceful intent. Golda Meir suggested this might take 20 years.

It's doubtful that the Arabs will wait 20 years. In the meantime, the delicate Middle East peace may explode.

However, President Nixon did his homework before he flew to the Middle East. He carefully read through the hundreds of messages that Secretary of State Kissinger sent from the Middle East, as he negotiated the Israeli-Syrian truce.

Kissinger kept up his shuttle diplomacy for 34 days. He sent the President a dozen messages for his eyes only. Another 76 "flash" messages and 633 priority messages were also teletyped back to Washington.

The President read them all. He told friends afterward that Kissinger's messages read like a novel, as he patched together the tenuous peace in the Middle East. Several times, the negotiations seemed to break down. On the eve of the truce, the secret messages were particularly gloomy.

But in the end, the Kissinger magic prevailed.

Dirty Word: Milk has suddenly become a dirty word.

The Associated Milk Producers poured hundreds of thousands of dollars into President Nixon's re-election effort. They sought higher price supports, import quotas and an antitrust settlement. They are accused, in short, of trying to bribe the President of the United States.

The scandal has unfairly tainted everyone in the dairy industry. Yet the average dairy farmer knew as much about the dirty deals as a janitor at the Pentagon knew about Vietnam War strategy.

The dairy farmer, meanwhile, is in trouble. Milk and cheese prices are plummeting. Overhead costs are rising. And the bad publicity hasn't helped. Dairy operations are closing down all over the nation.

The political payoffs, it is now clear, have hurt more than helped the dairy industry. Other industries, which used to subsidize politicians, are now afraid of getting burned.

So all of a sudden, the politicians are having trouble raising funds from the special interests.

FLORAL FANCY -- Summertime means sunshine, fun, and of course, flowers in all shapes, sizes, and colors. From cannas to sunflowers, petunias to marigolds, from gladiolus to roses, there's something for everyone. And a floral reminder - tomorrow is the first day of summer. (Photo by Jerry Hamilton)

Russians yearn for Western contact

by Starr Smith

Editor's Note: Starr Smith is a Montgomery public relations consultant and writer. He has recently returned from a trip to Russia. This report was written exclusively for member newspapers of the Alabama Press Association.

After almost three weeks in Russia, it seems to me that a new wave of hope, friendship and optimism is spreading across that strange and fascinating land. From Leningrad in the north to Kiev in the Ukraine and in Moscow, capital of the Soviet Union, I talked with government officials, journalists, businessmen, educators, students, merchants, taxi drivers, bar-tenders and the man in the Russian streets. While the essential mystery and motives of the Russian leaders still remains unchanged or, at least, unclear, it is my impression that the people yearn for friendship with the West. The jagged fears of the Cold War have been replaced by the soft and beckoning winds of detente and, this spring, the people of Russia appear to be living better and more fruitful lives than at any time in their long and turbulent history. The country is at peace. There is no discernable tension. The faces on the street are little-revealing, perhaps stoical, but they are friendly and smiling to an American visitor who also smiles. The Russian borders and skies are open. Tourists are everywhere. I personally talked with people from at least 25 countries and all parts of the world, some tourists, some businessmen. The Iron Curtain has been lifted, ever so slightly, to foreign trade and commerce. From all indications, the Curtain will raise higher and especially toward the United States. A cynic would say, of course, that the strained relationship between Red China and the Soviet Union is opening up Russian doors and hearts - all in the name of detente. This may be true, all a part of the Soviet mystique and international gamesmanship of easing tensions here and tightening the reigns there. Be that as it may. The fact remains that a visit to Russia in the spring of 1974 is an engaging, enlightening and pleasant experience.

I traveled with a small group of journalists and observers from the National Press Club of Washington, D.C. Although we traveled as a group, we were free to move on our own. There was no restrictions. I think it safe to say that none of us became instant Russian experts, but we did have the opportunity to observe, to question, to talk, to see, to analyze -- and to draw conclusions and form impressions.

The Russian journey begins and ends with Intourist, a sort of travel agency, hotel booker, and all-around arranger of accommodations in the Soviet Union. To the foreigner, Intourist is personified by a highly intelligent, articulate and attractive young Russian woman. She is a guide, an interpreter, tour lecturer, and information bureau. She opens the doors and paves the way. Our group had a head guide from Moscow who traveled with us for the entire trip. She was joined in each city by a local girl who was an expert on her own region. All the girls are university graduates with degrees, probably, in foreign affairs and diplomacy. Best of the lot was a winsome and beautiful young woman in Leningrad. Her name is Miss Irene Privoshina.

By far the most intriguing of Russian cities in Leningrad. A few of a city on the Neva River, it is the birthplace of the Revolution of 1917, home of the famous Hermitage Museum and Russia's window to the sea. Built by Peter the Great and called St. Petersburg in his honor, the city has undergone two name changes and a 900-day siege by the Germans in World War II. Although Leningrad's epic defense and survival is classic, today there are few signs of the struggle. By contrast, reminders of the Revolution are everywhere. The Cruiser Aurora, which fired the first shot and set off the attack on the Winter Palace, is enshrined in the Neva. The Winter Palace itself, a great green and white architectural gem, is the key building forming the Hermitage, truly one of the world's most celebrated museums. Statues and pictures of Lenin are everywhere in Leningrad and throughout Russia. It is only truthful to say that Lenin is venerated as a god and his deeds and teachings are worshipped in Russia.

Leningrad is an industrial city of four million people. In May, the city's unforgettable white nights were beginning with daylight lasting until 10 and 11 at night. A view across the Neva on a white night from a window in the Leningrad Hotel is memory enough to last a lifetime. St. Isaac's Cathedral, with one of the three tallest domes in the world, behind St. Peter's in Rome and London's St. Paul, is now a museum -- as are most churches in Russia. Some say St. Isaac's is the most beautiful church in the world. But there is more to Leningrad than more aestheticism. Early one morning I watched the entire train load of yellow tractors, made in Leningrad, leave for the Ukraine.

At the Moscow Press Club we held a joint news conference with top editors from Tass, Pravda, Izvestia, New Times and Russian Central Television. They asked good questions on Watergate but were extremely careful to cast no reflections, voice no opinions. They were interested in Watergate and knowledgeable, that's all. On the Alexander Solzhenitsyn affair, they were outspoken and critical. They said he has harshly and unfairly criticized the Soviet Union's system, that he had not been punished in any way, that he was allowed to leave the country with his family -- and they were glad to be rid of him.

We were in Moscow on May 9, the anniversary of VE Day. There was a 3-day celebration, centered mostly in Red Square which borders the Kremlin and Lenin's Tomb. The Red Army was everywhere. Veterans paraded. Long red banners and backdrops bearing huge pictures of Lenin hung from the buildings and long double lines of Russian people waited all night for a glimpse of his remains in the black marble Tomb there by the high Kremlin Wall. Between the Tomb and the Wall, Stalin and other fallen Soviet leaders lay buried, along with the American John Reed. At midnight I watched the Changing of the Guard at the Tomb. There in the moonlight, on the anniversary of VE-Day, it seemed incongruous to see the Russian guards using the German goose step. Behind the high red brick Wall, built in the 15th century, is the Kremlin -- several square miles of landscaped grounds, palaces, churches (museums), the seat of Soviet government, the modernistic Palace of Congress and numerous other buildings, old and new.

Russians have always liked the theater. Now the ballet, opera, drama and concerts are flourishing as never before. At the Palace of Congress, we saw the Bolshoi Ballet present a brilliant production of Swan Lake and, in Leningrad, a young performer danced the most persuasive and forceful Basil in Don Quixote that I have ever seen. Later, backstage, I learned that his name if Guljalev and he is considered an eventual successor to the departed Rudolf Nureyev.

The Russians have restored many of the former palaces of the Czars in authentic detail and lavish splendor. In the Kremlin, only distinguished foreign visitors and few Russians see the unbelievable Grand Palace where the royal and Sybaritical life style of the Czars is displayed -- jewels, gowns, carriages, crowns, and other trappings and trinkets of power and pleasure. Here is a coat of arms on a carriage door inlaid with emeralds, diamonds, rubies, and gold and the horse's bridle blazing with precious stones. There is a tiny train, solid gold with moving parts, made for the son of luxury it is as if the Russians are inviting a comparison between bygone royalty and present day living conditions.

Many visitors shop in the Beryozkas or "dollar stores" where only foreign currency is used. The best buys are amber, jewelry, furs, dolls, perfume, and, of course, caviar and vodka. Russian food is pedestrian at best. Table wines are dry and good. Ice cream is excellent and sold in small stands on the street throughout Russia.

Late on my last night in Russia I left the hotel alone and found a small bar. The language is difficult in Russia but somebody can always speak a little English, French, or German. I visited for an hour or so and as I left one of the Russians made a short speech. Freely translated, he said, "Friendship with United States and Soviet Union will be stronger in future and everywhere and everyday and now too."

After forced marriage--

Apprehensive of new baby

By Herbert J. Miles, Ph.D.

WHAT ABOUT A SECOND BABY AFTER A FORCED MARRIAGE?

Q. Dr. Miles, I am 23 years old and I am thinking about another baby. Our only child is 4 years old. We married four years ago because I was pregnant. There was a lot of resentment toward this child on my behalf, for a long time. But now I THINK I want another child. My husband and I agree that we want to have this one for the right reasons. We are both active members in our church now, and I feel our marriage is a stable one. How do other couples feel? Do they have these same misgivings? Our other child is getting older all the time, and I would like to have one to grow up with him, but I don't think this alone should be enough reason to have another child. Can you give us some words of wisdom on the subject? I want to know if my reasoning is normal or is it just me? Thanks for listening, I feel there is nobody else I can discuss this with. I look forward to your columns each week. (From Arkansas)

A. In reply, I want to give you warm understanding and support, describe your current problems, and make some positive suggestions. You are not alone in feeling like you do. Millions of others have misgivings because they have greaved their Creator in a thousand falls of varied kinds. However, you have many things going for you. You are young, only twenty-three. By making wise decisions, you have fifty, sixty or more years ahead. You are married and have a wonderful baby. Thousands of worthy women have been denied these blessings. Since you married, you must have loved each other. Since you have lived together four years adjusting to your problem, both of you must have many fine qualities. It takes mature people to stand together in and through a crisis and develop a stable marriage as you have. As active members of your church, you have established a soundly balanced system of values and guidelines. Your writing this letter indicates courage and determination to rise up and follow truth, to transform past clouds into happy future rainbows.

Yet, I fear your past is still too much present in the form of guilt feelings, in both of your thinking. You must stop punishing yourselves because of the past. I am sure that since you are active church members now, that you both have asked for Divine forgiveness many, many times. When we repent and ask for Divine forgiveness for ANY transgression, complete forgiveness is immediate and automatic. In God's sight you both are as if your past had never happened. Then why are you still carrying the burden of guilt and still punishing yourselves? Could it be that you have not accepted forgiveness: YOU MUST NOT ONLY ACCEPT IT AS FACT BUT YOU MUST RESPOND WITHIN YOURSELVES TO THAT FACT. You must forgive yourselves, and each other. There is really no other successful alternative, is there?

Yes, go ahead and have a second child as soon as possible. A sufficient length of time has passed to allow you to be in good health and to have a healthy baby. You are right when you say that you want "to have a second child for right reasons . . . this (the past) alone should not be enough reason to have another child." But this reason is not altogether unworthy. In addition to this reason you should have another child because you both want one, because it should help you to cultivate and share love for each other, because it should be a positive influence in your attitude toward your first child, and because it would be a positive influence in the life of both your first child and your potential second child. I am happy that you indicate that you have overcome "a lot of resentment" toward your first child. Regardless of a future child, YOU MUST NOT ALLOW YOURSELVES TO SLIGHT OR NEGLECT YOUR FIRST CHILD. Remember, the past is past. He is "bone of your bone and flesh of your flesh." He will be and must be equal to your second child.

Do not allow the past ever to drive a wedge between you and your husband. You are both worthy of the blessings of this wonderful life. Don't miss them. In humility stand tall together. Work hard at serving and helping others in your community. Continue to meet each other's emotional and sexual needs. Put each other first, each expressing love, confidence, trust, faith, gentleness, and tenderness toward the other. This kind of happiness in marriage not only makes for personality growth and total fulfillment of husband and wife, but it furnishes a perfect environment for growing maturing children. (Dr. Miles welcomes questions for this column. When a letter is used in the column, the identity of the person is not revealed. He will answer personal letters as time permits. Wilsonville group pleads for harmony

The Wilsonville Civitan Club has written all of the Alabama Congressmen urging them to encourage the President and the Congress to stop expending all of their energy attacking each other.

The club has solicited the support of the Alabama Congressmen to do all they can to get the Congress to get on with facing the serious problems of inflation, the energy crisis, and the credibility gap between the government and the American people.

A copy of the letter reads as follows:

WE of the Wilsonville Civitan Club are very concerned about the conditions that are rampant in our country which we love and for which many lives have been sacrificed in order to preserve liberty and justice for all.

We seem to be facing one continuing crisis. In our homes inflation is wrecking any hope we have of balancing our budgets and paying our bills. We can not continue at this pace indefinitely; in fact, we have already continued at it too long.

Beyond this personal crisis and possibly more important is the one continuing series of crisis which seems to be plaguing our government. We are concerned that things proceed orderly in our government since we believe this would help them to proceed more orderly in our homes.

In view of this situation, we urge you to exhort the Congress and the President to stop expending all of their energy attacking each other. We solicit your cooperation in doing what you can to attack the other serious problems our country and families are facing - inflation, the energy crisis, and the credibility gap between government and the American people.

FIRE HALL - Helena's new fire department building is going up in no time in Joe Tucker Park. The small construction crew is determined to erect the building in record time, hopefully soon enough for a fire department meeting Sunday.

Helena erects fire house

by Willard Harrison
Helena's new fire department building seems to have appeared overnight. Two weeks ago the site on Joe Tucker Park was just a graded expanse of mud. Now the prefabricated building is almost finished.

The town had been needing a new fire hall for several months, and when they suddenly found themselves with three fire trucks the need became critical. One truck was housed in the town hall, while the other two began to crowd the garage by the doctor's office.

The town council had finally decided to supplement their fire department by buying a new truck. But before it arrived, Plantation Pipeline presented the town with another fire truck. In the meantime Helena had been looking for a place for the new fire station, when they decided to locate it in the town park.

The building is expected to be almost finished by June 23 when the volunteer fire department holds a meeting to reorganize. Town clerk Frances Parrish urges interested Helena residents to attend the meeting at 2:30 on Sunday afternoon.

Pollution control aid asked for TVA

Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.) has urged a Senate Committee to permit the Tennessee Valley Authority to credit against its required annual payment to the U.S. Treasury amounts spent during the previous fiscal year for pollution control facilities.

In a statement prepared for submission to the Senate Public Works Committee, Sparkman said that federal laws now favor other pollution control investment programs. "Direct federal appropriations are currently provided for pollution control at many federal installations," Sparkman stated. "Federal grants are also provided to state and local governments for many pollution control activities."

"Private industry is granted tax deductions and other special tax relief provisions that substantially reduce private industry's costs of installing pollution control facilities," he said.

"In the case of TVA, the expenditures for pollution control facilities must be borne entirely by TVA," Sparkman said. "No subsidy is provided by the Federal Government. Thus, in view of the federal sharing of the burden of pollution control expenditures incurred by private business through the tax structure, and in view of the federal grants to federal installations and to state and local governments, the credit proposed by S. 3057 is certainly justified."

"The currently planned environmental control programs for TVA will require estimated capital investments of about $570 million," he stated. "According to some interpretations of current pollution control laws, such capital requirements may reach as high as $2.2 billion."

"In recognition of the tremendous needs for investment by TVA in pollution control facilities, the high cost of borrowing, and the obligation of TVA to make annual payments to the Federal Treasury, favorable action should be taken on S. 3057 without delay," Sparkman stated.

Canton Mills plans own waste facility

Canton Textile Mills of Siluria-Alabaster has requested permission to construct its own secondary waste treatment facility.

Canton asked the Alabama Water Improvement Commission for permission to build its own facility, rather than wait for the City of Alabaster to complete its disposal plant.

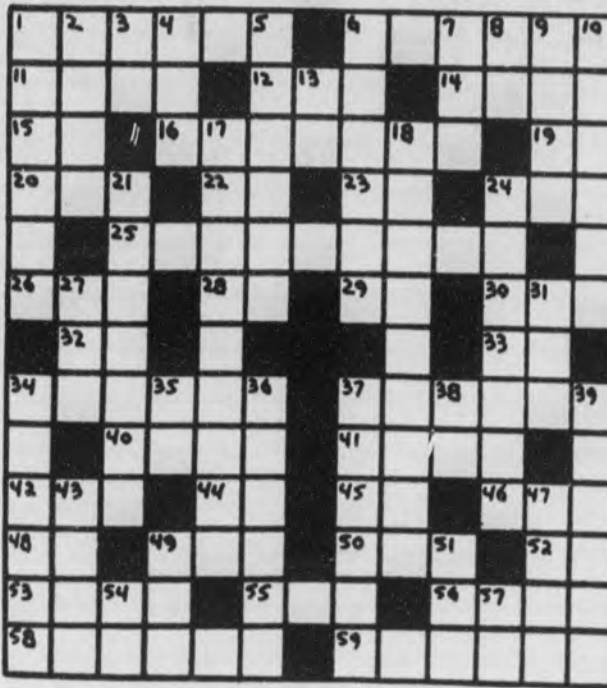

The AWIC agreed to the request at its meeting last Friday, contingent upon the technical staff's approval of Canton's plans.

Over the state sales amounted to $5,472,894 in April. Nationwide, total sales for April were $589 million.

Dog owners organize countywide kennel club

by Willard Harrison

Dog lovers unite! Shelby County's dog breeders, trainers, and owners will now have their own local club, the Oak Mountain Kennel Club. A group of people gathered Sunday in Valleydale to organize the new county-wide breed organization.

At the meeting, the dog owners and their pets gathered to begin the new organization at the home of Mrs. Kay Snell. Known dog enthusiasts from miles around came with their Pekingese, Schnauzers, Chihuahuas, Dalmatians, and many other breeds of canines. Puppies, house pets, champion show dogs, and other full-breds made their acquaintance.

The new group began the business session with a discussion of the club name. Finding that the American Kennel Club would not approve the name "Shelby County" in the club name, they chose a name less regional. Rather than name it after any one city, they picked Oak Mountain as a name that the AKC would approve.

The group specified that owners of purebred dogs could join for five dollars dues, and that couples could join for $7.50 per year. The next meeting was scheduled in Oak Mountain Park for Sunday, June 30, at the fishing lake. Basic plans for the new kennel club were outlined, and Mrs. Billy Roberts was chosen temporary secretary.

The dog-lovers present explained why they are beginning the new club. "We feel there is a need for a dog organization for people with full-bred dogs," stated Billy Roberts. "It will help to get rid of back-yard breeders, and the club will offer obedience training, grooming, and information to AKC pet owners."

The new club has already had volunteers for obedience teaching, and other members are qualified to take part with their specialty. The club plans to compile a breeders' directory with information about the pedigrees of dogs owned by members. Classes will be set up for people and their dogs in the near future, and the club is already thinking about an initial dog show.

The group plans to offer equal emphasis to conformation (the dog's looks) and to obedience (his brains). Dogs will be trained for shows and bred for appearance. Long-haired breeds will of course require specialized grooming techniques, and several local breeders are knowledgeable in that area.

Membership to the Oak Mountain Kennel Club is open to owners of purebred dogs of all breeds, and further information can be obtained from Ann Bearden at 665-7276. Applications for membership will be available at the next meeting set for two o'clock on Sunday afternoon June 30 at the fishing lake at Oak Mountain State Park. The nearest entrance to that area is from Cahaba Valley Road, Highway 119, about six miles from Highway 31. The kennel club invites dog owners to come and to bring their registered pet. Charter membership is open through June 30 at this meeting.

Recreation areas begin charging fees

Forest Supervisor Arthur D. Woody of the Alabama National Forests announces that the Land and Water Conservation Fee Act amendment (Public Law 93-303) became law on June 9 and will go into effect on June 22 on seven of the fifteen Forest Service recreation areas in Alabama.

The following areas will have a $1.00 charge per car for day use and a $2.00 campground fee per family unit per night: Payne Lake, (west of Centerville) Chinnabee and Coleman Lake Recreation Areas located on the Talladega National Forest, Corinth Recreation Area, located on the Bankhead National Forest, and Open Pond Recreation Area located on the Conecuh National Forest.

The Blue Pond Recreation Area, located on the Conecuh National Forest, will have a $1.00 charge for day use per car. The Pine Glen Recreation Area, located Talladega National Forest, will have a $2.00 campground charge per family unit per day. Money from these fees is used to improve and manage recreation facilities and in order for an area to qualify as a user fee area, a substantial investment, regular maintenance and Forest Service attendants are required. Campgrounds must have tent or trailer spaces, drinking water, an access road, refuse containers, toilet facilities and a device for containing campfires.

Woody stated all other recreation areas in the National Forests may be used free of charge.

From academy--

Alabaster police graduate

"The role of the law enforcement officer must change from that of a 'man of action' to that of community manager," James Parsons, Birmingham chief of police, told members of the graduating class of the University of Alabama Law Enforcement Academy on June 14.

Parsons told the 28 graduates of the tenth session of the Academy that there must be a redefinition of the police officers's role with service as they keynote. Included in the class were Gary E. Carter and Hugh Vines Jr., both of Alabaster. Carter is with the Pelham Police Department and Vines is with the Columbiana Police Department.

"We cannot solve present problems with present methods," Parsons said. "We must change the environment of the community."

Parsons stressed crime prevention as a role of today's law enforcement officer and suggested working closely with local P.T.A. groups in the schools, neighborhood groups and community organizations.

"We must use a human relations and community relations approach," Parsons said.

Peach crop low

Chilton County peach growers are expecting a yield of sixty percent of normal from their peach crops this year.

Tommy Joe Brown, Chilton County Extension Farm Agent indicates a lack of dormant hours caused much of the crop not to develop.

Brown said there were only 849 dormant hours this year, the fewest since 1957. The trees need 1,000 hours to set a normal crop. Last year there were 1,467 dormant hours, but only a 50 percent crop was realized because of freeze damage.

UM enrollment hits 1500 mark

For the second consecutive year summer enrollment at the University of Montevallo has topped the 1500 mark.

According to figures announced by the university's Admissions Office, almost all of the students are enrolled in classes on the Montevallo campus.

Approximately 170 enrollees are taking courses through area extension centers.

The summer registration held at UM last week matched last year's record -- the first time Montevallo's summer enrollment topped 1500 -- and reflected continued growth of the graduate program.

The admissions office noted that the heavy registration comes during a summer when the labor market is favorable for college-age workers.

CARD OF THANKS
The J.C. Robertson family would like to express our gratitude for the food, kindness, and thoughtfulness that was shown to us during the death of our husband and father. A very special thanks to Rev. Chapel,
Rev. Taylor, and Rev. Billy Coleman.
The family of J.C. Robertson

IN MEMORY
In loving memory of Lex C.
Ozley who passed away 11 years ago June 24, 1963.

A very special man is absent from our lives.
A man who loved others and was loved in return.
He was our symbol of high standards and respect.
Family and friends were always first in his heart.
A man like "Lex" walks our way only once in a while.
And when he leaves the emptiness cannot be filled.
In all the world we shall not find,
a heart so wonderfully kind.
So soft a voice, so sweet a smile,
An inspiration so worth while.
A sympathy so sure, so deep,
A love and devotion so beautiful to keep.

Alabaster council meets

Alabaster's city council met Monday night for their regular bi-weekly meeting. According to city clerk, Mrs. Dot Henry, the councilmen dealt with routine business, with no new developments except for further discussion about building a new city park.

At present the city is studying two park sites with an ultimate plan to utilize both. A 14 acre area is under consideration behind Thompson High School. Another area on the Simmsville Road is also receiving the attention of the council and Jack Zuiderhoek, head of the park committee.

Mrs. Henry says that there are no new developments on the sewer project, and that the contracts have not been let for the treatment plant.

County 52 road project nears date for completion

Within six more weeks the improvements in the county highway linking western Shelby County with Bessemer will be completed, according to highway department spokesman, Billy Farmer.

Narrow bridges and dangerous curves on the highway have made travel difficult in the past, but the worst of the problems is being overcome by the present construction, he said.

Travelers have had a detour of several miles during the construction stage.

As project engineer, Farmer has directed testing and has closely supervised the construction. He said that the highway change involved a cut of 80 feet through one hill, a large concrete box culvert to replace the two old bridges, and other drainage structures.

Henderson Excavating Co., prime contractor, bid $185,200 on this project, and assigned M.L. Bell as their superintendent. The cost was shared by the federal government ($92,500), the state ($46,300), and Shelby County ($46,300).

Site of first courthouse unknown to historians

Where was the first county courthouse located in the county? After long speculation, it appears that the most likely candidate, the old Johnson house by Cahaba Valley Road, is definitely not the original Shelby County courthouse.

Based on a number of accounts, rumors sprang up that the old Valley house was the site of the county's first court. But research by two area historians shows that this could not be true. County historical society president Kenneth Penhale and Jim Walker of the West Jefferson Historical Society have compared all recorded facts about the first courthouse with the Johnson house, with negative results.

Penhale told the Reporter that according to all existing records, court was first held in what is now called the Cahaba Valley, north of Pelham and probably near the present Highway 31. The building was made of logs in the early years of the nineteenth century. Admittedly much of the accounts contained inaccuracies and discrepancies, but the general location and description is known.

Last week Penhale and Walker began checking into the theory that the Johnson house could contain the inner core of the first courthouse. The old home, located not far from the Indian Springs branch bank, is one of the oldest structures in the Cahaba Valley and in Shelby County. According to county land records, the Johnson family bought the house from the Bishop family in 1912 or 1913. The Bishops had lived there for quite some time, according to the two men's present research.

Penhale and Walker went to the house and examined it for indications of its age. They found that there were no logs inside the building's structure, and no proof that the house had been built around an original log cabin. If this had been the first courthouse, the historians reasoned that the logs would have been there.

Walker, who has written several history books and articles, said that the building was erected somewhere between 1835 and 1840, according to contracting methods and markings. He added that the building was partially built from older lumber taken from another building.

At present all of their research is not completed on the Johnson house, but Penhale and Walker have satisfied themselves that the building is not the first courthouse. But now they have the history of the courthouse to trace as well as the records on the old building. Kenneth Penhale seems to feel that it's safe to say the remains of the courthouse are not standing, however.

New rule set for stamp buyers

Those who buy Food Stamps have a new regulation to meet for the month of July.

According to the new regulations, everyone must have his or her Social Security, SSI, or VA income verified before they can purchase food stamps in July.

Spokesmen for the program say that the income can be verified by bringing checks into the Food Stamp office in Columbiana, or, a statement can be signed by the person who cashes the checks, giving date, name on the check and the amount of the check. The statement should also indicate what type of check it is.

Childersburg cave highlights Indian history

by Rick Moore

Historian, amateur archeologist, businessman, writer and an all around interesting person -- All of these descriptions apply to Fred L. Layton, the operator of Kymulga Onyx Cave near Childersburg.

A trip to the cave not only affords the visitors breathtaking views of one of Alabama's most scenic caverns, but offers an interesting lesson in the early history of the Creek Indian nation as well, for anyone who is willing to read and observe the displays in the cave office. Anyone who is genuinely interested in the early Indian ward need only to strike up a conversation with Layton to realize that he is one of the most knowledgeable men of that page of Alabama's history.

Layton is by trade a lumberman. He retired from that business, however, and for some ten years has operated Kymulga Cave as a tourist attraction.

The cave operator said that he became interested in Indian History many years ago. Over the years Layton has collected an impressive array of early history books, maps and old newspapers dealing with the Creek Indians in Alabama. Layton's collection is housed in the cave office and gives the building the appearance of a small museum and library rather than just a place to purchase tickets for cave tours, souvenirs and refreshments.

Not content to pursue his hobby as an armchair historian, Layton has assisted in excavating Indian sites with professional archeologists. He has traced General Andrew Jackson's route during the Creek War from Huntsville to the battle site at Horseshoe Bend. He has also visited numerous local sites to confirm his studies of Indian history.

Layton has also reprinted old published diaries of Indian traders who traveled through the Creek Indian country before the settlement of the white man in east Alabama. In addition, the amateur historian has written and printed a paper on the history of Kymulga Cave and short history of the Chinnabby family of the Natchez Indians.

Kymulga Cave was known to the Indians as Lunhamga and Kymulga. The name Lunhamga came from the Muscogee Indians and means "fathers coming out of the hill." According to the Muscogee legend, their ancestors came out of the cave at the time of creation. The name Kymulga came from a band of Natchez Indians who settled a few miles away at Kymulga Town.

Scribes from Hernando DeSoto's expedition write that the Spaniards visited a large cave fitting Kymulga's description in 1540.

The cave appears again in the diaries of Indian traders who lived among the Creeks during the eighteenth century. Kymulga cave was located near a trail running from Charleston, South Carolina, to Chickasaw Bluffs (now Memphis, Tennessee). Many of the early Indian traders passed over this trail.

Confederate soldiers mined the floors of Kymulga cave during the civil war to obtain saltpeter used in the manufacture of gunpowder.

An attempt was made to mine the onyx formation found in the cave in 1914. Luckily for us today, that attempt failed.

A gravel path gives access to the mouth of the cave located only a short distance from the parking area. Three tiers of concrete steps lead down into the large cavern. Upon reaching the bottom the visitor to the cave finds himself in a large room 378 feet long, 165 feet wide and 165 feet high. The cavern keeps a constant temperature of 60 degrees all year.

All around the visitor onyx stalagmites and stalactites are to be found resembling thousands of stone icicles. These wonders were formed over millions of years in the speleal environment of the cave. During this time mineral bearing water seeped through higher layers of rock into the cavity in the rock. When the drops of water evaporated, a tiny deposit of minerals was left. It is these tiny deposits of minerals that over the ages built the beautiful formations that awe Kymulga visitors today.

All the beauty of the cavern is bathed in a rainbow of colored and white light from the hundreds of electric bulbs illuminating the cave.

High-lights on the cave tour include: the pulpit, an ancient Indian burial ground 7,000 years old; the banana room; Jumbo, the large stalagmite; the stone water fall; and the animal formations of Old Bossy the cow, the shark, Mother Goose, and the rhinoceros.

Kymulga Onyx Cave is located on state highway 76 five miles east of Childersburg. The attraction is open every day of the week during the spring and summer months from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Special rates are charged for school and other groups of 20 or more people.

It's another interesting place to tour that is only a short drive from anywhere in Shelby County.

DRIPSTONE PANORAMA - Kymulga's stalactites and stalagmites are some of the most beautiful in Alabama. The rock sculptures were formed by millions of years of water drips which left minerals behind in the unusual shapes. (Photos by Rick Moore)

CAVE MAN - Fred Layton, owner of Kymulga Caves points out a stalactite in the cavern. Layton is well-versed in the history of the state, particularly where his onyx cave is involved. He tells of the time when Indians lived there, and later when Confederate soldiers mined saltpeter there.

A's take 2 big ones

The Birmingham A's took two games away from Knoxville this weekend putting them in a tie for third place in the western division of the Southern League just three games from the top.

Pitcher Bob Lacy hurled for nine innings to give the A's a 16-2 victory on Saturday. On Sunday recent A's signee Leo Mazzone pitched for eight and a third innings against Knoxville as the Birmingham team won the contest 7-3.

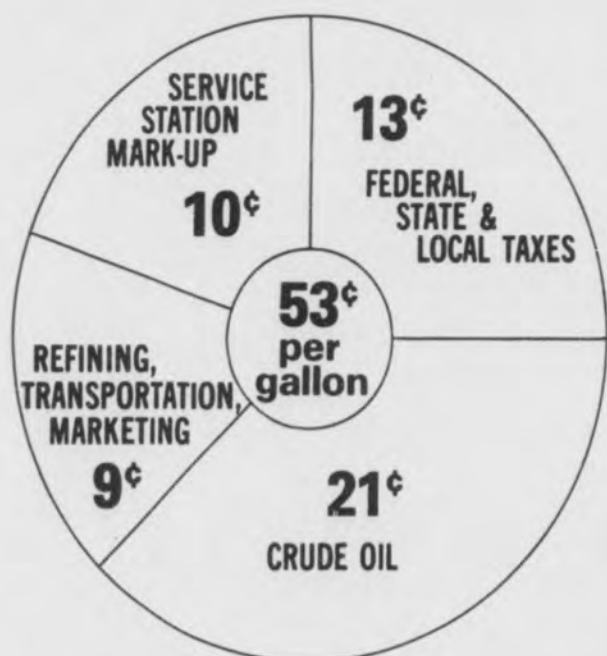

Sunday's win boosted the A's to the .500 mark. This was the first time the A's have attained the .500 mark in this early in the season since 1970.

"The players have confidence they can win," commented the Birmingham A's General Manager Glen West after Sunday's game. "I've seen the other team and we're as good as any."

Standings in the Southern League after Sunday's games were as follows:

HERE'S WHERE YOUR GASOLINE MONEY GOES--

THE AVERAGE COST OF GASOLINE in Alabama on April 30th was 53¢ per gallon. The above graph shows how this cost is distributed within the industry. Total oil company profits from crude oil sales, refining, transportation and marketing totals 2 to 3 cents per gallon.

Good top water fishing--

Willow flies arrive

Pleasure boaters apparently outnumbered the fishermen on Lay Lake last weekend as most marina and fish camp operators reported fair fishing results.

Ernest Armstrong at Armstrong's Camp on Waxahatchee Creek reported that he observed the first willow fly hatch on the creek this year. The arrival of the insects should bring about good top water fishing. Armstrong reports that deep running lures were doing well for bass. Armstrong also reported that crappie were being caught at a depth of 15 feet.

A spokesman at Bozo's Camp reported that stripe were being caught near the dam and on Peckwood Creek. One string on nine bass weighing 23 pounds was reported being caught on a black jelly worm. The crappie were also reported being caught at night.

James Amos of Alabaster and Hugh Long of Shelby caught 53 stripe last weekend while fishing out of Spring Creek. Bass are being caught from five p.m. until dark.

Jerry Wooten of Camp Okomo reported that bass were being caught on spinner baits early in the morning in the weeds and during the day in the hole on black and blue worms.

Brother-sister team star at moto-cross

Motorcycle riding seems to come naturally for young fourteen year old Tim Roper. Tim's picture appeared on the front page of last week's Shelby County Reporter as he flew over a jump at a local moto-cross track.

Roper is currently ranked seventh in the state by the Alabama Moto-Cross Association in the 125 cc division. His younger sister, Nancy, is currently ranked number one in the girl's powder puff moto-cross division.

Both Tim and Nancy are from the Siluria-Maylene area of Shelby County, but now reside in Bessemer. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. T.J. Roper.

Both brother and sister have been racing motorcycles for two years. Between them they have won 269 trophies.

The pair has raced at tracks in Tuscaloosa, Clanton, Huntsville, Bessemer and Warrior as well as the new moto-cross track in Shelby County.

Before the Roper children started entering motorcycle races, they participated in horse show competition. In just one year Tim and Nancy won 125 trophies and ribbons for their horsemanship.

The two young Ropers are both members of the Civil Air Patrol where Tim is an officer. They attend Greenwood Junior High School in west Jefferson county and are active in the Pleasant Reach Baptist Church.

RIGHT ON TARGET!

OUR 1974 DODGE COLT GOT 33.7 MILES PER GALLON IN THE USAC "MILES-PER-GALLON SHOWDOWN"! (COLT BEAT VEGA & MUSTANG II.)

In the recent USAC "Miles-Per-Gallon Showdown," a 1974 Dodge Colt got 33.7 miles per gallon. The Colt was equipped with the standard overhead-cam 1600 cc. four-cylinder engine and four-speed manual transmission. The mileage test, conducted in the Arizona-Southern California area, covered a distance of 972 miles at an average speed of 53 mph.

Also included in the "MPG Showdown" were a Chevrolet Vega and a Ford Mustang II (also equipped with four-cylinder engines and manual transmissions). Dodge Colt got substantially better gasoline mileage than either the Vega or Mustang II. All of the cars were driven by non-professional drivers. Of course, the mileage you get depends on many factors including how and where you drive and the condition of your vehicle. Car devices aren't worth it

by Mildred White Wallace

Automobiles cost as much as homes used to cost -- said a coffee cup comrade this morning -- and he was not pleased about it. He continued by saying -- A big cause is inflation! But added to this he said, is the cost of super bumpers, air bags, catalytic mufflers, and other expensive paraphranalia, control devices, electric seatbelt warning beepers and all sorts of other things mandated by law.

A lot of folk he says he knows just rip out all the warning buzzers in an effort to preserve their sanity and sneakily dismatle the gas consuming pollution control equipment in an effort to keep free wheeling along the highways. Still, all these mechanical devices must be bought and paid for with every new automobile. Some of them may be good -- many are nonsense.

He thinks there are too many laws being passed for our "protection" at too great a price to the consumer and he also says it is time to take a hard look at the situation and view the cost relative to the benefits that can be expected from any legislation contemplated in the areas of safety and environmental or consumer protection. If we don't watch out -- he says -- we may be protected right out of our pocketbooks.

We offered him our remedy for this situation. A blue Falcon of undetermined vintage -- minus any worrisome gadgets -- and what's more to the point, cranks right off without a beep -- and gets us where we want to go pronto! With all the aforementioned objections to modern gadgets -- he would not swap! Proof again that the old saying: "People are funny" -- holds true!

Up and down Main with your friends and mine

by Mildred White Wallace

Helen Reinhardtsen has returned to her official post at the library after spending a two weeks vacation in Savannah, Ga. Mrs. Reinhardtsen told us there was a possibility that she would return to her former home -- Savannah "for keeps" -- but her many friends here, we feel sure, will start a campaign against any such move if it is calculated to be permanent.

Mr. and Mrs. B.W. Carter, former residents of Columbiana, will be better able to keep up with their friends in Shelby County beginning this week as the Reporter is on its way bringing them the news. We regret to learn that B.W. is confined to a wheel chair, a victim of rheumatoid arthritis.

Jeff Cates and Mike Balckwell are getting their first experience as freshmen in Auburn University. Both are members of the '74 graduating class from SCHS where they were also members of Bill Parrish's rhythm makers. They are hopeful they can continue mixing their musicianship with their scholastic routine during their years in Auburn. Bill has had quite a few representatives in the Auburn Band and no doubt these two former students will -- in September be seen stepping along with the University's band at the football games.

Regret to report that John

Thompson, a retired local manager for Alabama Power Co. in Columbiana is a patient in Shelby Memorial.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Skelton are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Larry Skelton and family in Gadsden this week.

The two young missionaries from Texas and Arkansas, who are in charge of religious services conducted on the river each summer under Baptist sponsorship, state they are highly pleased with the response they have received from these ministerial efforts. Especially gratifying are they over the number of people attending the 8:30 Camp Fire services held at Okomo and at White's Fish Camp each Saturday evening. These services will continue through Labor Day weekend.

Bible study began at Mosteller church last Sunday morning. This study will also continue through the summer months. Weekend recreation and religious observance of the Sabbath seem to be available to the number of transients who visit this section of the county each weekend through the summer months.

George Holcombe, genial manager of the Gulf Service Station, we regret to learn is a patient in Shelby Memorial. A wide circle of patrons and a warm circle of friends are eagerly awaiting news from his bedside.

Columbiana friends and members of First Baptist Church will have the privilege of hearing distinguished attorney, Morgan Brian, from New Orleans, Sunday evening at seven o'clock when he will be presented by Rev. Charles Stroud as guest speaker at the evening worship hour.

Mr. and Mrs. R.M. Moore and their daughter Cynthia from Kingsport, Tenn., were guests of their son Rick Moore in Columbiana last week. The Moores were in Alabama to attend the Moore-Halstead wedding which occurred in Headland last Saturday.

Friends had the privilege of welcoming Norman Lefkovits home from California last week for a few days visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lefkovits Sr. We enjoyed a curbside chat with the personable fellow who has made an outstanding success in the commercial world in Los Angeles. It was good to welcome him home again even if the stay had to be a brief one.

Marcia Lefkovits after returning from Girls State in Montgomery, last week, flew to New York for a visit with friends.

Pretty Suzanne Glaze, sub-deb daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Glaze (Ann Wallace) of Athens, is spending a part of the summer with her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wallace in Columbiana.

Scott Quick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Quick of Valdosta, has returned to his home after spending a week in Columbiana as the guest of his grandmother, Mrs. Fay Quick.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ellis, Jr. have returned from a trip to Nevada where Mr. Ellis attended a Legal Seminar.

Friends of Mrs. Jerry Bryan (Elizabeth Farley) a native of Columbiana, will regret to learn that she died in Birmingham, Saturday, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ocie Green (Corelli Farley) with whom she had made her home since the death of her husband Jerry Bryan, Sports writer for Birmingham News several years ago. Funeral services were conducted Monday with interment in Elmwood.

The First Baptist Church Sanctuary was filled to capacity Sunday evening when a union service was held and Tom Stoker, Minister of Music presented the Sanctuary Choir in a Gospel Song service bearing the title: God is So Wonderful.

Following the welcome to guests by Rev. Charles Stroud, the entire program was a sermon in song. The rendition of each number by this choral group reflected credit not only on themselves but on the excellent musicianship of Mr. Stoker.

Jessie Butler Jones was guest soloist and gave her interpretation of the widely used song: "He Touched Me". The choir concluded the program singing the processional number as they left the church.

Father's Day became something real meaningful to the Howard Mooney Sr., family last Sunday when members of the family gathered at the Civic Center in the Camp Branch Community to hold a family reunion.

"The Dads" -- among the 24 members present, were honored with appropriate love gifts -- after which a delectable basket lunch was spread and the family shared again many memorable events of personal interest in their lives.

During the afternoon the youngsters in the family challenged the more mature members of the family to a game of softball. The score was a one sided one for the "younger generation". "Uncle Jack Joiner" -- as he is affectionately known, was honor guest at the happy event.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dill and their five adorable children from Johnstown, Pa., are guests of his mother Mrs. Jack White and Mr. White this week. This marks the first visit home for Mr. Dill in four years and he says he is so surprised at the many changes that have taken place in Columbiana and the almost unbelievable growth both industrially and in the personnel of the town since he left.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Duffey, Terri, Dianne and Gena have returned to their home in Wilsonville after enjoying an extended vacation in Glendale, California where they were the guests of his sister Mrs. Betty Kahker and her family. During their visit they enjoyed viewing Disneyland, Universal Studios and many other interesting sights. However, all agree amid all the glimmer and glitter they encountered -- they found no place more attractive than ALABAMA.

Vivian Armstrong Ward, a 1940 graduate of Thompson High School, was the recent guest of her former teacher Idell Turner Thompson whom she had not seen in 34 years. Mrs. Thompson was Vivian's instructor for five years while she lived in Shelby County and although they had kept in touch across the miles, when their paths divided, they had not had the pleasure of seeing each other in 34 years until last week. Vivian came from her home in Florida for a visit with Idell who now resides in North Carolina. Both state they had such a good time retracing the halcyon days spent in Shelby County that they plan another get-together in the not too distant future.

Telephone doodles reveal personality

by Mildred White Wallace

When answering the telephone -- do you engage in "doodling"? If so, here is what a psychologist has to say about it. He says "doodling" is a good character sketch. For instance, he says the scribbles you sometimes make during a telephone confab come very near in telling what you are. According to his statement if you draw animals or birds, you are affectionate and understanding. If you draw arrows, your goals are high. Squares and checkerboards show logic and emotional stability while boats indicate energy and a wish for freedom. Flowers and trees show loneliness. Circles indicate a day dreamer. Sketching facial features show that you appreciate beauty and if you draw staircases -- you are very ambitious. So -- if you "doodle" while talking over the mike -- according to this fellow -- you can place yourself in the proper category by the design that comes from your pencil-point. Since we can't even manipulate a straight line -- we still don't know in what orbit we should really be revolving. How about you?

Last year we brought you over a billion dollars worth of furniture.
You've got a lot riding on us.

A lot of furniture rode our rails in 1973. We estimate that the manufacturers' value of furniture we shipped amounted to $1,120,000,000.

And when you put Southern's shipments together with all other railroads, you've got almost half of all the furniture Americans buy.

Why do the furniture industry and so many other industries ship by rail? They know it's usually the most economical way to go.

Consider these figures for the thousands of things shipped by rail. The average cost per-ton-mile by truck is five times as much as rail. Air shipping is almost fifteen times more expensive.

And the fuel crunch has made railroad efficiency more than just a matter of dollars and cents. It's a matter of delivering the goods with the smallest possible use of fuel.

Then there's the reliability of rail shipping. Add this on to everything else and you have a good idea why there's so much riding on us. And why you need Southern.

Ropers investigate 'Boggy Creek' myth

Jim and Pat Roper recently returned home from the Colorado Rockies, where they fished for trout in the lakes and streams of the Rio Grande River, visited the town of Creede, Colorado, famous hideout of Jesse James, and enjoyed the picturesque beauty of the snowcapped mountains.

On the way back, they visited Fouke, Arkansas, home of the famous Boggy Creek Monster. This loving creature, which supposedly roams the banks of Boggy Creek was the subject of a movie made last year, entitled "Legend of Boggy Creek." The Ropers had seen the movie, so they decided to stop and talk to a few of the towns people and get their ideas about the legend. After introducing himself, as being employed by WBVE and Shelby County Reporter, Jim proceeded to question an elderly gentleman who was enjoying the cool shade in his front yard. It just so happened that this man's grandson played the part of the monster in the movie.

This gentleman was fully convinced that the Boggy Creek Monster did not exist. He stated that the legend actually began about 20 years ago when some ranchers turned some deer loose and they started the rumor about the monster to keep people out.

In the Boggy Creek Cafe, the Ropers found another gentleman, connected with the movie who told them that he furnished the sound effects for the noises that were supposed to have been made by the Boggy Creek Monster.

According to him, the actual "scream of the monster," was the mating call of a mountain lion. He, too, expressed a belief that the monster did not exist.

He also told of an incident, that was portrayed in the movie, which was actually a joke. The scene took place in

Gas board convention draws groups from county

Members of all of the county's gas boards gathered last week in Panama City, Fla. for the eighth annual conference of the Alabama Natural Gas Association.

Re-elected as treasurer was J.D. (Buck) Falkner, Columbiana's city manager.

W. Byrd, manager of the north Alabama Gas District, was named secretary. A Huntsville gas board superintendent, Ernest H. Hamilton, was elected president of the association.

Nearly three hundred and fifty delegates from around the state attended the convention.

an old house, which two couples had rented.

It seems that this old house was close to the spot where a chicken farm owner disposed of dead chickens and was visited often by a local mountain lion. It was the scream of this mountain lion that started the major events that actually took place in the movie where a man was supposedly attacked by the Monster.

The gentleman told Pat and Jim, how after hearing the scream of the mountain lion and also after hearing the tales about the monster, the terrified couples, summoned the local constable to investigate. As a joke, the local constable carried a shot gun and shells that had been preloaded without shot to the frightened couples and left with the instructions to "be careful" and that he would check on them later.

At this point, the gentleman who was the noise expert sneaked close to the house and started the scream again. Upon hearing the screams, the men ran out of the house, with the shotgun blazing, in the direction of the sound.

Another one of the men, dropped his flashlight and became entangled in a ladder that was against the front porch, which he actually mistook for the monster. After wrestling the ladder around the yard, he managed to escape and made a lunge for the front door which he didn't bother to open. He simply ran through the glass door. By this time, he was in shock and was suffering from cuts and bruises from his encounters with the ladder and door.

The man in the cafe did express regret that the man was injured on the joke.

Next door to the cafe is a service station, owned by a man whose wife and children were supposed to have seen the monster in a nearby field. This sequence was in the movie. The service station owner showed them plaster prints of the Boggy Creek Monster's foot, that he said he had taken near his farm. He convincingly told of seeing both three toed footprints and five toed footprints. He also stated that he had actually seen the monster himself and was very leery in the beginning to believe such a thing. Also according to him, there have been about 25 different reports of people seeing the creature in the past year. This gentleman was very much convinced that the creature did exist.

After interviewing this man, Pat and Jim drove back to Taxarkana, and continued their trip home, still wondering if the Boggy Creek Monster was just a legend or if he actually roams the bottomland of Boggy Creek.

Your family lawyer

Erma was all too familiar with the cracked floorboard in her apartment, and she usually stepped over it with care. But one day her attention was diverted by her pet parakeet, as it made a sudden beeline for an open window. Momentarily off guard, Erma tripped on the floorboard and sprained her ankle.

Could she collect damages from her landlord for not keeping the apartment in good repair? In a court test, the landlord argued that Erma herself was guilty of negligence for forgetting about the faulty condition of the floor.

But the jury absolved her of negligence and granted her claim. Reason: the "distraction doctrine."

Under this doctrine, behavior that would ordinarily be considered negligent may be excused if the person's attention was distracted from the danger.

But not every kind of distraction is enough to constitute an excuse. It must be quite sudden, quite unusual, and quite compelling. Something less won't do. Thus:

A shopper in a supermarket noticed a loose carton on the floor ahead of her. Just before reaching that spot, she paused to commiserate with a friend about rising prices. By the time she started walking again, she had forgotten about the carton - and proceeded to fall over it.

"It was her own fault," said the market when she sued for damages. And this time, the court agreed. The court said a friendly chat was not a compelling enough distraction to justify forgetting about such an obvious danger.

What about traffic noises that distract a pedestrian? That will not ordinarily be enough to excuse negligence.

A man who stumbled on a broken curbing claimed afterward, in suing the city, that the rumble of an oncoming car had diverted his attention. But a court held this to be no excuse.

"The sound of automobiles," said the judge, "is hardly an uncommon occurrence in urban America. City inhabitants should not be diverted by ordinary city traffic."

MILES OF PIPE - Henry Foster is about to retire after producing miles of pipe for Shelby County's highway department.

Pipe shop employee retires from career

The Shelby County Pipe Shop was only two years old when Henry Lee Foster left his sawmilling vocation to work for the county.

For nearly 16 years he has kept the pipe shop going full speed, supplying the high quality reinforced concrete pipe that the county uses for its 850 mile highway network. The shop has saved the county over $250,000, producing pipe at about 70 percent the cost of the commercial product, and Foster has played a key role in the accomplishment.

On July 1st, Foster will retire under provisions of the retirement system established for county employees by the county commission.

Railway pays taxes to county and towns

Southern Railway, one of the county's biggest taxpayers, paid $54,795.50 in taxes to the county last year. A large portion of that went to Columbiana, Wilsonville, Calera, Montevallo, and Wilton.

Alabama receives the third largest amount of taxes from Southern, a total of $3,422,192. Only Georgia and Tennessee collect more taxes from the railway, with totals of $5.5 million and $6.6 million respectively.

The highest taxes Southern paid to a Shelby County municipality was $714.60 to Columbiana, followed by taxes of $551.10 to Wilsonville. Next was Calera, receiving $482.80; Montevallo, at $317.90; and Wilton, with taxes from Southern amounting to $286.10.

Columbiana councilmen view new city hall plans

Columbiana's city council met on Thursday, June 13, a week later than usual due to the conflicting gas board convention in Panama City.

Detailed plans were presented to the council for a new city hall. Mr. Dampier of Dampier and Harris Architects presented the newly-revised plans to the council for their approval. The firm's finance officer is scheduled to meet with the council at the next meeting, and offer an estimate of the costs involved.

Also at the meeting it was learned that Columbiana will receive L.E.P.A. funds that will enable them to update their radio equipment. The city will purchase a mobile radio unit and a walkie-talkie set.

Nothing definite has developed in the tennis court situation. J.D. Falkner reported to the council of his efforts to contact two contractors about building new courts. They also discussed building the courts with local labor and buying their own materials.

Brookwood merchants form group

Brookwood Village merchants formed a Merchant's Association at a recent meeting.

Chelsea pair traces family

by Shelba S. Nivens

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Reese of Chelsea have recently returned from Shelbyville, Tennessee with a new book about her family. The book, written by Jerry Cook, a cousin of Mrs. Reese, is entitled, "The Cook Family in America".

The book traces this branch of Mrs. Reese's family from Thomas Cook, born in England about the year 1770, to Tyler Dewitt Reese, her nine-month-old grandson.

Mr. and Mrs. Reese are, themselves, amateur genealogists, and Jerry Cook lists letters from Kathrin Reese as the source of some information in his book. She, Kathrin Crowell Reese, is now tracing the Crowell family line, but has been "stuck" on "Old William" Crowell for three years now. "A cousin of mine in California has been looking for Old William for ten years," exclaimed Mrs. Reese.

When the Reeses returned from Shelbyville, there was in their mailbox a copy of a Federal Land Grant to William Crowell in the year 1779. "But, I can't imagine why Old William got 332 acres," Mrs. Reese mused. She went on to explain that usually around 60 acres was the most given to a man for war service - and she can find no proof that he was ever in a war. "Official records don't list him in the Revolutionary service," she said, "But he could have been listed with his name spelled another way."

She has found that this is often the case with family names. For instance, the name of her Cook ancestor, Peter Fite, is also spelled, "Ficht." And the German spelling is "Veit."

Mrs. Reese has traced his father's family line for eleven generations. Both his father's and his mother's lines can be traced to Wales, and Mr. Reese hopes to go to Wales next year to do further genealogy research. Much of his present information is from two books: a family history written by an ancestor in 1875 and a history of the Oshkosh, Wisconsin Welsh settlement written in 1947. Both books were written originally in Gaelic and have been translated to English.

Mrs. Reese says that she has found much of her ancestry through research in the Samford University library. Recently-retired Special Collection Librarian, Mrs. Fanna K. Bee, helped her tremendously. Upon her retirement, Mr. and Mrs. Reese donated to the Samford University library, in Mrs. Bee's honor, a long list of books, selected by Mrs. Bee. They have also donated a Gutenberg Bible, Deluxe Facsimile Edition, in memory of Mrs. Reese's father, who passed away in June, 1972. Last week, they presented to the Samford University a copy of "The Cook Family in America" in hopes that it may be of help to other amateur genealogists like themselves.

When Mrs. Reese started to look up her ancestry, she had no idea how to begin, she says. Mrs. Bee told her to start first with the U.S. census records. The records before 1850 give us very little information, explained Mrs. Reese, "But in 1850 the man's name, age, worth, wife's name and age, and all his children by age are listed. The 1850 census is the best place to start."

She has also gleaned information from genealogy records and history books found in the library. She writes letters to government agencies to locate old records. From the State archives she has received copies of pension records, war records, deeds and many other valuable papers. Courthouses, too, are good places to do research.

"And in chancery court records, you find the skeletons in the closet," she laughs. She also lists church records, newspapers, family Bibles and correspondence, and gravestones in old cemeteries as sources of valuable information.

While on vacation in Tennessee, the Chelsea couple visited the old Cook family cemetery. "But I spent most of my time in the Bedford County Court house," laughs Kathrin, "looking up records, while John roamed the countryside with his camera."

A real artist with the camera, John Reese has his own dark room and has won many prizes and honors with his photographs. He has published in "Modern Photography", been a consistent winner in newspaper

MR. AND MRS. JOHN G. REESE tracing family tree photography contests and placed first in the Birmingham Festival of Arts photography contest. His photographs have toured the country for Eastman Company, and a few years ago, he had a one-man show at the Jewish Community Center in Birmingham.

The Reeses moved to Chelsea from Birmingham in 1965. They bought the old W. W. Kendrick place in the K Springs Community and are enjoying remodeling it themselves. John is an employee of United States Steel and Kathrin teaches piano in her home. They have one son, John Crowell Reese, who is a graduate of the University of Alabama, living in Tuscaloosa.

In gambling raid--

Evidence taken, no arrests made

U.S. attorneys are expected to present the evidence collected in a gambling raid on a Shelby County apartment house to a federal grand jury in August.

The raid was conducted by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and officers of the Birmingham Police Department last Friday night at 2701 Lull Water Road in Altadena Forest. The address is in north Shelby County near the Cahaba River and not far from Caldwell Mill Road.

Harlan Phillips, assistant to the special agent in charge of the Birmingham office of the FBI told the Shelby County Reporter that the raid was conducted both at the Shelby County apartment and at a home at 1561 - 17th Place SW in Birmingham. Phillips said

Commission takes on new expenses

The County Commission, struggling to keep the year's budget within bounds, found itself having to cope with two unexpected expenses when it held its meeting Monday.

The overtime provisions of the new minimum wage law will now apply to county employees, it was learned, when the federal government clarified the point in a recent statement.

For Shelby County, this will mean a possible increase of wages of $10,000 per year in the highway department alone, according to top-of-the-head calculations made by Jimmy Ray, county engineer.

The county has always paid straight salary for its necessary overtime, but now will have to pay time and a half for all time the FBI had worked closely with the Birmingham Police Department on the investigation for about a year.

The apartment was believed to be the "counting house" of a lottery or numbers operation.

Federal search warrants were obtained because the federal law on gambling is much tougher than other laws, Phillips explained.

Federal warrants were also obtained for seven people, four of whom were found at the Altadena apartment when it was raided.

Seized in the raid was about $2,500 in cash and various types of equipment, including monitors for listening to police radio frequencies.

No arrests were made at the time of the raid, but all the evidence collected will go to U.S. attorneys for grand jury presentation, according to Phillips.

The lottery was believed to have operated throughout the Birmingham area. Men who run lotteries often move their "counting houses" to avoid suspicion. However, it is usually at the counting houses that the most complete evidence may be obtained to lead to a conviction in court. Records showing the names of purchasers of lottery tickets are usually found only at the counting houses, because the "runners" or men who sell the tickets, bring all their money and tickets for the day to the central counting house.

The Birmingham News speculated that, based on the amount of money recovered in the raid, at least 1,000 people may be playing the numbers game every day in Birmingham.

Shelby County Sheriff C. P. "Red" Walker did not take part in the raid, and apparently was not notified of it in advance.

Noted medic joins new rescue squad

Walter "Elvin" Carden has been elected to serve as the special medical officer for the newly formed Lay Lake Rescue Squad.

Carden, who served as many years as a medic in the United States Army, made headlines ten years ago by being largely responsible for saving the life of a fellow soldier who had been wounded in the heart while hunting.

On New Year's Day 1964, Carden, Sgt. Paul O. Stiles and Carden's son were hunting near Fort Rucker, Ala. Stiles was accidentally wounded in the chest by a shotgun blast while the men were attempting to push their stuck car off the mud. Carden inserted the broken half of a ball point pen into the wound in Stiles' chest to allow free bleeding. Then the medic administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and heart massage keeping Stiles alive until he could be taken to the base hospital.

Army surgeons determined that a pellet of "00" buckshot was lodged in Stiles' heart. The wounded man was flown to Birmingham where he was admitted to University Hospital. In a five hour operation on January 3 doctors performed a delicate operation removing the shot from the Sergeant's heart.

Doctor's attending Stiles credited Carden's quick first aid with saving the serviceman's life.

For his action, Sergeant Carden was awarded the Medal of Heroism by the United States Army.

Carden, now residing in Shelby, will draw upon his many experiences as an army medic to execute the vital job as the rescue squad's medical officer.

The Lay Lake Rescue Squad was officially organized the first of May. A.F. Bell serves as the president of the organization. The Vice-President is E.E. Martin, and the Secretary-treasurer is Annett Martin.

The squad's coordinator is A.E. Etress and the Assistant Coordinator is E.J. Martin.

Fraternity houses cause complaints

What to do about an increasing number of complaints concerning Montevallo's three fraternity houses, was a principal topic of the Montevallo City Council meeting Monday night.

A delegation of citizens living in the vicinity of two of the fraternities was present at the Monday meeting to lodge formal complaints.

Of principle concern to neighboring families is all-night noise which, according to members of the delegation, is a frequent occurrence and often times lasts until 5 and 6 a.m.

No immediate solution to the problem was offered.

Members of the council, however, told the delegation that a meeting involving the property owners, university officials, faculty advisors to the fraternities, student officers of the organizations and council members would be scheduled for 7:45 Thursday night.

Mayor Ralph Sears told the group that the city would consult with its city attorney to determine the legal aspects of the circumstances.

The three fraternity houses are located in an R-2 residential zone that specifically prohibits fraternity houses. Two of the three houses were used as fraternity houses before the present zoning ordinance prohibiting fraternity houses was adopted. There is still a question as to the date the third building became a fraternity house.

Concern has been expressed by state and local fire and safety officials over the condition of the three buildings. Information is currently being gathered to determine what must be done to bring the buildings up to building code specifications.

A recent request to convert the University's old Speech and Hearing Clinic building to a fraternity house was denied until the building is brought up to Southern Building Code specifications relating to fraternity and sorority houses.

In other action Monday night, the city council voted unanimously to increase the municipal ad valorem tax from five to ten mills. Effective date of the increase is October, 1975.

Montevallo is one of only a few cities of comparable size that has been operating on a five mill ad valorem tax. It is also one of only a few cities that has not imposed a sales tax.

Mayor Sears and Councilman Jim Seaman reported results of a two hour meeting with officials of the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission. The two city officers recommended that Montevallo retain its

Helena man heads Pelham office

ELWYN BEARDEN

Elwyn Bearden of Helena will be the manager of the new Pelham office of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Bessemer.

The announcement was made by Association President Fred T. Blair. At the same time, Blair announced that the new Pelham office will have opening ceremonies at 9 a.m. Friday, June 28. The office is located at the Pelham Plaza.

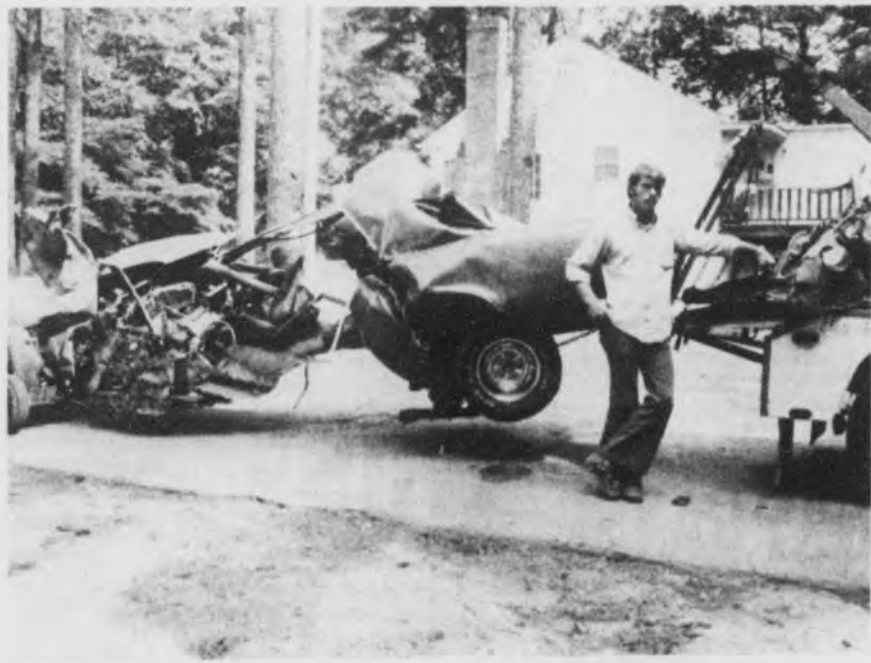

Elwyn Bearden has been a resident of Shelby County since birth. He is a graduate of Indian Springs School and a graduate of the University of Montevallo.

Teller for the new savings and loan institution will be Sharon Arnett, who has lived in Alabaster for 16 years and is a graduate of Thompson High School.

First Federal was organized in 1935 and has offices in Bessemer and Hueytown.

The association has assets of $38 million with savings deposits of $33 million.

President Blair says that he and the board of directors are extremely happy to be a part of the fastest growing section of Alabama, and that they expect to make a contribution to the continued growth of the area.

DEATH CAR -- Twenty-year-old George Thomas of Calera was killed instantly when this car slammed into a tree three miles south of Alabaster on U.S. Highway 31. Thomas was the only occupant of the north-bound Pontiac when the speeding vehicle left the road near the Rebel Drive-In Theatre Sunday evening. Photo shows the car was nearly cut in half by the impact. The motor was thrown several yards from the rest of the car. David Watson, whose wrecker towed the wreckage from the scene, is shown pointing to the dashboard of the car which was also found torn loose from the car's body.

Students enjoying summer sessions

by Willard Harrison

What is there to do in the summer? A large portion of Shelby County youngsters are spending the hot months at summer school.

But things are not all studying and book-learning. There are moments for art, music, and outdoor recreation, plus the informal summer classroom atmosphere so hard to duplicate during the regular school session.

But to each child summer school is something different. To some it's hanging upside-down on the monkey bars. To others it's painting with watercolors, or improving reading skills. To many summer school means a new fun-way to learn about numbers. And to some it's a chance for a rough-and-tumble game of basketball.

To thirteen hundred county children from pre-school to the eighth grade, vacation time is time to catch up on classwork and to get a head start next fall. Ten county elementary and middle schools are participating in the summer program this year.

And whether the children admit to it or not, most of them are enjoying class more than they do in the regular school year.

School census to be taken next month

The school census takers are coming.

July has been designated the month to canvass all homes to find out how many young people between the ages of two and 20 are residing in Shelby County.

The state of Alabama requires this census every four years, and the last one was taken in 1970. George Dailey has been appointed county coordinator for the project by the Shelby County Board of Education.

Dailey says, "This census is

County Commission sets aside July 3 as Reginald 'Rags' Lowery Day

After forty-two years with the county highway department, J. Reginald "Rags" Lowery is receiving special recognition upon his retirement. The county commission has set aside July 3 in his honor, and the state Association of County Commissioners has presented him with a framed certificate.

The certificate was presented to the Helena resident at the annual conference of the Association of County Commissioners of Alabama at the meeting in Birmingham on Thursday, June 20th.

Affectionately known as "Rags" by county commissioners and fellow employees, Lowery was hired on July 1, 1932 by T. R. Nash, who for forty years served as a county commissioner. Lowery will retire on June 30, 1974.

"Rags" was nominated for the state association award by the Shelby County Commission and County Engineer, James L. Ray, Jr. Ray praised him for his long and unselfish service, 24 years of it under Ray's supervision.

"Rags", said Ray, "is a highly skilled workman who will be sorely missed. His dedicated service has been an outstanding contribution to the development of this county's remarkable network of 600 miles of paved highways and hundreds of miles of all-weather dirt roads."

Judge Conrad Fowler, chairman of the county commission, announced that the commission had passed a resolution at its meeting Monday, June 24th, naming July 3, 1974, as a day set aside in the honor of "Rags" Lowery. Fowler expressed to Lowery the warm friendship and grateful appreciation felt by the commission for his loyal and devoted service to Shelby County during his long employment.

The text of the resolution follows:

WHEREAS: REGINALD "RAGS" LOWERY has completed a 42 year tenure of employment with and service to Shelby County, Alabama, unlikely to be equalled or exceeded by any employee of this or other counties, and

WHEREAS: During the entire period of his service Rags Lowery has cheerfully and well performed the tasks which he has been assigned, and

WHEREAS: His conduct has been exemplary and reflected honor to the county, and the various Commissioners under whom he has served,

THEREFORE: WE, THE SHELBY COUNTY COMMISSION, do commend and honor him, and by this Resolution do set aside and dedicate Wednesday, July third, 1974, as RAGS LOWERY DAY.

42 YEARS OF SERVICE TO SHELBY COUNTY -- J. R. "Rags" Lowery, right, is presented with a plaque praising him for his contributions to Shelby County since 1932 when he first went to work for the county.

Siluria Baptist Church plans fall kindergarten

Church for children ages 4 and 5.

Mrs. Barbara Haynie will be the kindergarten director. Registration will be July 8, 9, and 10 from 9 a.m. til 12 noon at the church.

The time of the kindergarten will be from 8 a.m. till 11 a.m. each day Monday thru Friday.

For pre-registration or more information, interested persons may call Mrs. Hoskins at the church office, 663-7904 on Tuesday or Friday from 9-12 a.m., or the director at 823-7628.

Community center started

"Saturday June 22, 1974 is a date that the people of the Chelsea Community can look back on as a milestone toward the development of recreational facilities for the young people of the Chelsea area," D. E. Hall, president of the Chelsea Youth Club said this week.

W. D. Ferguson, James Lee and Larry Kilgore, all of Chelsea, provided the equipment manpower and know-how to begin clearing the land, which hopefully, will be developed by the people of the Chelsea Community into a Community Center.

The Community Center will be located on hwy. 47 near Liberty Baptist Church. The Youth Club was organized in 1966 and incorporated in December, 1973. Its objective is to provide a program of organized sports for the youth of the area who, because of their ages, can not participate in local school programs and make available to the young people, organized, supervised summer activities.

In January of this year the club purchased 10 acres of land which will be developed into a Community Center, Little League Baseball Park and hopefully in the near future, a swimming pool.

Present officers of the club are: president - Don Hall; secretary - Deanna Newkirk; vice president - Neal Cork; treasurer - Rose Jones; committee chairmen - Margaret O'Shields, Pat Sims, Margie McClanahan, Della Cork, Erlene Isbell; board of directors - Howard Mitchell, Olene Wilson; coaches - Lloyd Sims, Neal Cork, Dudley McClinton, Gene Shaw, Joe Synder, Nat Barker, Tom Jones, Terry McClanahan, Wayne Crocker and Buddy Smith.

Hall advised that any donation made to the club is tax deductible and a certificate will be furnished contractors, for their time and equipment just the same as a cash donation.

Dudley McClinton, Coach of the Minors, warns that his team plans to be tough to beat next year if he has some home games.

HALL ANNOUNCES PLANS -- Don Hall, president of the Chelsea Youth Club looks forward to a full program of activities as the Chelsea group gets underway this summer.

Etress killed in accident

Alvin Michael Etress of Rt. 1, Shelby was killed Tuesday morning when he fell while working on construction in Bessemer with the firm of Sullivan Long and Hagerty.

He was pronounced dead upon arrival at a hospital. A graduate of Shelby County High School, he was married a few months ago to the former Rhett Mooney.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. "Codger" Etress of Shelby.

Census

Continued from page 1 very important because a part of the funds allotted for the operation of our schools for the next four years will be based on the number of persons counted during this census.

The census takers will go door-to-door. Principals of the schools will be asked to act as enumerators in their areas.

The cooperation of all citizens is requested in helping the enumerators locate all the persons in this age category.

Pelham plants in bankruptcy

Three Pelham manufacturing plants were among the 24 corporations that were declared bankrupt by their founder Jim Mercer in court in Savannah, Georgia last week.

Jamestown Corporation, Kennesaw Construction and Yorktown, Inc. are all Pelham firms that supply materials for the construction industry. They are part of the business and industrial conglomerate Mercer built within the last few years.

Chosen to be batboy for the Birmingham A's on June 24-27 was Dana Vansant of Columbiana. Serving as the A's batboy on June 28-30 is Tony Bowling of Childersburg.

Officer gives tips to July 4 boaters

Lay Lake in Shelby County offers many attractions for the person planning a weekend outing, or a special Fourth of July celebration.

Raymond Webster, Marine Patrolman who is assigned to Lay Lake says that the two public launch areas offer good picnicking.

With a boat, many other areas can be reached for a picnic in an out-of-the way spot.

He notes that there has been an increase in camping and picnicking on Lay Lake and an increase of about 500 boats on the lake over last year.

Webster's first thought is for safety and he urges everyone to take life preservers in their boats and to make sure they are close by in case of an accident. Many a drowning has happened because the life preserver is tucked under a seat.

Webster has made 185 arrests since January 1 this year including citations and warnings. But he says that although the number of boaters is up the number of citations is down, because everyone is becoming more safety conscious.

In an interview with the Reporter last week Webster said, "Be sure to tell people to make this a safe accident-free Fourth of July. I sure don't want to work on a drowning this year."

A DAY TO HONOR AMERICA
July 4th, 1974

John Hancock of Massachusetts signed the Declaration of Independence with a bold, elaborate and most legible flourish. It was followed by the signatures of 55 others from the 13 American colonies, 198 years ago today.

And in signing this document they called their erstwhile colonies, "FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES", by appealing to the Protection of divine Providence (the capitals are theirs) and did "mutually pledge to each other our lives, our Fortunes, and our Sacred Honor."

On July 4, 1776, this was no empty pledge. It meant very starkly that each signer had affixed his signature to his own death warrant. Each inscription convicted its perpetrator, automatically, of treason.

Yet such was the overwhelming strength of their patriotism in their fledgling nation that they pledged their all that it might be achieved.

And in years of battle, blood, hardship and often despair, it was achieved. Today nearly two centuries later, we of America are still a nation bound by the principles set forth in that Declaration and in the Constitution which followed it.

John Adams, second President of the United States, wrote of July Fourth—"It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations, from one end of the country to the other, from this time forever more."

Our nation has survived much, from minor upheavals to major corruptions, to bloody civil war. But that Declaration and that Constitution remain intact. We still pledge to them our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

And in these troubled times, more than ever, we might take heed of one of our most prominent contemporary constitutional lawyers, Louis Nizer, who in a recent address at New York University Law School, said:

"Ours is a great and noble nation. We must not give vent to despondency or skepticism. . .our great nation couldn't have achieved its eminence in science, business, and culture without a healthy core. . ."

We hold these truths to be self-evident. . .

And by honoring America's founders we also honor America, itself.

Prepared by the Honor America Committee of the American Historic and Cultural Society, Inc., Washington, D.C. 20004.

Walls states views on taxation issue

Editor's note:

The following letter is a position on taxes taken by Frank P. Walls, Certified Public Accountant of Tuscaloosa, who is running for Congress on the ticket of the Alabama Conservative Party.

The Alabama Conservative Party is absolutely opposed to Progressive Taxation and in this I strongly concur. In addition there are some glaring injustices which can be easily rectified by doing three things:

(1) INDIVIDUALS - I would raise the exemption to $1,000.00 for the taxpayer - $1,000.00 for the wife and $1,000.00 for each dependent.

(2) CAPITAL GAINS: Since capital gains are self-imposed, I would encourage the taking of profits (selling or otherwise liquidating) by separating the taxing of capital gains from the income tax. When a trader has gain in a stock he owns, there is nobody who can make him take the gain except himself. It is therefore necessary to give him an incentive. Since there is a large backlog of potential gains which are not being taken because of the present rates, I would give incentive by doing the following:

(1) First, separate the taxing of capital gains from the income tax.

(2) Tax the capital gain at 10% - ten percent of something is more than even 100% of nothing.

(3) No deductions against ordinary income for capital losses.

(4) No holding period.

(5) Capital loss carry-forward as at present, but no distinction between long and short term (would be moot because no holding period.)

There would be several good effects for our country:

(a) Individual income tax collections would not be reduced (as at present) by deduction of any portion of capital losses against ordinary income.

(b) Capital gains taxes could be enormous. Traders would have incentive to take gains and pay the reduced rate. They would know exactly how much the tax would be on taking a particular gain.

(3) CORPORATIONS: (Income tax - ordinary income)

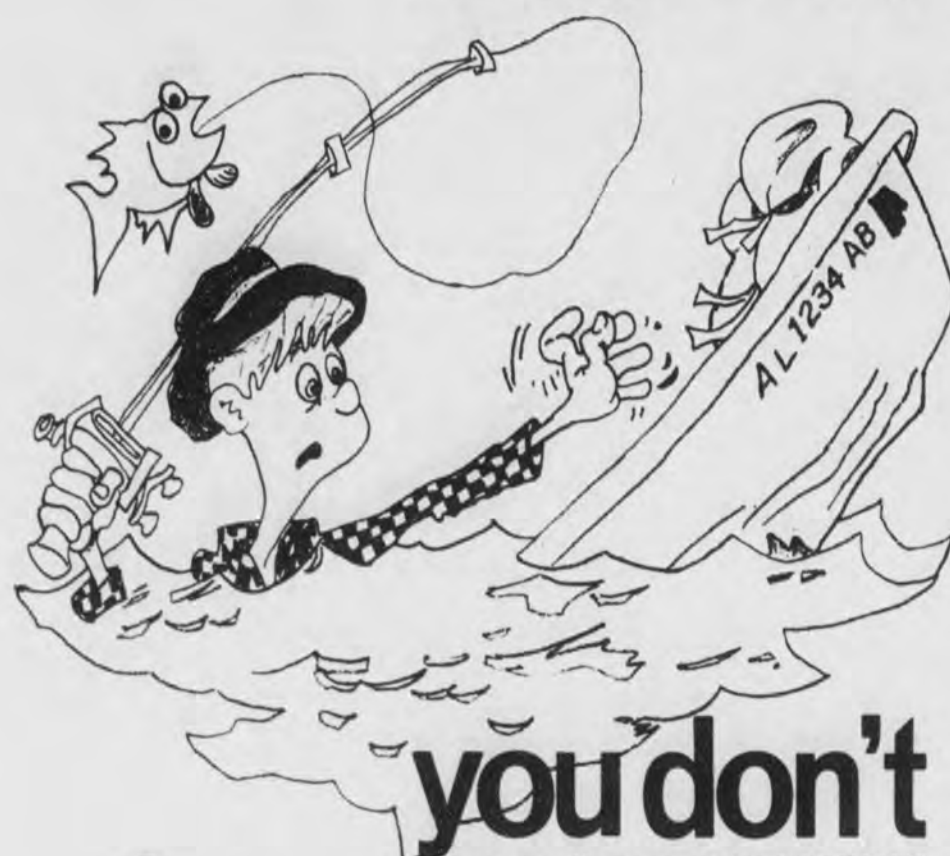

At present we have double taxation. Income is taxed to corporations and then again is taxed to the individuals who receive the dividends. I propose that a corporation be allowed a deduction for dividends paid. This would be a powerful incentive to the corporations to pay a bigger proportion of income in dividends. These increased dividends would bring in more taxes to the government. This would also bring about more equity financing and less borrowing.

My proposed plan in these three separate categories and specifically number one - individuals - could be taken care of at once without a complicated and earth-shaking re-writing of the tax law. These changes would benefit the economy of our country as well as bringing fairness and a start toward simplicity in our tax system.

If I am elected to Congress, I will consider it a mandate to bring about the ideas outlined above.

Sincerely,
Frank P. Walls

Keep Personal Flotation Devices Within Reach!

Every person on board your boat must have an approved personal flotation device (P.F.D.) within easy reach or be wearing it. In 1971, 1,472 persons drowned in the United States and 46 percent of these people had P.F.D.'s on board, but not in use. The message: "Don't just look at it, wear it!"

Powerful education coalition may become guilty of overreach

by Don Wasson

Education nabobs are licking their chops over the healthy surplus building in the Special Educational Trust Fund (SETF) and the powerful teacher's lobby is looking forward to a legislative session with healthy Pro-education majorities in both houses.

The surplus in the SETF is stacking up because revenues from those taxes pledged to education are running far ahead of expectations. Net receipts through May were running about 14 per cent ahead of last year and an increase of only 7.5 per cent is reflected in the current education budget.

There was a $101.8 million carryover from the last fiscal year, and while the present budget took in all of that surplus, a similar surplus should be on hand when this biennium ends on Oct. 1, 1975.

It may sound insane right now, but don't be too surprised if a move begins soon to redirect some of the education money into other areas. That would stir up a real hornet's nest of education opposition but with the growth of private schools, and with the continuing surpluses in the SETF, many people are wondering if a re-evaluation of priorities for spending state revenues might not be in order.

Education will scream that no change should be made until Alabama teachers are on par with teachers across the nation in pay and benefits and until the state has public kindergartens and a reasonable teacher-pupil classroom ratio.

The teachers' lobby - the Alabama Education Association - scored an impressive victory in the legislative elections in May and June. Some 70 members of the 105-member House and 28 of the 35-member Senate will owe their seats, in part, to the support of the teachers.

It would come as no surprise at all to see a teacher's union authorized by the next legislature, and also a union for other state employees. These two groups have learned to lobby successfully and are a growing force in state politics.

But also look for some administration and legislative resistance to both moves - unionization can be costly, and destructive.

Whatever happens in that respect, it appears that education and education financing will be the one big issue of the 1975 legislative session.

It would be safe to assume that teacher pay will be boosted once again, that classroom loads will be reduced again, that special education will be strengthened and that a start will be made on public kindergartens.

As long as the economic boom continues, education will benefit and while much of their gains are eroded by inflation, the schools and the teachers of the state are making steady improvements.

Their organization, their coming together for a common cause has certainly paid off. The Alabama public can only hope that the powerful lobby, now that it realizes its own strength, does not find itself guilty of overreach.

Little girls, good friends, last as long as yesterday

by Milton Bird

Wasn't it just yesterday that her Pop brought her in to see me - a little shy bright-eyed girl who was so pretty she made my eyes hurt. And today in tennish there was this little note, telling me she was graduating from high school. How long is a yesterday? Sometimes as long as it takes a pretty little girl to grow into a pretty big girl. That's how long it was for Lou Ann Gibson and Skillet Bird.

It took 50 years to grow a friendship like the one between Ferman Foster and me. A thousand little things, coming along week after week, that kept little candles burning. And last week, in our hurry-up world, he passed away, and they laid him to rest, and I didn't know. I wonder, sometimes, if we aren't too busy living to live.

Years ago, when I really needed a friend, I knocked on his door one day. He went out of his way a little and made my life a lot easier. Today word came that Leon Kidd was seriously ill. And this is to let him know that every day, in my fashion, I'll say a little prayer for him, hoping, in my heart, that very soon he'll be well again.

It hadn't been raining daffodils, or violets, it had been raining rain. Everywhere you looked folks had corn head-high and green as all get out. And beans halfway up the sky and still climbing. But in my neighborhood we weren't watching the corn grow or the beans climb. We were eye-balling Walksie, in Fred Gunn's pasture, where Town Branch and Walksie run together. You see, it was past time for all us little folks to go to the creek and the water just stayed muddy. But we're still watching - Jennifer and Betsy and Bonnie and Felicia and Susan, and Kevin and Barry and Freddie and Charlie. And one of these days we'll dam her up again and the water will be deep enough to swim in and somewhere between sunset and dusk we'll head for home. The same as we've been doing for years.

U.S.-China relations beginning to sour

by Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — While Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has been gaining diplomatic ground in the Middle East, he has been losing ground in the Far East. The friendly relations he achieved with Communist China are beginning to turn sour.

America's best friend in Peking, Premier Chou En-lai, is under political attack. There are signs that his power is slipping. His enemies have charged that the United States is still supporting Chiang Kai-shek.

They point to the recent sale of submarines, planes and helicopters to Taiwan. The Chiang Kai-shek government was also granted permission to open two new consulates in the United States.

The anti-American faction in Peking claims this is contrary to the spirit of Shanghai. In a Shanghai communique, President Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai pledged to normalize the relations between the two countries.

The Chinese viewed normalization as meaning that the United States would disengage from Taiwan and establish full diplomatic relations with mainland China. Instead, the United States has fostered its relations with Taiwan.

As a result, the controlled

Chinese press has stepped up its attacks on the United States. Secret intelligence reports also warn that the détente is in danger.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was so alarmed over these reports that he took time out from his Middle East preoccupation to send Peking a message, reassuring the Chinese of Washington's friendly intentions.

Nuclear Scramble: Secret intelligence reports give an alarming account of the worldwide proliferation of nuclear weapons. At the same time that the United States and the Soviet Union are negotiating to restrict nuclear weapons, other nations are scrambling to build up their nuclear arsenals.

The intelligence reports claim that Communist China has already deployed more than 50 nuclear missiles. Silos are being dug in remote, rugged mountains for hundreds more.

France has 58 fighter bombers and 18 intermediate missiles, with a nuclear punch. Now the French are rushing to build five missile launching submarines. The intelligence reports state each sub eventually will be equipped with 16 multiple-headed missiles.

The British have sounded out the United States for help in building multiple-headed nuclear missiles. The United States is also helping several nations, including Egypt and Israel, to build peaceful nuclear reactors. The used uranium from these reactors, however, can be reprocessed into plutonium for nuclear bombs.

Already, India has built a bomb from the residue of peaceful reactors. The intelligence reports predict that Egypt, Israel, Iran, Japan, Rumania, Sweden and West Germany will also wind up with nuclear weapons.

The great worry is that nuclear weapons will become so plentiful that irresponsible leaders will get their hands on them. Libya's President Qaddafi already is supplying sophisticated, Soviet-made weapons to terrorists. What if Qaddafi had access to nuclear weapons? It is not an idle question: On May 20, the Soviets promised Libya a nuclear reactor for water de-salination.

Oil Flood: Greedy oil governments have been so eager to cash in on sky-high oil prices that they have flooded the market with too much oil. They have been forced to shave prices in order to get rid of their excess crude. This could bring lower prices at the gas pumps by late summer.

The story of the sudden oil glut has been hushed up by the oil companies, apparently, to prevent any weakening of the price structure. The oil shortage psychology helps to keep prices high. Word that the oil pipelines are overloaded could bring pressure to reduce prices.

The oil companies paid top price for most of the oil now in their inventories and they want to sell it for the highest possible price. Therefore, they are keeping the oil surplus story quiet.

We found out about it from confidential memos, which our sources have furnished us from oil company files. These memos report that the oil governments, which have taken control of production away from the oil companies, don't have experience in adjusting production to meet the demand.

Iran, Iraq and Liberia, in particular, have been greedy for greater products. The United States has also brought pressure on Saudi Arabia to increase production rates. As a result, storage facilities are becoming filled to capacity and oil tankers must search for places to unload their cargo.

Unless the oil governments agree to restrict production again, oil prices eventually must drop.

Only in this way, they argue, can the rumor of secret funds be settled.

Dedicated Jury: In the early days of Watergate, President Nixon urged the American people to have faith in the judicial system. Now the judicial system has produced the grand jury statement naming the President as an indicted co-conspirator in the Watergate crimes.

The President's defenders immediately launched an attack upon the Watergate grand jury. His friend, Sen. Carl Curtis of Nebraska, called the grand jury "unrepresentative" of the country. Presidential speech writer Pat Buchanan repeated the charge in blunter terms. He charged that the grand jury was mostly black and most Democratic.

But we happen to know a good deal about this historic grand jury. We have read secret transcripts of the grand jury's proceedings, have talked to inside sources and can state, categorically, that this was an exceptional grand jury, well informed, highly alert and dedicated to the public good.

Among the 23 jurors were an economist, a cleaning woman, a retired army officer, an elevator operator, a receptionist and a taxi driver. Like most other Americans, they recoiled at the idea that the President might be involved.

For several months, they actually avoided questions which might have implicated President Nixon. But in the end, the evidence couldn't be avoided. The grand jurors decided that Richard Nixon should be indicted. When the special prosecutor ruled they couldn't indict a sitting President, the jurors who were present voted unanimously to name Nixon as an indicted co-conspirator.

Must a husband be older than wife?

By Herbert J. Miles, Ph.D.

A. "Dr. Miles, I am dating Lois, who is two years older than I am. I am twenty. We love each other and have many goals and values in common. My parents have questioned this difference in our age. What do you think about the idea that the boy must be older than the girl in courtship and marriage?" Rodney.

A. Rodney, there are two extremes related to the subject of age and marriage. At one extreme is the idea that the boy MUST be older. Our culture, going back many generations, teaches this. Many other nations, including India, are even more determined about it than our society. I suspect this idea because it is pure tradition built upon the false ideal of male superiority, male authority, and male dominance. It is pure blind tradition. It does not rest upon reality or facts, scientific or otherwise. It is difficult to measure the problems, the conflicts, and the heartaches this system (that man must be older), has hoisted upon individuals (especially women) and upon society.

At the other extreme is when couples marry with major age differences such as twenty years or more. This is questionable when either the man or the woman is ten or more years older. Either way presents major problems of values, goals, social interaction, and conflict due to the development of feelings of inferiority or superiority. When I read about a rich old man marrying a beautiful young movie star, I suspect the motives of both of them.

There ought to be an acceptable middle ground. Now, Rodney, let us come to your specific problem. In my opinion, one, two, three or four years difference in age either way makes no difference. Age does not mean maturity, nor does it mean having acquired the traits and habit patterns which determine marriageability. Maturity and growth vary with individuals. Family and community background have much to do with them.

Age may not coincide with physical health. A man or woman of age forty who has followed a life of proper diet, exercise, sleep, and emotional stability can be younger than one of thirty who has not. Sexual and social exhaustion is determined largely by lack of motivation and an exciting healthy attitude, rather than by age.

There is some rather strong evidence, Rodney, that it is well for the girl to be two or three years older than the boy. The rate of sexual development during the early years of life should be considered. A boy reaches his sexual peak at approximately age nineteen, while the girl reaches her sexual peak at approximately age twenty-nine. Many girls who marry in their early teens have major problems in sexual adjustment in the early part of their marriage. The problem is not solely slower sexual development, immaturity on the part of both partners may be involved. Unfortunately, many such marriages end in quick divorce. Since Lois is two years older than you, there should be a better possibility of early sexual adjustment in your marriage, and this is healthy for any marriage.

In our society women usually live longer than men. Thus in older age the husband would not retire earlier than the wife.

The woman would not feel obligated to quit working in order to be with her husband during retirement, and would not need to forfeit any retirement benefits. Also, the husband and wife on the average would approach death more closely at the same time than otherwise, and the wife would not be left widowed for such a long period of time.

Rodney, a person's personality, habit patterns, and emotional maturity are not determined by age. Rather they are determined by other factors such as being wanted, accepted, and loved by mature and secure parents at birth, by skillful parental authority and leadership, by being taught self-confidence through some freedom in decision making, and by being brought up tenderly in the education and discipline of accepted moral values. Of course age is one of the factors involved in selecting a marriage partner, but it must be seen in the light of other mental, social, moral, and spiritual factors.

As far as I am concerned, Rodney, continue with your courtship of Lois.

CALERA LANDMARK - Wrecking crews are at work taking down an 82 year old building located on Calera's Main Street. In recent years it was the Bowdon Economy Store. Originally it was the Holcombe Mercantile Company Building. R. E. Bowdon, present owner, indicates he has no immediate plans for the site.

Davis, Raymond Thornburg and Jerry Davis. Squad Lieutenants are Spiver Hope, Kenneth Proctor and Dewey Carden, Jr.

The rescue squad now has 30 subscribing members with 18 of them active.

The unit is divided into three squads in the six to eight active members assigned to each squad.

E.J. Martin, assistant coordinator, told the Reporter that the unit is making plans to patrol Lay Lake regularly on weekends and holidays.

"That way the squad will be able to rescue accident victims rather than to fish bodies out of the water,"

Good Hope welcomes new minister

Members of the Good Hope Methodist Church in the Kingdom Community welcome a new minister this month, Rev. Tom Bartle. Rev. Bartle comes to Good Hope from Sylacauga. He is married and has two children, a daughter and a son.

Services will be held every Sunday at the following times: Sunday School, 10 a.m., worship service, 7 p.m.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend these services.

Martin explained.

The squad will be holding fund raising projects in the future to raise funds for needed equipment such as boats, motors, walkie-talkies, and vehicles. The Lay Lake group is soliciting donations in money and equipment to their worthy cause.

A Calera landmark for the past eighty-two years is being removed.

The former Jasper Holcombe Mercantile Company building, in recent years the Bowdon Economy Store building, is being torn down.

The frame structure was completed in 1892 by Jasper Holcombe, Sr. who was doing business at the time as Jasper Holcombe and Sons.

The business was originally located on the site of the present Bird Supply Company. The Holcombe Mercantile Company was a general retail store and handled a wide variety of items including wagons, buggies, hardware items, groceries and salt for livestock.

In 1892 a fire destroyed the entire business block on Calera's Main Street.

Holcombe's store was destroyed and he then located his new building across the street and a block south of the burned out business block.

Holcombe's sons, R.L., E.M. and Jasper, Junior operated the business, after the elder Holcombe died. The business continued to operate as Holcombe Mercantile Company.

The building was sold in 1941 to R.E. Bowdon, Jr., who moved his Western Auto Store to his newly acquired business site.

In 1945 Bowdon withdrew from Western Auto and changed the name of his business to Bowdon Economy Store.

The business remained in this building until last year when it was moved next door to the recently remodeled automobile dealership building.

The eighty-two year old building has been vacant for the past several months.

Bowdon indicated he has no immediate plans for the site.

Baptist men's group leaves for annual fishing trip

The men of the First Baptist Church of Montevallo are off to Florida for their annual fishing trip. A group of 30 of the church's brotherhood group boarded the bus Friday at 6:00 p.m., loaded with fishing tackle and things they would need at St. Andrews Bay at Panama City.

The men were in high spirits as they gathered to wait for the specially chartered bus. All were eager to hit the surf and get a chance at catching "the big one." Bob Moss, leader of the expedition, said that the men were really looking forward to the fishing trip.

Among those in the fishing group were Rev. Robert Moore, Bob Moss, Sug Lovelady, Bobby Moss, Herman Stone, W. L. Lawler, worked over 40 hours per week. The pay is retroactive to May 1, 1974.

In a separate action, the sheriff's department submitted a bill to the commission for $19,020 for a $5 per day subsistence allowance for all deputies since last September.

This action stems from a law passed in the 1973 legislative session giving state troopers a $5 subsistence pay per day. Deputies of Shelby County are paid on the same pay scale as state troopers, and a recent attorney general's ruling indicated that the $5 per day allowance could also apply to them.

In other action, the commission discussed the traffic situation at the Westover Crossroads on Highway 280. Commissioner I. D. Stone said that the safety factor there is "really getting serious."

Jimmy Ray reported that the state has approved the installation of a traffic light at the intersection of Cahaba Valley Road and Highway 31 and it is to be installed as soon as possible.

In the afternoon session, Ray presented an engineering study he has done on the drainage problems of land being considered for the location of the new county jail.

Doug Ballard, Jr. appeared before the commission with requests from Shelco Rescue Unit No. 1. The commission agreed to help in the purchase of three pieces of equipment for the Rescue Unit. The county will contribute approximately $1700, the state will pay 50 percent of the total cost from civil defense funds and the local unit will be responsible for obtaining the remainder.

The equipment purchased consists of a K-12 saw with a long arm circular blade, and two types of expanders to help rescue units get people out of wrecked vehicles quickly.

Ballard reported that in the accident on Highway 31 last Saturday night, it took one and a half hours to get the body of the driver out of his vehicle after it hit a tree.

Commissioners Hoyt Blalock, J. E. "Ned" Bearden, I. D. Stone and Commission Chairman Conrad Fowler attended the meeting.

Ponies earn keep at Porter's farm

Special to the Reporter
by Nancy Duncan

"Ponies for pleasure and profit" might well be the motto of the M.G. Porters, whose five Shetland ponies earn their board and keep by giving rides and birthday parties and other gatherings.

The Porters, Gene, Pearl and three of their five children, live on seven secluded acres in Cahaba River Estates in northern Shelby County. At home are daughters Candy and Sandra and son, Chris. The couple's older offspring, Ronnie and Rusty, are married and live away from home.

Mrs. Porter, an energetic and enterprising lady, hit on the idea of renting out ponies after talking with an acquaintance who had a similar sideline. So several times each week for the past five years, she has brushed and carried her ponies and hauled them to birthday parties, school carnivals and church outings.

"I guess I average about four parties a week," she said, recalling one Saturday last year when she did six in one day. "I usually take one of the children with me, but that day I kept them all busy," she laughed.

Most of the time she takes two of the ponies to each birthday party, as there are usually 25 to 30 children attending those using her ponies.

"I keep meaning to quit every year, but people keep calling me," Mrs. Porter commented, adding that she gets as much business by word-of-mouth as she does from advertising.

Mr. Porter is a member of the Jefferson County Sheriff's Possee and nine-year-old Chris serves as the Possee's mascot, so father and son ride together in the major Birmingham parades.

Asked if children at the parties are ever afraid of the ponies, she said that only occasionally does a youngster hesitate to ride. "Most of the time they don't want to stop!" she exclaimed.

Her own children feel they have outgrown the ponies, their mother reported. "They have gone to motorcycles now," she said.

The Porters have lived on their "mini farm" for the past eight years, along with the five ponies, two dogs, two horses and six cats.

Right now, the family is involved in the unrelievable task of building a two story, ten room home for themselves. "We are doing it all ourselves, except for the brick work," Mrs. Porter said. The house, which will have four baths and a full basement, will be a combination of brick and cedar shingles "so we won't have to paint," she explained.

With a home to build and family to care for, Mrs. Porter sometimes feels that she might follow through with her threats to get out of the birthday business. However, Pearl Porter's ponies have established a reputation as the fun way to share a birthday, and it seems likely that they'll be making the party scene for some time to come.

Air conditioning filters should be maintained properly. Clean or replace them at least once a month during operation. For more energy-saving hints, write for Alabama Power's free booklet.

READY FOR EMERGENCY - The members of the Shelco Unit One rescue squad load three new pieces of equipment into their vehicle, Rescue One, the day after the Shelby County Commission appropriated $1700 toward the purchase of the rescue tools. Rescue squad captain Doug Ballard, Jr. purchased two hydraulic expanders and an emergency rescue saw with the funds. Pictured left to right are Stan Roberts, Doug Ballard, Jr., Sam White, Danny Monk, Lonnie Thompson, Wayne Davis and Ricky Fochtman.

Shelco buys rescue equipment

Doug Ballard, Jr. did not let any grass grow under his feet after the County Commission promised to pay $1,700 toward the purchase price of three new pieces of equipment. They made the promise on Monday and by 10 o'clock Tuesday morning Ballard was at the Birmingham supplier's warehouse loading the equipment into his truck.

All of the equipment will be used for emergency rescue work, for which the Shelco unit has become widely known.

The biggest item purchased is a Hurst tool, which can expand or contract up to five tons at the point of the jaws. Ballard said the tool also has a shearing attachment for shearing door posts or metal. The cost was $4,500. It operates hydraulically.

A five ton Porto-Power tool was purchased, which can expand or contract 10,000 pounds. Both of these tools are used to complement each other, Ballard said. The Hurst tool can be set up more quickly. The Porto-Power is smaller and can be used in more confined areas.

The third piece of equipment is the K-12 saw which cuts metal, concrete or wood. Its cost is $500.

All three pieces of equipment can be used in the emergency extraction of accident victims as well as fire victims who often require ventilation or the movement of a structure.

Ballard said that Shelco Unit One will respond to any emergency situation in Shelby County 24 hours a day. The unit has 11 members who are graduate emergency medical technicians. The Montevallo City Hall relays all requests for assistance to the unit with a special telephone and radio hookup.

membership in the commission.

Mayor Sears informed the council that a senior analyst from the planning commission would begin a study of Montevallo's fiscal capabilities during the second week of July. Information from the study will be used when the city's finance committee begins work on the city's budget for 1974-75.

Councilman Seaman told the group that the planning commission expects to play an increasingly important role in road and highway planning beginning July 1.

Council members were informed that the city is receiving complaints from homeowners that commercial trucks are being parked overnight in residential areas.

Police Chief Troy Kirkland was instructed to determine how serious this complaint is and to approximate the numbers of trucks being parked overnight in non-business areas of the town.

The Chairman of the fire and police committee, Councilman Grady Parker, informed council members that component parts of the city's new fire department building will arrive this week. The concrete slab foundation for the new building was completed several weeks ago.

In other action the council voted unanimously to permit members of the city's street crew to put up and take down American flags during certain designated holidays.

The flags were purchased three years ago by the Montevallo Business and Professional Women's Club. The women's civic club has displayed the flags on holidays, but has had difficulty in finding volunteers to put them up and take them down.

Councilman J. D. Holsomback informed the council that lights, paneling and carpeting have been installed in the library and office area of the depot building located in the city park.

Before adjourning council members inspected the building.

Offices of the city recreation director and the city librarian are located in the old depot.

WALLS ARE RISING - Pelham High School's auditorium is being put together. Through the window, a workman is hoisted high inside the structure to help join the huge modular wall components. The panels, three stories high by ten feet wide, are like cement sandwiches filled with insulation. The construction crews are putting the school together in hopes of finishing by the August school year deadline.

Siluria Baptist to hear sermon by Dr. Bagley

Siluria Baptist Church will observe Sunday, June 30, with a Progress Dedication Service at 11 a.m.

There will be a special service at 7 p.m. to recognize and honor all the men and women who have served in any part of the armed services.

Dr. George E. Bagley will preach at the morning worship service.

Dr. Bagley is executive Secretary Treasurer of Alabama Baptist State Convention and holds many other important positions.

"We hope that all of our members and friends will come and hear him Sunday," states the pastor, Roy Griggs.

Euell Atkinson honored with surprise party on retirement

Mr. Euell C. Atkinson, of Jemison, retired recently after 27 years of service in the Cloth Department at Siluria Textiles, Inc.

Throughout his many years at the textile manufacturing plant, Mr. Atkinson was a loyal and dependable employee and will be greatly missed by his company, plant manager B. T. Cook said.

On the last day he worked, his co-workers surprised him with cake and coffee and a lounge chair, because he had expressed a desire to sit in the shade of his trees and rest.

City draws fewer farmers

Today's younger set would rather live and work in rural and smalltown neighborhoods! True or false?

True - at least for some of them. Otherwise the 30-year, floodtide of country youth moving to big cities would not be slowing the way it is.

Parents have long bucked the urbanward flow of their children. But before they could slow it, they had to do something about providing local job opportunities, plus building more magnetism into the life of their community. They did both.

There's a sizeable upswing in nonfarm rural job opportunities. Between March 1970 and March 1973 nonmetropolitan areas reported an increase of 7.8 percent in jobs compared to 3.6 percent in metro areas.

One U.S. Department of Agriculture official, Will Erwin, assistant secretary for rural development said, "I have no quarrel with those who prefer city life. But for those who prefer to maintain their rural family and community ties, there should be enough local jobs available within reasonable commuting distance to make this possible. This is a central goal of rural development.

"For many years cities have had most of the jobs. Millions of farm, smalltown, and other rural people have been forced to move there. Parents were left to grow old alone. Many cities grew excessively - became congested and unmanageable. And small towns often withered as their population dwindled.

"Every new job adds to the economic tempo of the community, bringing additional jobs and business to it.

"Smalltown and rural people are increasingly organizing to hammer out a master plan for their community," Secretary Erwin said.

The official points out that development should be fostered and guided so that you get more out of it.

The aim of rural development is to increase the vitality of existing business, create new job-producing and tax-sharing enterprises, and add to opportunities for a fuller and richer life of residents.

Development makes possible community facilities, activities, and services - a chance for better schools, and for rewarding experiences that only an up-and-coming community can offer.

Assistance in getting a community plan underway is available. You can get help on deciding how to use and go about rural development from your County Extension Agent or other local Department of Agriculture workers.

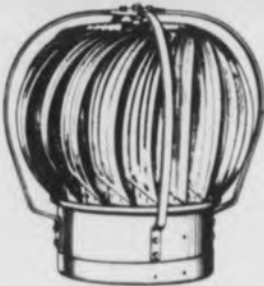

Loans for almost any developmental purpose are available from the Farmers Home Administration. These include loans for sewer and water systems, a host of other community facilities, housing, and for business and industry purposes.

Chef works miracles with microwave oven

by Willard Harrison
Did you ever cook a cupcake in thirty seconds? Or an ear of corn in six minutes? Microwave chef Hoke Harrell can do both, and he can cook a five-pound beef roast in twenty-eight minutes.

Cooking schools are usually not excitingly different, but Harrell's is out of the ordinary. Like many a Birmingham salesman or businessman, he travels the state promoting his wares. But unlike most, Harrell comes into town with a kitchen full of food and cooking utensils, plus his own microwave oven.

Harrell was in Alabaster last Friday offering a free microwave oven demonstration and cooking exhibition. Arriving at Suburban T.V. and Appliance shop at one o'clock in the afternoon, the chef conjured up an endless series of dishes until eight that night. From bean casseroles to baked potatoes, to main dishes and deserts, Harrell continued to delight onlookers.

But why a chef and ovens in a television shop? Simple, according to Harrell. As almost everyone knows, microwave ovens do not use heat to cook food. "Each microwave oven," he explained, "is like a tiny radio transmitter beaming a radio wave through food. As the wave passed through, it excites the water molecules, causing the food to cook itself."

Although microwave ovens are not new on the market, they are gaining a tremendous popularity. Harrell told the Reporter that they have been around for 19 years, and have been sold commercially for about five years. He adds that they not only save cooking time, but they also save power.

TV shop owner Larry Taylor pointed out that the new type of oven uses the power of a 100-watt light bulb, while conventional ovens use 36 times as much energy. Harrell added that since microwave ovens cook in about one-fourth the time of usual ranges, they save electricity in cooking time.

Saving time and energy is all well and good, but to many people the biggest advantage is fewer dishes to wash. Since microwaves only cook substances with water, even paper plates, plastic wrap, or cellophane can be used instead of pots and pans. Taylor adds that leftovers can be reheated in the same plastic dishes used for refrigerator storage.

But to the master microwave cook, the new ovens are not a substitute for regular ovens, but virtually a replacement. He says that about 85 percent of a family's cooking can be done in a microwave oven, including scrambled eggs, fried foods, and almost anything else usually cooked on the top of the stove.

But Harrell's biggest and most convincing argument for using microwave ovens was that the food tastes better when cooked this way. Of course he could claim that his method of cooking corn-on-the-cob was better than boiling or roasting; but an instantaneous demonstration showed both the merits of the oven and the food it cooked. And because of the microwaves, the food is cooked all the way through. Hoke Harrell has high hopes for the future of the ovens. The cost, from $200 to $400, has deterred many people from buying one. But the newest innovation is combining microwave ovens with regular stoves, rather than having separate components.

COOKED IN A JIFFY - With a little microwave magic, Hoke Harrell transforms raw spuds to baked potatoes in minutes. A veteran chef and cooking school teacher, Harrell says that microwave ovens can cook 85% of a family's food at one-fourth the regular time.

PLASTIC WRAPPED - It's true, you can cook a beef roast in plastic wrap and paper plates when you use a microwave oven. And the oven saves on dishwashing, since there are no pots, pans, boilers, etc. You can even warm the leftovers in plastic refrigerator dishes. Most microwave ovens can roast a turkey in only four hours, and can defrost it almost instantaneously.

Program planned for fall gardeners

Summer is unmistakably upon us and Shelby County vegetable gardens are supplying good foods for the family table and for canning and freezing. However, some gardeners are having problems with insects, diseases and soils.

Planned continuous planting is important if a variety of vegetables is available for the table all season. Now is also a good time to make plans for the Fall Garden.

Marian Cotney, Associate County Extension Chairman, announces a program on "Gardening and Gardening Problems", on Tuesday, July 9 at 9:30 a.m., Courthouse Annex Auditorium, Columbiana. Bring your questions and problems concerning gardening. W. M. (Buck) Clark, County Extension Chairman, will be in charge of the Gardening Program. Invite your neighbors and friends.

Miss Cotney reminds you that with a properly managed vegetable garden, a family can do three things: (1) save money on food, (2) have better nutrition, and (3) have a cooperative family project. A well planned and used home garden can add much to your family's nutrition.

Psychiatric unit opened at Brookwood Hospital

The care of mental, emotional and behavioral disorders has been added to the list of services offered by Brookwood Hospital, with the opening of the seventh floor as a psychiatric unit.

The home-like decor found in the rest of the hospital has been carried through the psychiatric floor but special safety features have been added. Unbreakable windows and mirrors, recessed lighting, water flow controlled by special keys, electronically controlled doors are among the safety precautions taken.

The unit has both a closed section and an open section and will provide services to outpatients as well as inpatients.

"Our goal is to provide a true therapeutic community, where the environment will be part of the therapeutic process," said Mrs. Angela Shaw, head nurse of the unit.

Recreational therapy in many forms is available. Arts and crafts, gardening and a special terrarium on the floor, music and reading rooms, activity rooms equipped with games and a ping pong table, as well as a kitchen for cooking projects and a beauty bar have been carefully planned with the help of the psychiatric staff of the hospital.

Patients may attain many privileges as they are able to cope with them. They may move from the closed unit to the open unit, make field trips to the theater, shopping centers or even have a cook out under the supervision of the staff.

With physician's orders, passes may be issued for the patient to visit at home or go to work.

"We will make a team approach to the patient," Mrs. Shaw said. "We want them to feel secure with us while they work through their problems. We plan a very humane approach to help them reach their maximum level of dignity and self-respect."

Demo factionalism sparked '40's struggle

The bitter struggle in the 1940's between liberals and conservatives for control of the state and the South still influences Alabama politics today, Historian William D. Barnard points out in this new book "Dixiecrats and Democrats: Alabama Politics 1942-50," just published by The University of Alabama Press.

Barnard, a long-time student of Alabama politics, is Assistant Director of the Commission on Higher Education of Alabama.

James E. "Big Jim" Folsom was the hub of the internecine battle among Alabama Democrats. Folsom, a little known political figure, made his first run for the governorship in 1942. He represented a persistent populism, a revived Jacksonianism, in state politics, and it almost won him the race.

Conservatives, who had chafed under the liberal policies of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, fought to retain control of the state, but Big Jim's victory in the 1946 governor's race thwarted them.

With Folsom in the governor's chair and Lister Hill and John Sparkman in the U.S. Senate, the liberal wing of the Democratic Party seemed securely entrenched in Alabama, Barnard points out. In 1947, a writer for the ultra liberal weekly magazine "The Nation" called Alabama "the most liberal state in the South."

By 1948, however, the potency of the race issue, exploited by the conservatives to reinforce their other positions, had shattered the liberal ascendancy. The legislature frustrated the attempts of Governor Folsom to revise the state constitution, reapportion the legislature, repeal the poll tax, remove the state extension service from domination by the Farm Bureau, expand state services, and increase corporate taxes.

With Folsom effectively neutralized, and President Harry S. Truman's administration committed to a liberal program of civil rights, conservative discontent with the national Democratic Party flared into open revolt.

Barnard says in his book that the States' Rights Movement of 1948 -- the Dixiecrats -- was a revolt not only against the Truman administration's commitment to racial justice but against the power and influence of the liberal wing of the state party as well.

The Dixiecrats won four states, including Alabama, for their Presidential candidate and gained complete control of the state party. Barnard contends that the factional lines forged in 1948 persisted throughout the 1950's and the 1960's and have continued to influence Democratic Party affairs in the state down to the present day.

Drawing on state papers and personal sources hitherto unavailable to the public,

Barnard has organized a wealth of political and biographical information into a coherent and significant exposition.

The University of Alabama Press book is available in most bookstores in the state ($7.95).

Hearing set for 'academic humanists'

A public hearing to promote understanding of a new public issues program in the Birmingham area and across the state is slated for 7:30 p.m., Friday, June 28th at the South Central Bell Headquarters building, 6th Avenue North.

The program, which is directed by the Alabama Committee for the Humanities and Public Policy, is part of a national effort to bring together "academic humanists" and the general public to discuss issues of concern to citizens across the state.

Academic humanists are college and university professors who specialize in certain areas including history, literature, legal theory, and philosophy.

The discussions must be non-partisan and related to the issues identified by the Committee in a state theme.

The public hearing in Birmingham will allow the citizens of the Birmingham Central Alabama area to express their opinions on which public issues should be included in the state theme.

How can you compare car deals if you're kept in the dark?

Simple—you can't.

Sometimes buying a car can be absolutely awful... because some automobile sales people intentionally keep you guessing in the dark about the value of your car, the features of their car compared to somebody else's new car, the kind of service to expect after the deal.

We'd like to shed some light on the way we look at that very thing.

We'll show you what your car is worth... we'll even put it in writing so there's no doubt. And, we welcome the opportunity to compare our Pontiacs and GMC's with any others you may be considering.

And we'll also tell you what to expect after the deal... we'll do exactly what we say, and that means providing you with sincere, competent service year after year.

Come in to Leach's and come out of the dark.

Harrell wins in Jacksonville

Clarence Harrell, Birmingham A's baseball player, hailing from Wilton, was the winning pitcher in a game against Jacksonville last Friday night. Harrell gave up one earned run as the A's defeated the home Jacksonville, Florida, team 6-2. Harrell struck out four batters and gave up only five hits in the contest.

The A's were on the road last week in sunny Florida as the Birmingham professional baseball team won two out of six games against Orlando and Jacksonville.

The A's stood only one-half of a game out of third place and six and a half game out of first place out of first place in the western division of the Southern League after last week's road engagement.

The A's are now at home for a 12 game stay starting last Monday, and the won-loss record should turn around.

"We're a home club," commented A's manager Glen West after last week's games. "Our team must like the home cooking. Next time I'm going to send the cooks on the road."

The A's will be playing the last of four games with Orlando this Thursday night. Friday's home game at Rickwood Field in Birmingham will be ladies' night. Saturday promises to be a big night for

UM signs teammates

The University of Montevallo has signed two team mates from Sheffield High School to the Montevallo's rejuvenated baseball program.

UM baseball Bob Riesner announced the signing of righthanded pitcher Alan Burns and catcher Glenn Hildreath to the Falcons team.

Burns, standing six feet tall and weighing 175 pounds, had 10-3 and 12-3 records while pitching his junior and senior years in high school. During his junior year, Burns pitched two no-hitters. Burns is a two time performer in the East-West All Star game in Decatur. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Monray R. Burns of Sheffield.

The 5-11, 175 pound Hildreath is a veteran of two

"Glenn is one of the best freshman hitters I've seen since I've been in college coaching," said Riesner.

AT THE TEE - Jim Jordan tees off as Fred Washburn looks on the new back nine at Indian Valley Country Club. The club opened nine new holes to their course this month.

Two teams tie in league

There was a three way tie for the second place position in the Columbiana Men's softball league after last week's games. The Young Men's Club, Symmer Hill and National Standard all hold a 5-3 record and are tied for second place.

In games played on Tuesday, June 18, City Recreation defeated Summer Hill 9-1, Four Mile downed the Young Men's Club 9-8, and National Standard outdistanced the Elastic Plant 21-9.

Indian Valley opens new nine

Golf is the big topic for area country clubs as the summer season really gets into swing.

The first annual Buxahatchee Country Club Invitational Tournament was held this past Sunday.

The winner of the championship flight was Al Hays and the consolation winner was William Jones. Both Hays and Jones are from the Clanton Country Club.

Sam Carmichael was the winner of the first flight while Jim Gardner won the Consolation.

Buxahatchee also held a beginners tournament on June 15. James M. Snyder won the first place title in the event and also the "Closest to the hole" honor. Don Hooks finished in second place and R. J. Speer finished third.

The Indian Valley Country Club of Chelsea opened up the "back nine" holes this month. The nine new holes will add to the Indian Valley links increasing the challenge of the course.

Probably one of the most challenging of the new holes in the sixteenth. The three hundred plus hole requires a blind shot over a lake to reach the green.

Water is the key hazard at the Indian Valley course as most of the holes are played over five different lakes.

Deadly Dudley lures bring in the bass

Cooler temperatures and overcast skies helped to make for good fishing last Sunday. Local marina operators reported a fair to good weekend as far as fishing was concerned.

A spokesman from Bozo's marina on Lay Lake told the Reporter that the weekend fishing there had been good. Several large bass were brought in. A deadly dudley type lure was bringing the best results for the bass while the smaller bass were doing best on a little george.

The smaller bass were schooling and fishermen were meeting with success by trolling. Night fishing also picked up and several strings of crappie were brought in.

With Sunday's overcast weather, large bass were being caught in the weed beds and log jams.

The report from Spring

Creek was much the same. Danny Hill caught a five and a half pound bass on a purple worm while fishing in deep water off an island in Spring Creek.

A six pound ten inch bass was reported at Lacoosa Marina. The stripe are still hitting well downriver, and the bass were fair, according to the report. A few crappie were also being caught at night. Plastic worms and the Big O lures were doing the best on bass and spoons and the Little George lures were recommended as being the best for catching stripe.

Catfish, bream and crappie were all being caught with regularity at Lake Purdy last weekend. All three varieties of fish were being caught in deep water. Catfish and bream were doing best on African Wigglers and crappie were biting minnows.

BASS - Bud Spears of Shelby appears to be thinking about the good meal these fish will make as he poses for this picture. Spears landed these beauties while fishing in Spring Creek. (Fish photos courtesy of Bozo's Camp, Lacoosa Marina and Spring Creek Grocery)

You've come a long way, baby!

Betty Wells (left) and Opel Alverson (right) enjoy the exercise and the sun as they spend an afternoon playing tennis at Oliver Park in Calera last Friday.

Water Safety Week

Gov. George Wallace has proclaimed the week of June 30 through July 6 as Water Safety Week in Alabama.

In his proclamation the Governor pointed out that the "ever-increasing traffic on Alabama's waterways has made it imperative that all boaters and participants in water sports exercise care, courtesy and common sense" when on the water.

Wallace also urged all those interested in boating to participate in a boating safety course and to encourage and promote compliance with water safety rules and regulations.

Alabama is among the nation's top four states in recreational water with an estimated one million acres of such water in the state.

DON'T DROP THE FISH - Diane Boykin has a hard time holding on to these two fish at Bozo's Camp. Mrs. Boykin points out that she is fashionably attired for an afternoon on Lay Lake.

Royals hold try outs

The Kansas City Royals are looking for potential major leaguers, and in their search will hold a tryout camp on Saturday, June 29 in Graysville at Graysville Park starting at 10 a.m.

Athletes participating in the tryout should wear uniforms or clothing which will not impede their movements.

Players in the American Legion program must bring written permission from their coach or Post Commander.

The tryout will be conducted by Wayne Cuasey, a member of the Royals' scouting staff. Boys between 17-21 years of age are invited to participate.

AT THE TURN - These riders compete for the top honors during a moto-cross race at the Lakeside track south of Alabaster. The action took place last Sunday afternoon.

IRS humanizes service

Beginning this month, all correspondence that Alabama taxpayers receive from the Internal Revenue Service will contain an IRS telephone number to call if they have any questions about the letters or notices sent to them.

Dwight Baptist, IRS District Director for Alabama, said that, in many cases, calls to the IRS will be toll free, as they were during the tax return filing season.

He said that, whenever possible, the IRS will answer the taxpayer's questions immediately. If the question requires research, an IRS employee will return the taxpayers call after obtaining the necessary information.

Generally, IRS correspondence to taxpayers includes notices of mathematical errors on returns, replies to inquiries, letters requesting additional information, notices of audits, of bills for tax due. Personally prepared letters to taxpayers will include the name of the writer and his or her telephone number.

The toll-free telephone numbers for Alabama are: Montgomery - 269-9101; Huntsville - 539-0651; Decatur - 355-1855; Mobile - 433-5532; Birmingham - 252-1155. Elsewhere in the state: 1-800-292-6300.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

Liberty Bell is still symbol of freedom

By Mildred White Wallace

The far-famed Liberty Bell remains in its resting place at Independence Hall, Philadelphia -- but silence shrouds the historic symbol. Never again will its melodious voice be used to herald important occasions such as the first public reading of the Declaration of Independence. Yet for millions of Americans, the cracked and battered 222-year old bell represents the rugged and indomitable spirit of independence.

County's first courthouse cost only $53

By Mildred White Wallace

The First Courthouse -- according to the historic account of Shelby County by the late Rev. E.B. Teague, was located in Cahawba valley, one mile and a half above Siluria, near the present L & N railroad. The cost was $53. The building was of logs. It was 24 feet long and 20 feet wide and eight feet from floor to eaves. It had a clapboard roof and was lined and chinked. Benches were included and there was a door with a shutter. The contract was given to a Thomas A. Rogers, a leading citizen of that period. He and George Phillips, both residents of the northern part of the county, represented the county at the first Constitutional Convention, held in 1819 in Huntsville.

These are the facts as recorded by this widely known Baptist minister of this era. The late Judge Wallace's sister (Mrs. Rosa Wallace Teague) was married to William Teague, a son of Rev. E.B. Teague, who wrote the history of the county to which we refer.

that furnished the founding of these United States so many years ago.

One journalist reminds us that the fast approaching Fourth of July celebrations on the agenda of activities, are similar to the situations our forefathers faced on that first "Independence Day" in 1776. Myriad problems assail us on every front. Our national purpose is even being questioned. Some of our allies are forsaking us. The outlook is not exactly cause for optimism.

However, as long as Americans can keep alive the principles of individual dignity and justice under law, the United States will always be able to follow and keep intact the immortal message inscribed on the Liberty Bell to: "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof".

We have been asked why, what, and when was the age-old Liberty Bell cracked? And - how come? We hope to give you a historic sketch next week after we refresh our minds on this bit of American History. Will you follow through?

7 DAYS A WEEK

News from your friends and mine

by Mildred White Wallace
Charles Allen Jones was recently elected president of the Columbiana Kiwanis Club. He and Mrs. Jones are spending this week in Denver, Col., where they are attending the National Kiwanis Convention.

Mrs. Joel Glaze and children of Athens are spending this week in Columbiana as the guests of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Leon B. Wallace.

We are numbered among the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Brock who sincerely regret losing them as citizens of Columbiana. Mr. Brock is being transferred back to Birmingham.

Since the family moved into our midst from the Magic City several years ago, they have taken an active part in all worthwhile activities of the town. Especially will the entire family be missed in all phases of the First Baptist Church program where Mr. Brock has served as a deacon and teacher. Mrs. Brock also teaches in the Youth Department. Their son Jim is a popular member of the Youth Choir and takes an active part in all the youth programs directed by Tom Stoker. Melanie, their daughter, is a student in a School of Nursing; and their youngest son, John, a fourth grader has his own ideas of what it is all about.

The entire family was given special recognition by Rev. Charles Stroud Sunday evening when friends had the privilege of thanking them for coming our way. Even though their stay was a comparatively brief one - they will not soon be forgotten.

Congratulations to Lisa McElroy, talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob McElroy, who has been selected as an instructor in the I.C.L. The graceful little exponent of the Cheerleading art - has just returned from Kansas City, where she was engaged in instructing various pep'um routines. She is spending this week teaching cheerleaders in Georgia. Lisa will enter Auburn University in September to begin her college career.

Regret to learn that Mrs. E. M. Young remains a patient in Shelby Memorial. Her son, Joe Young of Atlanta spent the week end visiting with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Steele of Westover had as their guests

Mrs. Denson convalescing in nursing home

County wide friends of Mrs. J.M. Denson, who has written the New Hope News for so many years for the Reporter, will be glad to learn that she has been moved from Shelby Memorial Hospital to Briarwood Nursing Home for a convalescent period. I am sure Mrs. Denson, during her stay there, would be glad to receive a card from friends. As long as she was well enough to send in the news from her part of the county she did so - and we hope she will soon be able to return home feeling tip top well again.

Mrs. Charles L. Steele and daughters, Carol Leigh and Melinda Claire of Baton Rouge, La.

Mrs. Steel's sister, Miss Gail Overton of Birmingham and Mrs. Diane Mayfield of Gardendale joined them.

Regret to learn that Robert H. Polk, former resident of Columbiana, and long identified with newspaper work in Birmingham is a patient in Baptist Medical (Princeton) suffering from a recent heart attack. Many people will remember "Fox" as he was affectionately called, and will regret to learn of his illness.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith of Tulsa, Okla., is the guest of Judge and Mrs. Conrad M. Fowler and Mr. and Mrs. Rux Carter.

Dr. and Mrs. David McKell (Fay Nell Polk) are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Polk, having been called home due to the illness of her brother Robert H. Polk.

R.L. Hill Jr. is the handsome young fellow you see going in and out the law offices of Head and Head. Regret to tell you girls that he said the final "I do and I will" this very June. So, you will have to keep looking for your Prince Charming.

Congratulations were in order June 20 for Mr. and Mrs. Lou Hoynes (Catherine Parker) who observed the passing of their 40th happy wedding anniversary at their home in The Pines - near Harpersville. It was good having a curbstone chat with them during a brief stop they made in Columbiana during this "special day" in their lives.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cosby from Florida are spending a few days in Shelby County this week as the guests of Miss Dorothy Parker and Mr. and Mrs. Lou Hoynes. The Cosbys are former residents of Columbiana and their many friends are enjoying sharing their visit.

It is always good to have the pleasure of welcoming Lawrence E. Wright from the State Tax Department in our town. He will be with us for a few weeks commuting from his home in Clanton to Columbiana while engaged in checking official records in the Tax Assessor's office.

Youth Club holds barbecue at Chelsea

The Chelsea Youth Club will hold a barbecue on Saturday, June 29 in the Chelsea school lunchroom with proceeds going toward the building of a little league ball park and community center.

Elgin Morris, chef at Fran's Restaurant in Pelham, is donating a shift of work to do the barbecuing and direct cooking and serving.

Serving will be done between the hours of 12 noon and 5 p.m. Little league girls will play a softball game for entertainment. Everyone is welcome, according to Dean Nivens, publicity chairman.

Members of the Sanctuary Choir of Baptist Church in Columbiana had the novel experience of "seeing themselves on TV" at the rehearsal hour last Wednesday evening when a video tape was made of the recent presentation of the collection of favorite gospel songs compiled under the title of "God is So Wonderful" The TV screen furnished a chance to let them "see themselves as others see them" and proved both entertaining and revealing.

A bus filled with pre-teen age members of the Girls Auxiliary from First Baptist Church in Columbiana, under the supervision of Frieda Holcombe, enjoyed a two day camping trip in Talladega National Park last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Mullins hosted a dinner party honoring the distinguished attorney, Morgan Brian from New Orleans last Sunday evening. Following the dinner hour Mr. Brian spoke at the evening worship hour at First Baptist. The writer enjoyed the privilege of sharing the social hour as well as hearing this outstanding speaker.

Other guests present in the Mullins home for the dinner hour were: Rev. and Mrs. Charles Stroud, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Stoker, Mrs. Bob Mullins, Christy and Andy Mullins of West Point, Ga.

A report from some of our sick friends reveals the fact that John Thompson is home from Shelby Memorial and convalescing satisfactorily. George Holcombe is also home from a weeks stay in the hospital and is home again resting a few days before tackling his business at Gulf Service. James Moore is recuperating from recent surgery. Regret to say that Sara Palmer remains ill in Shelby Memorial. Friends are eagerly awaiting news from her bedside.

One of the highspots in any day's routine is having an old friend drop in. Last Monday, we were pleasantly surprised to have Baker Elliott, and his handsome four year old son Mark, come by during their visit with his parents Dr. and Mrs. Woodrow Elliott in Talladega.

Years have passed since Bake was a member of the Shelby County High School contingent at which time he worked with me in the newspaper game. He called to mind that during this time he received his first social security number (age 13) - Baker now holds a highly responsible position with the Rehabilitation Center in Charleston S.C. having, some time ago, received his master's degree from the University of Alabama.

Time marches on - but it is good to realize all over again that old friends never forget - no matter the years nor the miles that cause paths to divide. We deeply appreciate this thoughtful call from this cherished friend and we were delighted to meet the "all American 4 year old" who doubtless sees to it that there is never a dull minute around his happy home.

The bridegroom's father was the best man. Ushers were Charles Eager, Mick Bennett, Steve Pauley all of Birmingham; Dwight Bentley of Columbiana; Caleb Halstead of Vidalia, Ga. Scott Bouchillon was a junior groomsmen.

The wedding reception was held at the church. The couple is at home in Columbiana where the groom is on the editorial staff of the Shelby County Reporter. Steven F. Donaldson and William H. Kerns, Jr. of Helena have been named to the Dean's List for the Spring semester at Samford University in Birmingham.

Donaldson is the son of F. W. Donaldson of Helena. A graduate of Shades Valley High School, he is studying engineering.

The son of William H. Kerns of Route 1, Helena, Kerns is a history major.

David Bice, the ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bice of Calera is a little disillusioned with the world.

David's bicycle was stolen from the yard of his home in Brentwood Hills last week when he and his mother and brother were in Columbiana at a ball game. David was playing in the game.

Last year after the tornado hit his neighborhood, someone stole David's dog, "Chico" and David never saw him again. A friend heard of the problem and sent him a new puppy. But David could not understand why anyone would steal his pet.

And now the bicycle has disappeared. He can't figure it out.

Pass another law--

Legal jumble stifles USA

by Mildred White Wallace
Casually Commenting:

It is said that we Americans always have a ready solution for all our problems. We simply "pass another law! We heap law upon law - and each new statute seems to dare us to defy it or find a way to evade it."

This is a deduction from a Congressional Record we have just received.

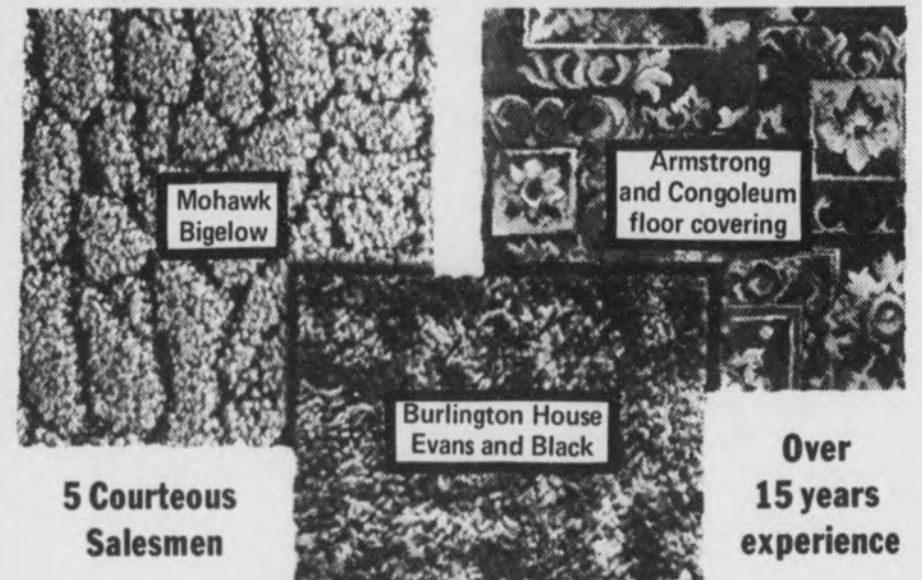

It has also been said that we Americans spend more money to pass laws, and more money to break the laws we pass, than any nation in the world. And -- we think that the only way to correct all this is -- 'pass another law. This may or may not be true. A fellow craftsman says he thinks that the 'something' that makes laws work is definitely missing. He further states that -- according to the way he sees it -- we have become so involved in legality that morality is forgotten. And, the result is more and more laws in a vain effort to keep us from being inhuman to each other.

We do not know what it is all about nor do we offer a possible remedy. We do know this state of affairs is not getting us anywhere as far as progress is concerned. However, regardless of the upheaval we find ourselves revolving in. Troubled waters continue to rise, and soon we shall know whether our beloved nation will sink or swim. For our copper penny's worth, we'll say she will stay afloat. America has battled far worse winds and even higher waters. Her strength has endured through almost 200 years. She will not go under!

Maxine Eddleman of Montevallo, Carlene Barefoot and Brenda Parker of Alabaster and Emma Brantley of Dogwood attended classes taught by Auburn University professors. E. Warren Wood of Atlanta presented information on nutrition, skin and hair care to the 125 cosmetologists from throughout the state.

Mrs. Barefoot also served on the program, as an assistant to the guest artists, Vera Slater of Minneapolis and James Viar of Memphis.

Senator Jim Allen co-sponsoring a bill to clamp a $295 billion ceiling on fiscal year 1975 Federal spending, declared the $9 billion cut in government spending "would not only be deflationary in itself, but it would also curb inflationary expectations which have caused interest rates and wage demands to skyrocket."

MISS AMERICA APPEARS FOR BIG B -- Miss Rebecca King, the reigning Miss America, (c) meets the Editor of the Shelby County Reporter, Marcia M. Sears, left, and the Consumer Relations officer for Big B, Bruno's and Food World, Mrs. Mamye Campbell, at a breakfast in Birmingham. Miss King charmed those who came to visit with her and get her autograph at the Pelham Big B Drug on Thursday.

Historians convene

Four members of the Shelby County Historical Society met at a regional convention of historical groups in Birmingham. The day-long meeting, held Saturday, June 22, drew representatives from Jefferson, Tuscaloosa, Blount, St. Clair, and Shelby Counties to meeting rooms at the new Birmingham Civic Center.

Roberts told of her committee's progress in compiling a Shelby County history.

Other groups represented at the convention were the Tuscaloosa Preservation Society, the West Jefferson Historical Society, the Jefferson County Historical Commission, the Blount County Historical Society, the St. Clair Historical Society, and the Alabama Historical Commission. The delegates discussed plans for forming a regional confederation of societies in the future.

The county historical society is continuing with its many projects, but general meetings will be scheduled this summer until August. In keeping with the policy of the other societies, fewer meetings will be set due to the busy summer schedules of vacations and other conflicting activities. Society president Kenneth Penhale adds that business will continue until the next meeting in August, although general gatherings are not planned.

The society board of directors will hold regular councils and take care of pressing business. Members and committees will continue with their projects, including special work with natural history and prehistory. The society newsletter will be issued on a monthly basis, in order to keep the membership informed of any new developments.

Representing the county society were Mrs. Barbara Roberts, Miss Eloise Meroney, Mrs. Grace Hayes Davis, and society president Kenneth Penhale. In a round table discussion, the members discussed several current projects, including the "save the courthouse" plan. Mrs.

Champion rabbits not judged by beauty

by Shelta S. Nivens
A winner in a rabbit show is not selected because she looks the prettiest as she parades before the judge nor because she sits the prettiest in her cage as spectators view her. But each bunny is given her (or his) own moment of glory alone in the hands of an especially-trained rabbit judge, who looks the rabbit over thoroughly from teeth to toenails.

Passing inspection and coming out trophy winners in the recent rabbit show sponsored by the Heart of Dixie Rabbit Club of Shelby County were rabbits belonging to the following owners:

Dailey's Rabbitry of Montevallo won Best of Breed, Best Opposite Sex and Best Commercial for New Zealands and Best of Breed for Californians.
Leroy Woods won Best Opposite Sex for Californians. Buddy Hughens of Indian Trail, Helena, took three trophies for his Dutch - B.O.B., B.O.S. and Best Fancy, and he won B.O.S. in the Satin Class. David Hughens won B.O.B. and B.O.S. for Rex. Julia Ann Winslett won B.O.B. for Champagnes, and Pat McLaughlin won B.O.S. Myrna and Clayton Simmons won both B.O.B. and B.O.S. for Standard Chins.

Columbiana Clinic

by Tom G. Stinson

This is a little country clinic. In a little country town. Myself and lots of other people. Feel no better could be found.

If we would stop and think awhile. What these doctors have to do. Instead of so many people griping. There would only be just a few.

At the hospital in the morning. They don't take time for lunch. Trying to help the sick ones. At times a fretful bunch.

We have wonderful Doctor Hall. And our wonderful Doctor Phillips. And I really want to tell you. There is no better you could call.

Now I don't know the other help. But all of them are so kind.

But I do know Doctor Phillip's nurse. And no better could be found.

So let us stop and think awhile. Let's give them a little rest. For we want to keep them with us. For we really have the best.

They go at night and all the day. And have not much time to talk. And we never stop and think of them. They are so tired they can hardly walk.

So this is truly from my heart. Let us thank our God above. Let's give them thanks for what they do.

And show them a little love.

Congressman Flowers announces grant for VA medical school

Congressman Walter Flowers has announced approval of a $600,000 grant to the University of Alabama for a Veterans Administration affiliated medical school. The grant is being made under the provisions of the VA Medical School Assistance and Health Manpower Training Act of 1972.

Active in securing this grant from the Veterans Administration, Congressman Flowers, said "This initial grant will provide the foundation for a program with the VA scheduled for a seven year period with the Federal Government share totaling

$6.8 million." Flowers added, "The University of Alabama Medical Education System in Tuscaloosa will be expanded for 20 students per year to receive clinical training in their

3rd and 4th years. A residency program with 8 residents per year for a 3 year program will also be initiated."

"The University of Alabama Medical Center is one of the finest medical complexes in the nation." Flowers continued, "and has worked cooperatively with VA hospitals in the region on various projects of community interest. I am excited that the Tuscaloosa Campus School of Community Medicine will have a VA affiliated medical school to help provide the highest quality health care to veterans and assure adequate supply of well trained physicians for our State of Alabama."
